SUED FOR A MESSAGE.

Cumberland Man Sent a Telegram to His Wife Which Was Never Received.

CUMBERLAND, MD., Nov. 16.—(Special.)—A novel suit was tried here yesterday before Justice Cootford. W. A. Sham sent a dispatch from Baltimore to his wife at Washington over the Western Union line, requesting her to get her luggage ready and meet him at the station on the arrival of the next train, so that they could come to this city. The telegram was never delivered.

There is a penalty under the Maryland law of $100 against any telegraph company for refusing to receive or send a message over its line. The operator from Baltimore testified that he sent the message, but there seemed to be no record at Washington that the message had been received or delivered. Sham sued the company for $100.

The contention of the lawyer representing the telegraph company was that as the message had been received and sent there had been no negligence on the part of the company, and he assumed the theory that the message had been destroyed between Baltimore and Washington by deduction on account of the great number of wires between the two points.

OHIO VOTES LIKELY TO BE FOR DALZELL

Buckeyes Only Expect to Pay State Compliment to Burton.

CLEVELAND MAN TARIFF HERETIC

House Must Have Strong Man on Protection Occupying Chair of Speaker.

RACE IS NARROWING DOWN

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU, 905 Fifteenth St., N. W. WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 16.

Regardless of the number of avowed candidates in the field, the speakership contest has narrowed down to a finish race between John Dalzell of Pennsylvania and Joseph G. Cannon of Illinois. The claims of Sherman and Payne of New York are not taken seriously, by reason of the fact that President Roosevelt admits New York as his home. For the Empire state to have the presidency and the speakership would be an unreasonable proposition. Littlefield's candidacy has not aroused any enthusiasm and he is put down as an "also ran."

Babcock's coquettish attitude is not regarded as that of a man thoroughly in earnest, and it is openly predicted here that if he enters the race it will only be in the interest of another and stronger candidate to whom he will eventually throw his strength. As to Burton of Ohio, his standing was exposed in a remark recently made by a representative from the Buckeye state, who said:

Burton Slightly Off Color.

"Well, Burton is a good fellow, but he is weak on the tariff. He will tell you himself that he is a heretic on this question. The house cannot afford to choose any man for speaker who is not sound on the tariff, and I am afraid this fact will put Mr. Burton out of the contest."

Consequently Dalzell and Cannon are looked upon as the only finishers in the race, although the starters may be numerous. Dalzell will start with the solid Pennsylvania delegation at his back. He will go into the caucus as a candidate of long experience on the floor, with ability as a presiding officer and thoroughly in accord with the policy of his party. He is a safe man on the tariff and on every other question which is likely to find its way into the next congress.

Cannon's friends base his claims on his long term of service, the care with which he had doled out appropriations, and especially on the proposition that a western man should succeed Speaker Henderson. As to geographical lines, Mr. Cannon seems to have but little the better of Mr. Dalzell. Both represent states east of the Mississippi and Cannon's pose as a western candidate will not prove a strong argument.

Ohio's Vote a Unit.

It is rather early in the contest to speculate on whence the candidates will draw their strength, but the indications are that the Ohio delegation after a complimentary vote for Mr. Burton, if he should remain an aspirant for speakership honors, will line up for Dalzell. The fact that Gen. Grosvenor recently uttered a prophecy in which he foresaw "Uncle Joe Cannon" in the speaker's chair does not mean that Mr. Grosvenor will vote for Cannon. In fact, it means nothing except that the general was amusing the reporters and incidentally making an item of news for them. His prophecies are a standing joke in Washington.

Gen. Grosvenor will prophesy on the slightest provocation, and like the professional fortune teller he tries to find out what sort of a prophecy you want and then fills the order.

A leading member of the Ohio delegation recently said that the vote of the Republican representatives of Ohio would be cast as a unit and that it would not be decided for whom it would be cast until the members had had an opportunity to meet and go over the situation carefully. He expressed the greatest confidence in Mr. Dalzell's ability and in the soundness of his political doctrine.

LAKE SHORE GIVES A 10 PER CENT RAISE

Increase Made Along Entire System. Nickel Plate Road Will Follow Example.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 16.—The Lake Shore road will post notices tomorrow announcing an average increase of 10 per cent along the entire system. Not a great while ago the wages of the switchmen in the Chicago yards were raised and the notice tomorrow will apply to all other switchmen. It will affect about 1,000 men.

It is learned that the same company now has under advisement a more general increase in wages, affecting a great many employes. Officials refused to give out any of the details, but it is stated authoritatively that a sweeping increase may be made before the end of the week.

It is also stated that the Nickel Plate will follow with a general increase.

RIO GRANDE ROAD ALSO INCREASES PAY

DENVER, COL., Nov. 16.—Under an agreement reached between Manager J. M. Herbert of the Rio Grande system and the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, the members of the order who are employed as switchmen in the various yards of the system are granted an increase of pay, based on the Chicago schedule, recently adopted.

BOARD OF DEACONS SITS DOWN ON NELSON

Religious Enthusiast Disturbs Church and Is Now Held in Harlem Jail.

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU, Herald Building, Herald Square. NEW YORK, Nov. 16.

Hugh G. Nelson, a religious enthusiast, who proclaimed himself as "the Holy Ghost," was a prisoner today in the Harlem police court, charged with having disturbed services in the Church of the Seven Day Adventists in One Hundred and Twelfth street, near Lexington avenue. He was arrested on Saturday, after making a sensational descent on the church, accompanied by a long-haired bodyguard and a woman, whom he calls his "spiritual wife."

The trio ejected the pastor of the church, the Rev. E. M. Bell, and his assistant, the Rev. Elmer Frank, from the pulpit, and were only overpowered when the entire board of deacons, with several of the heavy men in the congregation, literally sat on them.

In court Nelson insisted that he was the Holy Ghost, and that he left his seat on the "right hand of the Lord" to come to New York to redeem those who have strayed away from the true path of virtue. The magistrate, nevertheless, held him for examination tomorrow.

Edwin Bergendahl, the bodyguard, was fined $3. The police did not arrest "the spiritual wife." The woman is about 30 years old, tall, rather good looking and intelligent.

Nelson has traveled from ocean to ocean, preaching of the weakness of faith, especially among the Adventists.

STARTS ON A SEARCH FOR MISSING HUSBAND

Woman Seeks Missionary Who Disappeared in Far-Off Thibet.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

OMAHA, NEB., Nov. 16.—Mrs. Susie Carson Reijnhart, who was married to Dr. Reijnhart, the famous missionary, in Hiram, O., in 1894, will start in a few days for Thibet to look for her husband, who has been missing for several months, and to visit the grave of her little boy, whom she buried on the steep sides of the Dang La mountain of Thibet.

Mrs. Riejnhart knows not whether her husband be living or dead. She traveled with him over that wild and dangerous country for four years till their baby sickened and died. Then she came home to regain her health and spirits and to urge the missionary societies of the country to send more missionaries to Thibet, which she declares is a most profitable field for exploitation by the Christian religion.

Since the disappearance of her husband Mrs. Reijnhart has been restless and miserable. She finally decided to go alone and search for him, believing that her knowledge of the country and the language will enable her to succeed where others might fail.

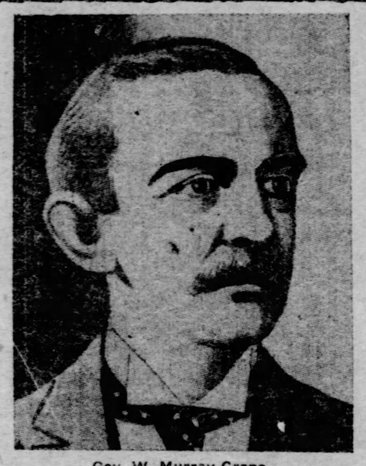
Wilson Has a Campaign Cold.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—Secretary Wilson is confined to his home by a severe neuralgic cold, which has developed since the recent political campaign in which the secretary took an active part.

GOV. CRANE OF MASSACHUSETTS LIKELY TO SUCCEED SECRETARY SHAW

Boston, Nov. 16.—(Special.)—Private information comes from Washington that Gov. W. Murray Crane of Massachusetts is to enter President Roosevelt's cabinet, succeeding Secretary Shaw, who will be given a post as ambassador at some European court. Just when this change will take place is not stated, but the belief is that just as soon as a foreign post is open the place will be tendered to Secretary Shaw and the way thus made smooth for Gov. Crane.

While the administration is undoubtedly pleased with the way the Iowan has shaken up the dry bones in his department, notably in the customs service, he has brought about some daring innovations in financial methods that have made conservative bankers of the country shake in their shoes, and some pressure has been brought to bear by these interests for more conservatism in the treasury department.



Gov. W. Murray Crane.

They feel that it would be wiser to have at the head of the treasury department a man whose name is a synonym for conservatism and safety in the American financial world, and Gov. Crane is so regarded by financial leaders.

ONE OF THE FLOWERS IS SORELY STRICKEN

Paralysis Breaks Up Duo That Has Amused Thousands in New York.

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU, Herald Building, Herald Square. NEW YORK, Nov. 16.

Little Eddie Flowers will never again sing duets with his mother, if the diagnosis of the doctors at Bellevue is correct. For the last four months "the two Flowers" have been familiar figures in vaudeville houses, singing sentimental ballads. But now the duo is broken up. Mrs. Flowers was taken to the hospital today, one side of her body stricken with paralysis.

Eddie went to Bellevue to see his mother, accompanied by Mrs. Bristow, a neighbor, who has taken charge of him. The little fellow was almost heartbroken.

"Mother and I used to sing 'When the Roses Bloom Again,'" said the little fellow, "and 'Stars and Stripes' and 'Molly Shannon,' and then I'd sing a solo called 'Wait.' But for five weeks we haven't been able to do anything, for mother was ill and at last she couldn't even write."

According to the little boy, who is remarkably precocious, though not yet 14 years old, he and his mother came here from Chicago four months ago. They had been singing there, but expected to better their prospects here.

ASKS NEW TRIAL.

Lawyer Patrick Alleges Conspiracy Between Rice's Texas Heirs and District Attorney's Office.

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—(Special.)—The World this morning says:

Application will be made to Recorder Goff in general sessions tomorrow by the attorneys for Albert C. Patrick, asking that he be given a new trial.

This will be unlike the usual and formal applications of this sort in that it will be accompanied by affidavits aggregating 10,000 words in volume, and reciting that many new facts have been discovered purporting to show that a conspiracy has existed between the Rice heirs in Texas and the district attorney's office.

John C. Tomlinson and Francis L. Wellman of counsel for Patrick yesterday refused to outline the nature of their affidavits further than stated.

Patrick is now in the death chamber of Sing Sing under sentence to be electrocuted.

On his return to Paris M. Huret will write a series of articles on these subjects.

JUSTICE SMITH MAY REMAIN ON THE BENCH

Gov. Stone Says He Hopes the Judge Has Recovered His Health, but Thinks Commission Should Make an Examination.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

Harrisburg, Nov. 16.—"I hope that Judge Smith has recovered his health and that he will be able hereafter to attend to his judicial duties," said Gov. Stone tonight in speaking of Superior Court Judge Peter P. Smith's statement that his health is good and that he sees no reason for retiring under the judges' retirement act at half pay for the remainder of his term.

"The mere attendance at court occasionally is not, however, a performance of judicial duties within the meaning of the act," continued the governor. "The inability to substantially perform his judicial duties for so long a time justifies the appointment of the commission, and, inasmuch as the commission has been appointed and no questions can be raised as to their fairness, impartiality and ability, I think it better that they be permitted now to make their examination and report, which, if favorable to Judge Smith, will benefit as well as relieve the impression that now prevails that he is incapacitated.

"Certainly, if incapacitated, it is no hardship to a judge to be retired on half salary. That privilege is not permitted to any other public servant of the state."

Scranton, Nov. 16.—With reference to the appointment of a commission to inquire into the condition of his health and ascertain whether or not his disability is permanent, Judge P. P. Smith of the superior court made the following statement:

"I see by the newspapers that I am to be examined, under the act of 1901, with reference to my capacity for the performance of my official duties. This really appears somewhat premature, since the period of one year, specified by that act as a prerequisite, has not expired since my last performance of judicial duties."

CHEATS PENITENTIARY BY STARVATION ROUTE

Texan Accused of Forgery Refuses to Eat and Death Nolles Case.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

PARIS, TEX., Nov. 16.—Forest Arnold, accused of forgery and attempting to pass forged checks, committted suicide in jail here by starvation.

There were no less than 12 counts against Arnold in the indictment brought against him, and as the evidence seemed to be overwhelming, he declared to some of his companions in jail that he was determined that he would not go to the penitentiary.

Three weeks before his trial came up he refused to eat. Day by day he became weaker, but with the exception of an occasional drink of water his fast remained unbroken. When his case was called for trial he was so weak he could not stand alone. A physician was appointed to investigate his case and reported that the man had no fever and no apparent illness.

A few days later Arnold died. The jailer is positive that his unusual prisoner died of slow starvation.

FIVE LIVES LOST ON THE RAILROADS

Coroner's Deputies Had a Busy Day Investigating Violent Deaths.

The coroner and deputies investigated a number of violent deaths yesterday, most of the victims having been struck by trains. C. Fedor of Homestead was killed by a P., V. & C. train on McClure avenue, Homestead, while walking on the track.

Frank L. Nelson, a Swedish millworker, was out hunting near Wilson station, on the P., V. & C. railroad. He was walking along the tracks, looking for birds in the adjoining fields, and was struck by a train and instantly killed.

J. C. Dunbar, a Duquesne paperhanger, 50 years old, and married, died at his home. Three weeks ago he fell on the street, injuring his spine, and his system was so run down from sickness he did not recover from the shock.

A man, who from papers found in his pocket, is supposed to be Robert Bazzani, a coal miner, employed by the Peoples Coal Company, was struck by a train near Manown and instantly killed. The coroner's office was notified of the death and of the fact that the body was at Frank Bebout's undertaking establishment, in Monongahela, outside Allegheny county. It was learned that Bebout had seen the body lying near the tracks. He waited a long time, expecting the railroad company to remove it, but as no motion was to that end, he had the body, for decency's sake, lifted and taken to his establishment, across the county line.

Carlisle G. Jones of Sheridan, a brakeman, fell from the tender of an engine on the Ohio Connecting railroad yesterday and was run over. The accident happened at 11 p. m. on Saturday, and he died yesterday afternoon at the West Penn hospital.

Frank L. Canton, aged 32, while walking with three comrades along the tracks of the P., V. & C. railroad Saturday, was struck by a freight train and instantly killed. The remains were put on the train and taken to Dravosburg, and from there to McKeesport. The young men were out hunting and the other three had been walking ahead of Canton. The funeral will be held tomorrow.

SUICIDE IN PARK

Policeman Is Attracted by Pistol Shot and Finds Man Dying. Not Identified.

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—(Special.)—The American this morning says: The report of a pistol shot last night in Morningside park, drew Policeman Feist to the west side path, where he found a prosperous looking man dying with a bullet hole in his right temple.

Feist called an ambulance from J. Hood Wright hospital, but before it arrived the man was dead.

On the body were no means or identification. The man was about 40 years old, 5 feet 7 inches in height, weighing 150 pounds.

Molineux Says Goodby to Keeper.

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—(Special.)—Roland B. Molineux was a caller at the Tombs last night at 10 o'clock to bid goodby to James Fields, head night keeper. He remained about half an hour, during which time he had a pleasant chat with the keepers in the prison.

SOLDIERS ACCUSED OF ATTACK ON GIRL

Attempt to Abduct Mattie Osgood of Boston Prevented by Screams.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

BOSTON, MASS., Nov. 16.—The Revere police are looking for the Fort Warren soldiers, who are supposed to have been the attempted abductors of handsome Mattie Osgood. The girl is mature for her years, and, being an athlete of note, has posed for artists seeking such models. The attempted abduction occurred about 7:45 yesterday.

Miss Osgood, handsome, 16 years old, was in her home on Winthrop avenue alone. To a knock at the door she responded and found two men, one of whom threw a gunny sack over her head. Then the men seized her and dragged her across the street to a field nearly opposite. One of her assailants pointed a revolver and threatened to kill her if she screamed.

She did scream, however, and fought so vigorously that she was dropped by the men, who fled into the darkness.

The girl made her way back to the house, where her parents had by that time arrived. She was hysterical. Her clothing was disarranged and one shoe and one stocking were missing.

As soon as she could give any details of the assault, her parents summoned aid, and after a vain search for the men, returned with the missing shoe and stocking, which seemed to have been torn from the girl during the struggle.

From her description of the men there is reason to believe they came from the fort. They are allowed to wear civilian clothing when on 24-hour leave.

SOCIALISTS WANT PLACE.

Will Fight for Increase of Number of Members of Federation of Labor Executive Council.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 16.—There is a strong probability that the executive council of the American Federation of Labor will be enlarged from 9 to 11 members at the present convention, and that one of the additional members will be a representative of the socialist wing.

The socialists claim they control nearly one-third of the votes cast in the convention, and feel fairly confident of getting one man into the board.

W. E. Kennedy, general organizer of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, has prepared a resolution, which he expects will raise something of a breeze upon the floor of the convention. It is to the effect that the present local government of the District of Columbia is antique and obsolete, and that the residents of the District should be allowed to vote.

MOROCCO PRETENDER CAPTURED NEAR FEZ

TANGIERS, MOROCCO, Nov. 16.—According to a report from Fez, the imperial troops have succeeded in capturing the pretender to the throne. It is stated that the sultan, at the head of an army of 25,000 men, will direct in person the operations to put down the uprising of the Kabyle tribesmen at Zemour.

CHURCH EMPLOYED DETECTIVE IN CASE

Disguised as a Negro He Visited a Speakeasy and Got Evidence.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

IRWIN, PA., Nov. 16.—The case brought by Private Detective Leo Medener against Daisy Nichols and Charles Holt for running a speakeasy at Trafford City was heard before 'Squire Howell Saturday evening. Medener went on the stand and in answer to the question said that he was commissioned to play the role of detective at a church meeting held at Stewarts station which was called to take steps to rid the town of the illegal liquor traffic being carried on there.

He next detailed how he got evidence against the accused. He stated that he went to Pittsburgh and purchased burnt cork and last Sunday he blackened his face and hands and put on a suit of old clothes. Thus disguised he took a friend with him and went to the house presided over by Holt and the Nichols woman.

Here they purchased several bottles of beer. Medener had several witnesses and he made out a pretty strong case. Holt was held for court under $500 bail, but the woman was discharged.

WELL PAID BACK.

Police Sergeant Befriends Two Soldiers, Who Remember Him After Return from the Philippines.

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—(Special.)—The World this morning says:

Sergt. John Daly had his nose down so close to the blotter yesterday afternoon that he did not notice two soldiers of the regular army who entered the East Thirty-fifth station house and stood in front of his desk. Then there was a plunk, and something fell on the desk.

"There is a present for you, sergeant," said one of the soldiers, who wore the stripes of a sergeant. "That's a Filipino bolo."

"And here is something else," said the other soldier, a corporal, as he threw down before the astonished sergeant a finely chased gold and stone talisman, used in Mindanao island in religious ceremonies.

"You don't remember the $2 you loaned us long ago, do you?" asked the corporal, as he laid down a bright $5 gold piece. "Here they are back, with interest."

Then Daly remembered that one night before the Spanish war two privates had called on him with a "hard luck story" and he had given $2 to them. They were just back from the Philippines.

PERISHABLES BARRED.

Pennsylvania Road Will Not Handle Cabbage and Apple Shipments While Congestion Lasts.

ALTOONA, PA., Nov. 16.—(Special.)—The freight congestion on the Pittsburgh division of the Pennsylvania railroad has become so bad that it required a meeting here all day of many officials of the road to prepare a plan to handle the immense amount of traffic. General Manager J. B. Hutchinson and the transportation officials attached to the general superintendent's office at this city, together with Superintendent Tramp of Pittsburgh, have been in consultation.

The division freight agent has been directed to issue an order that no more cabbage or apples will be handled for eastern shipment by the company until further orders. Other classes of freight may have to be treated the same way until the blockade is broken. The conference continues tomorrow.

COAL MEN WILL SUFFER A LOSS OF $2,000,000

Freight Blockade Leaves Them Far Short on Lake Contracts.

MEANS FAMINE TO NORTHWEST

Record Freight Traffic Yesterday Makes Little Impression on Blockade.

ALL HANDS HARD AT WORK

That there will be a coal famine in the northwest this winter is as certain as the nose on one's face. There will be untold suffering and there were vociferous wailings over the prospective conditions months before the settlement of the anthracite region strike and the present cries are not new. These conditions in the northwest come home to Pittsburgh in that the rail shippers from this district will in about a fortnight end their season of lake shipments and find themselves short 15,000,000 tons on their contracts.

Figuring for value of these contracts as carrying most of the best lump coal it means a loss in gross earnings to the Pittsburgh producers of $2,000,000. Of course some of this will be made up by all-rail shipments to the same markets, but nearer fields will have a prior call. In years gone by the shortage in deliveries of Pittsburgh coal over the lakes for the northwest has been as high as 1,000,000 tons, but it never reached the figures of this year, swelled by the transportation blockades and the car, or most probably, motive power and track shortage.

Coal Will Be Higher Next Season.

Yet all this will hardly figure as a loss to the Pittsburgh Coal Company and other lake shippers. When the new contracts are being closed, about the first of the new year, the general capacity of coal supply will be at its height and some districts there will be increased freight rates to figure in closing the contracts at prices which will undoubtedly be much higher than those of this year. Next year will be the harvest for the coal producers.

There is no anthracite in the northwest. A few cargoes are on their way across the lakes, but these will only be a drop in the bucket, requirements considered. They will simply make trouble for the big distributing centers, notably Chicago, which is looked to by the dealers in hundreds of western cities for their supplies. Stories are brought here from these places that dealers are calling for a few cars in eloquent pleading or exhortation that is emphatic. The farmers of Illinois will be burning their fine harvest of corn this winter.

Freight Congestion Causes Idleness.

Right now there are of the 200 mines of the Pittsburgh district which contribute to the coal supply of the northwest many standing idle and on the whole the production is not over 50 per cent of the normal output by reason of the car shortage. The domestic trade of Pittsburgh is past the danger of famine. The open weather has given time to prevent this. Yards of the retailers are well filled and except for higher prices the poor of the Pittsburgh district will not be exposed to suffering.

Coal operators declare that there is no general relief for the markets outside that are calling to Pittsburgh except at high rivers. With a good barge stage about 20,000,000 bushels of river coal can be started down the rivers and much of this will be stopped at the elevators instead of going on for the markets of New Orleans. At Cincinnati, Louisville and other points, there are empty elevators waiting for this coal. With these points outside of the zone of the Pittsburgh traffic congestion, they can load more cars for the tributary consuming trade.

Many shippers here are inclined to accept the situation with equanimity. One of the heaviest said yesterday, "We know that the railroads are doing all they can and we have to make the best of it."

Yesterday's Extraordinary Work.

Leading transportation officials of Pittsburgh railroads were at their desks yesterday and extraordinary methods were adopted to relieve the blockaded yards. Some of these officials said yesterday that more freight was being moved than on any Sunday in the history of the railroads. Yet it will only partly relieve.

One of the transportation officials of the Pennsylvania railroad, who does not want his name to appear in this connection, said:

"Everybody is working hard to master the conditions. Our movement today has been tremendous and of record proportions, yet I hesitate to speak of results. It may be possible to say more tomorrow. While we moved much that had accumulated, much more from outlying points is moving toward us and the advance is that we may have is an uncertain quantity.

"Our embargo on some few lines of perishable freight could only be raised. It is a usual move at such times, but the consignees, who in many cases are unwilling to help us by taking consignments away in reasonable time, should have expected it."

Michael Trump, general superintendent of transportation of the Pennsylvania railroad, who was here for several days last week in conference with R. Emmerson, general superintendent of the Pittsburgh district terminals for the Pennsylvania system, and division superintendents, has left for his headquarters in Philadelphia. On the way he had a conference with General Manager J. B. Hutchinson at Altoona in reference to relieving the congestion.

PRESIDENT FEASTS ON BEAR AND 'POSSUM

Not Enough Knives and Forks to Go Around Whole Party, but "Colonel and Foreign Gentlemen" Are Supplied.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

Smedes, Miss., Nov. 16.—Sunday was a quiet day at the president's camp on the Little Sunflower. There was no hunt, but the president and several members of the party spent a couple of hours rambling over the forest trails on their horses.

Dinner was the chief event of the day. The menu included roast bear paws, 'possum and sweet potatoes. Dinner was served in camp style on a rough pine board table set up in the open air. Tin plates and tin cups were used. There were not enough knives and forks to go around, and the colored cook announced, to the amusement of everybody, as the party sat down that on account of the scarcity of the articles he had distributed them only to the "colonel," as the president is invariably called in camp, and the "foreign gentlemen."

The president is enjoying his outing very much. He has not had three days of such complete freedom and rest since he entered the White House.

The Chicago party which is hunting with Bob Bobo's pack of hounds 70 miles north of here is reported to have had better luck than the president's party, according to a message received here today. The party during the last week bagged eleven deer and four bears.

Holt Collier's dander is up and he vows that the "colonel" shall not go home empty-handed. His dogs have had a good rest today, and will be in fine condition to resume the chase tomorrow. The weather tonight, however, is not favorable. It has turned colder and rain is falling.

STABBED IN LEG, BLEEDS TO DEATH

Quarrel Between Italians in Schoenville Ends in Murder.

LANDLORD CUTS GUEST

Two Stories Are Told of the Affray—According to One of Them the Murderer Was Enraged By Assault on His Wife.

With a mortal wound in his body and bleeding to death, Antonio Spinello, an Italian recently arrived in this country, was led about for a half mile or more near Schoenville on Saturday night in search of a doctor. While Spinello was seeking relief his assailant, Leo Cosmi, found safety in flight. From all accounts, Spinello had precipitated the fight in which he was injured, and the fatal wound was only to be expected. So say his companions, who are well acquainted with the character of Cosmi.

Eleven Italians, Slavs and Portuguese, who were present during the fracas are confined in jail as witnesses for the coroner's inquest. They are charged only with disorderly conduct and are held in default of $100 bail. A warrant is out for Cosmi, but there is small hope of catching him, unless he sends home for some of the money that his boarders owe him, and the police are thereby led to his place of concealment.

Two Stories of Stabbing.

Cosmi keeps a boarding house at No. 2 Ohio street, Preston, or Schoenville, a village established by the Pressed Steel Car Company below McKees Rocks.

Two stories are told of the stabbing. One was brought up by John Kerr, the deputy coroner, who got it in Schoenville. The other is told by the coal and iron police. According to the latter, Spinello had been drunk all day and annoyed the other boarders so much that Mrs. Cosmi remonstrated with him. This infuriated Spinello and he threatened to kill Mrs. Cosmi, who took refuge with a neighbor.

Cosmi was at work. At 10 p. m. he came home. Mrs. Cosmi was waiting in the doorstep and went into the house with him. As soon as they crossed the threshold, Spinello hit Mrs. Cosmi, who was in a delicate condition, on the head with a beer bottle, and she fell to the floor unconscious. Cosmi, enraged, picked up a butcher knife and went for Spinello.

Wound Was in Thigh.

The men grappled and rolled on the floor, Cosmi finally stabbing Spinello in the thigh. Cosmi rolled Spinello off and dashed out the door, threatening to kill any one who interfered with him. Spinello ran for two blocks, but fell to the ground and the boarders brought him back to the house. Dr. L. D. Shang was sent for and ordered Spinello taken to the McKees Rocks hospital, where he died of loss of blood at 8:30 a. m. yesterday.

Deputy Coroner Kerr's story is different. He says Cosmi and his boarders were drinking and carousing. Spinello had been in this country only six weeks. He was one of 13 men who were enjoying themselves in the boarding house. Spinello and Cosmi quarreled and Spinello threw the contents of a glass of beer in Cosmi's face. The landlord in turn became angry and reviled Spinello, who threw a bottle of beer at him. Cosmi also drew a dagger from his waistband and struck Spinello in the leg. Spinello fell across the table, but staggered to his feet again, and was caught up and supported by some of the boarders. The blood spurted in a stream from his leg, and Cosmi, seizing his hat, ran out of the house.

Artery Was Severed.

Taking turns in supporting him, four men escorted Spinello out of the house and wandered about with him seeking a doctor. None could be found and the man was taken back to the house, whence he was sent to the McKees Rocks hospital. He died at 8:30 a. m. yesterday. The dagger had severed the femoral artery.

The coal and iron police in the employ of the Pressed Steel Car Company investigated the matter after Spinello was dead, and 11 men who had witnessed the fracas were arrested and committed to the county jail by Justice of the Peace F. F. Engel of McKees Rocks, on oath of William McDonough, who charged them with disorderly conduct. The bail was fixed at $100 each. The men all declare that Cosmi did the stabbing and related the story substantially as told. They are John Fristac, "Jim" Glatcher, Jesse Demmo, "Sam" Skip, Dominick Skip, Frank Cousin, "Jim" Ross, John Carri, Carmen Cora and Jose Garcia. Late last night an Italian appeared at Cosmi's house. Suspecting he had come after Cosmi's clothes and money, the police arrested him, but he said he did not know where Cosmi was.

CORED BANKERS' TRUST.

Head of National Grange Declares Functions of Rural Communities Are Being Encroached Upon.

LANSING, MICH., Nov. 16.—Impressive exercises were held by the National Grange in Representative hall today, in memory of the members of that body who have died within the past year. Eulogies were pronounced for the following, who were either masters of state granges or the wives of masters: J. C. Allinghast, Rhode Island; H. E. Huxley, Wisconsin; Mrs. D. H. Thing, Maine; Alpha Messer, Vermont; Mrs. S. E. Bowles, Connecticut; H. O. Devries, Mrs. C. S. Wasson.

Aaron Jones, master of the grange, at today's session severely scored what he termed the most gigantic of all monopolies, the proposed bankers' trust. He spoke in the program advocated at New Orleans last week by some members of the bankers' association for the creation of a system of branch banking, an encroachment upon the functions of rural communities of vast and serious import. He advocates the establishing of rural loan and trust companies, the growth of which in Indiana, he says, has been phenomenal in the last two years.

CELEBRATES ITS FIFTIETH YEAR

Sewickley M. E. Church Observes a Golden Jubilee.

EVENTS IN ITS HISTORY

Was Built in 1837, but Not Incorporated Until November 13, 1852—Circuit Riders Served It For Years.

Large crowds attended the three services in the Sewickley Methodist Episcopal church yesterday in celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the incorporation of the church. Special music was prepared for all the services.

In the morning Sylvester Ritchey and Jesse Venning read historical addresses which they had prepared from the old records of the church. The first church was built in 1837, but was not incorporated until 15 years later, and the incorporators included the Rev. John White, father of the late Judge J. W. F. White; the Rev. Charles Thorn, father of Mrs. J. W. F. White; John Garrison, Joseph Wright, William Reno, Philo Goff, J. P. Kramer, Mr. Gray, the Rev. Robert Hopkins, J. W. F. White, D. N. White, Bruce Tracy, Ralph Johnston and John Johnston. The society grew and prospered, the Rev. John White, a circuit rider, being the first minister, Sewickley being on a circuit until 1859, when it was made a regular charge by the Pittsburgh conference, and the following ministers have occupied its pulpits as such: 1859, D. A. McCready; 1860-61, H. W. Baker; 1862-63, S. Y. Kennedy; 1864-66, W. H. Locke; 1867-68, Joseph Home; 1868-71, C. A. Holmes; 1872-74, J. R. Mills; 1875-76, A. L. Petty; 1877-78, T. H. Watkins; 1879-81, William Lynch; 1882-84, M. J. Sleppy; 1885-86, J. W. Miles; 1887-88, J. H. Woodring; 1889-90, J. L. Bracken; 1891-95, W. S. Chapman; 1896, John J. Hill.

The records contain many interesting accounts of the trials and hardships endured by the church through its earlier history. The society has a handsome edifice of brick and stone on the same site as the first little frame building, is free from debt, with a membership of 570 and in every way a successful organization.

In the afternoon was held a Sunday school rally, and a great number of officers, teachers and scholars identified in earlier years with the school were present. In the evening Joseph Home and S. Y. Kennedy, among the earliest pastors of the church, were present, and gave entertaining addresses, and letters were read from ex-pastors, as follows: W. H. Locke, J. R. Mills, A. L. Petty, M. J. Sleppy, J. W. Miles, T. H. Watkins and W. S. Chapman.

The decorations in the church were quite elaborate, palms, ferns, chrysanthemums being used, with autumnal decorations of corn and other grains. November 13 was the exact day for the celebration, but it was deferred until yesterday.

FLY'S BITE CAUSES DEATH OF LITTLE BOY

Head, Neck and Limbs Swell to Twice Their Normal Size.

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU, Herald Building, Herald Square, NEW YORK, Nov. 16.

Herman Kaufman, the 3-year-old son of James Kaufman, a tobacco dealer of 859 Caldwell avenue, the Bronx, died today in agony from the effects of a fly bite inflicted last Wednesday.

On that day the child complained to its mother of pain in its left cheek, and examination revealed a slight eruption near the nose. It was nothing, seemingly, to be alarmed about, and Mrs. Kaufman merely bathed it with camphor.

A few hours later the small spot developed to a swelling which extended over the entire cheek, and before evening one eye was closed and the infection had spread to the right cheek.

Dr. A. A. Richardson tried in many ways to check the growth of the swelling, without result. From the face the swelling extended to the neck, and thence to the breast and arms. This morning, the head, neck and limbs having expanded to twice their normal size, the child died.

The death certificate ascribed septicaemia as the cause of death, but the board of health was not satisfied, and notified Coroner's Physician Riegelman to make an investigation. From one of the other Kaufman children Dr. Riegelman learned that on Wednesday afternoon, while the children were in the vicinity of a sheep's carcass, not far from the house, a blue bottle fly struck little Herman on the face.

Poison carried by the fly may have infected the child and caused the swelling which resulted in death, said Dr. Riegelman. It was his opinion, however, that the fly which bit the child had a short time before bit someone who was suffering from erysipelas, and that the disease in malignant form was transmitted.

ROBBED VASSAR GIRL.

"Handy Man" Caught With Jewels in His Pocket While Protesting His Innocence.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Nov. 16.—(Special.)—By the arrest of Vene Gildersleeve, a telephone lineman, the mystery of a series of robberies in Vassar college have been cleared up. Gildersleeve, besides being a lineman, was employed as a "handy man" around the college.

When arrested he indignantly declared his innocence, but while he was protesting Chief McCabe took from the man's pocket a diamond, which was stolen from Miss Lucy Atwater of this city, and the loss of which had been reported to the police.

In another pocket the chief found a $1,000 ring which was stolen from the room of Miss Williams of Stamford, Conn., at the college.

"I suppose I will have to stand for it," said Gildersleeve, who made a clean breast of his crimes.

At a pawnbroker's in this city Chief McCabe today recovered a ring set with sapphire and two diamonds, worth $1,000, and a gold watch valued at $400, both belonging to Miss Williams. Articles of jewelry valued in all at $2,000 were recovered.

MARIETTA'S NEW COURT HOUSE ADDS BEAUTY TO THE CITY.

Marietta, Nov. 16.—(Special.)—With impressive ceremonies Washington county's new temple of justice was dedicated Saturday. The principal speaker of the day was Attorney A. D. Follett, one of the leading attorneys of the Washington county bar. He spoke on the historical evolution of the court in the great northwestern territory. Judge Hiram L. Sibley spoke on "A Place for Courts." L. W. Ellenwood concluded the exercises by a speech on the "Court House Ring." The structure cost $200,000. It is built of Indiana limestone, Italian renaissance style, with Corinthian ornaments and pillars. The mural decorations are especially fine. The second and third stories are occupied by the county offices and the fourth story by a steel prison, with separate compartments for the male and female prisoners.

STREET CAR BOYCOTT STARTS THIS MORNING

As Great Army of Workers Stay Out at Schnectady Tug of War Begins.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Nov. 16.—With eager interest the citizens of Schenectady await the result of the first day's boycott of the Schenectady Railway Company, ordered by the labor unions because non-union labor was employed by a sub-contractor.

The boycott will go into effect at midnight tonight, but the real test will begin about 6 o'clock tomorrow morning, when the great army of wage earners will start for the shops. Then the pickets will begin their work of asking the thousands of men and women who depend upon the cars not to use them.

James O. Carr, the secretary of the Schenectady Railway Company, said tonight:

"I really know very little about this boycott except what I have read in the papers. The other people are the aggressors in the matter and it is unnecessary for us to act till we are compelled to do so. We have not made any preparations for the boycott, but we will undoubtedly meet any developments that may come up."

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 16.—Gov. Odell said tonight that a thorough investigation of the labor situation in Schenectady would be made at once by the state authorities. "The matter has just been brought to my attention officially," said Gov. Odell, "and I have not had time to investigate the situation, but I will make a careful and thorough investigation at once."

LET THINGS FALL.

Laborers Careless of Those Beneath Likely to Cause Strike on New Williamsburg Bridge.

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—(Special.)—There may be a strike of iron workers on the new Williamsburg bridge tomorrow unless the Roebling Sons' Company withdraw several laborers who were employed at $2 a day to remove the dismantled foot bridge structures under the supervision of some bridge workers.

About 400 iron workers are employed on the structural steel work underneath the foot bridge. These men say the laborers are careless and many pieces of timber and bits have been let fall.

It was the intention of the iron workers to go on strike yesterday, but Samuel Parks, a walking delegate of the Housesmiths' and Bridgemen's union, advised them to wait until he had made an investigation. The Roebling company kept the laborers at work yesterday, but today only regular bridge workers will be employed, at double pay.

Colorado People Propose National Board to be Appointed By President.

DENVER, COL., Nov. 16.—Through the instrumentality of the Colorado Humane society, Colorado's representatives in congress will introduce at the next session a bill creating a national bureau of child and animal protection.

The idea is to establish a national body to do work throughout the country, similar to that now accomplished by state organizations. The bill as prepared is to create a board of three, to be appointed by the president, to meet at Washington.

A secretary is provided for, with a salary of $1,800, and an office at Washington.

ENGLISH LABOR AND CAPITAL TO UNITE

Civic Federation Will Be Formed Upon the American Plan.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 16.—The delegation of English workingmen visiting this country to study industrial conditions in the United States spent the day in this city sightseeing. Tonight a meeting was held in the dining room of the Forest City House, at which were present Sir Alfred Mosely, Senator Hanna, Congressman Burton, Harvey D. Goulder, president of the Cleveland chamber of commerce, and Mayor Johnson. There was an informal discussion of labor topics.

As a result of the meeting between Senator Hanna and Sir Alfred Mosely the latter makes the announcement that England will have a national civic federation after the plan of the American organization of that name. The purpose will be the same, to bring labor and capital into more pleasant relations.

W. C. Stedman, a former member of parliament, was robbed of £22 in English sovereigns while asleep in his hotel this morning by a sneak thief. The police were put on the case, but have not as yet made any arrest. Prominent local labor leaders were with the visitors from across the water and did their share in entertaining them.

PENNSY BUYS LAND.

At Least People of Woodside, L. I., Lay Big Purchases at Door of Big Railroad.

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—(Special.)—There is much speculation among the real estate owners in Woodside, L. I., as to the identity of the parties who are buying up all the real estate in that place in the vicinity of the Long Island railroad.

George C. Clay, a real estate broker, of Long Island City, is the purchasing agent in most of these sales, but he refuses to disclose the identity of the real purchasers.

It is said the Pennsylvania Railroad Company is the purchaser of the land and that in this place they intend to build a larger depot and lay more tracks. Woodside is the first station near the entrance of the projected tunnel from Long Island City to Manhattan and the imaginations of the residents, are, perhaps, correct.

Another story that is freely circulated and known to come from a good source, is that the Pennsylvania railroad intends building a spur and double track from Woodside, through North Woodside, Woodside Heights and Astoria, and there at the river front build a bridge or another tunnel, so that the road will connect with the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad.

HUSKING FOR CHARITY.

Women Thus Secure Value of Load of Corn for Church Expenses.

GALESBURG, ILL., Nov. 16.—(Special.)—The women of the Methodist church of Altoona have adopted a novel method for raising money for church expenses. The start was made yesterday, when 16 of them proceeded to the farm of J. F. Hear, and, notwithstanding a heavy rain, shucked a large wagon load of corn.

They drove to town and sold the corn at current prices. A large company watched the shucking and encouraged the women, who hope in this way to realize enough to meet obligations.

TURTLE DEAD AFTER HE HAD FASTED FOUR YEARS

Brunswick, Me., Nov. 16.—(Special.)—Prof. Leslie A. Lee of the Bowdoin scientific school, Bowdoin university, is mourning the loss by death of his big turtle, which died today after a fast of four years and four months. The animal has been confined in a large glass tank since his capture.

Although fresh food, such as turtles should eat, has been placed in his tank every day, he has refused to touch it, and has relied upon the daily supply of fresh water for sustenance. The cause of his death will be determined by autopsy, as starvation is not believed to have ended the fast. Prof. Lee declares this story to be true.

MANY VACANCIES IN COMMITTEES

Next Speaker of House Will Have Large Number of Plums to Hand Out.

GOOD MEN DEFEATED

Failure of Members to Return Leaves Many Chairmanships to Be Filled—Cannon Is Using Them in Effort to Win Votes.

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU, 603 Fifteenth St., N. W., WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 16.

Whoever is elected speaker of the next house will have a number of fine committee appointments to make without disturbing the present membership of the committees. This is due to the fact that some chairmanships will be vacant owing to the failure of the present incumbents to be returned.

Probably the most important is that of chairman of the committee on public buildings and grounds, now held by Representative Mercer of Omaha, who was defeated for re-election. Representative Gillett of the Elmira, N. Y., district is the ranking member and will undoubtedly be given the chairmanship. The chairmanship of the committee on postroads and postoffices will also be vacant, due to the retirement of Representative Loud of San Francisco, and this will also go to a New Yorker, the veteran, Gen. Ketcham, who is the ranking member.

The transfer of Representative Ray of New York to the bench makes vacant the chairmanship of the committee on judiciary, and he will probably be succeeded by Representative Jenkins of Wisconsin, the ranking member.

Tayler Makes a Place.

Representative Mann of Illinois is in line for the chairmanship of elections committee No. 1 by the retirement of Representative Tayler of Ohio, and Representative Driscoll of Syracuse, N. Y., for the chairmanship of elections committee No. 3, by the retirement of Representative Weeks of Michigan. Representative Gill of Ohio, although virtually a new member, is the ranking member for the chairmanship of the committee on manufactures, due to the retirement of Representatives Steele of Indiana and Emerson of New York, while the triple retirement of Representatives Grow and Jack of Pennsylvania and Knox of Massachusetts, makes Representative Tirrell of Massachusetts eligible for the chairmanship of the committee on education.

Another triple retirement of ranking members, Representatives Eddy of Minnesota, Connell of Pennsylvania and Sheldon of Michigan, gives Representative Moody of Oregon the right to the chairmanship of the committee on mines and mining.

To Watch the Patents.

Representative Tompkins of New York is in line for the chairmanship of the committee on patents, because of the retirement of Representatives Corliss of Michigan and Reaves of Illinois, while Representative Hamilton of Michigan will probably become chairman of the committee on territories on account of the retirement of Representative Knox of Massachusetts.

Representative Adams of Philadelphia will probably be the next chairman of the committee on immigration, which will be vacant on account of the retirement of Representative Shattuck of Cincinnati.

The result of the speakership contest will undoubtedly make a number of changes due to deals. For instance, Mr. Cannon of Illinois has promised the chairmanship of the committee on appropriations to Representative Hemenway of Indiana, although Gen. Bingham of Philadelphia is the ranking member and "the father of the house." The success of Representative Babcock would make vacant the important chairmanship of the committee on the District of Columbia, while the success of Representative Burton of Ohio would make a place as chairman of the very important committee on rivers and harbors, and for this Representative Dovener of West Virginia would be the ranking member.

LABOR BECOMES ANXIOUS.

Central Union in New York Wants to Know What Has Become of Mayor of Tampa.

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—(Special.)—President Roosevelt will receive a sharp letter from the Central Federation Union of labor organizations of New York in a day or two, asking him what has become of the commissioner he sent to Tampa, Fla., to investigate and report on the kidnaping of Tampa's mayor, who sympathized with the striking cigar makers of that place.

The delegates to the Central Federation at their meeting today thought it was about time something was heard from the president.

They instructed the secretary to write him a letter calling his attention to the outrage that had been committed against men in Tampa for merely trying to better their condition.

CREATES SCENE IN CHURCH.

Young Woman Suffers from Religious Mania During Sunday Worship.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—(Special.)—Suffering from religious mania, a pretty and expensively gowned young woman created a disturbance at the morning services in the Holy Trinity Episcopal church at One Hundred and Twenty-second street and Lenox avenue, the congregation of which includes many of the wealthiest and most fashionable families in Harlem, today.

She had to be carried bodily from the chancel rail to the women's reception room by the vergers. She is about 20 years old and her parents are said to be wealthy and of social prominence. Those connected with the church decline to give her name or her residence.

TRIAL FOR BRIBERY.

Cases of Alleged Boodlers to Come Up This Week.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 16.—Circuit Attorney Folk, who has returned from Columbia, Mo., where he prosecuted the case against Col. Ed Butler, who was convicted of attempted bribery, is preparing for the trial of other alleged boodlers next week.

The cases against Charles A. Gutke, T. Ed Albright, Adolph Madera, Charles J. Denny, Emil Hartmann, John A. Sheridan and Julius Lehmann, former delegates, on the charge of bribery in connection with the Suburban Street Railway Company franchise deal, are docketed for trial tomorrow.

SALOONS CAN BE CLOSED.

Police Captains Show How This Can Be Done.

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 16.—The five police captains who are to be retired on January 1, by the order of Director Dunn, are showing how to close the saloons in this city today. Thirty arrests were made up to midnight, an unusually large number. There is a policeman stationed at the entrance to every prominent downtown saloon, and no admittance is permitted.

GHOSTLY FORM APPEARS AND WHOLE TOWN QUAKES

Cleveland, Nov. 16.—(Special.)—Berea, near Cleveland, is terrorized by a ghost. It appears every night in a deserted graveyard and has frightened many of the superstitious. Many are the explanations offered, but none seem to quiet the minds of the residents.

The form assumes various shapes. To some it looks like the traditional sheeted ghost, while to others it seems but a phantom head. No two agree concerning the aspect of the apparition, but all are of one mind that it is something supernatural.

The dwellers in that part of town, most of whom are superstitious Poles, arrange their affairs so that they can pass the cemetery by day, and even then they move with hastened footsteps and sidelong glances. Nothing on earth would induce them to venture past at night.

NEW YORK BOWS TO KING HORSE

Annual Show Opens in Madison Square Garden To-Day Better Than Ever.

WHITNEY IS ELOQUENT

Talks to Stockholders at Dinner Over Which Cornelius Fellowes Presides—Society Prepared for Its Pet Event.

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU, Herald Building, Herald Square, NEW YORK, Nov. 16.

Madison Square garden is ready for the eighteenth annual horse show. Shortly after 9 o'clock tomorrow morning Harry Wilcox, by a bugle blast, will awaken the echoes of the amphitheater, and the great pageant will begin its week of exhibition. Nothing was lacking today, nothing will be lacking tomorrow for the event.

In accordance with the annual custom the association gave its annual breakfast today, and surrounding the table, at which Cornelius Fellowes, as chairman of the association, presided, were more than 200 guests. To Mr. Fellowes' right was William C. Whitney; on his left was Gen. Benjamin F. Tracy, while along the curve were A. Butler Duncan, Lord Algernon Lenox, former Mayor Hugh Grant and J. H. Alexander.

Hardly had the cigars been passed, when from all sides of the room came calls for Mr. Whitney, and in response the former secretary of the navy arose.

"Well, gentlemen," he said smilingly, "here we are again. About the same crowd and under pretty much the same circumstances as a year ago. We all congratulate ourselves every time this event comes around and we are able to join in the opening celebration of another horse show.

"I am on this side of the table, but it seems to me that I belong on the other. It is true that I am one of the stockholders of the National Horse Show association and entitled to my share of the dividends, but at the same time it appears to me that I am not really the spokesman of the association. That ought to be the honor of some of the officers.

"This horse show," continued Mr. Whitney, "is a phenomenal thing. During its progress every hotel in the city has been filled to overflowing and hundreds and thousands of people gather in this city, and among them are hundreds who are unable to find the accommodations they look for, and put up with the best they can get. If you analyze for a moment the circumstances that create this attachment for the horse you will see that men of strenuous life, who live in the atmosphere and strife of the business world, take relief and save themselves from breaking down in health by seeking outdoor sports, and what better kind of outdoor sport can be found than that by the companionship of the horse. Whether it be by watching him as he thunders down the stretch in the race, or whether he and his mate are hitched up and driven along the boulevards, or whether under the saddle, he is ridden through the paths and along the highways and byways, or whether the huntsman on his back is after the hounds in full cry in that most enjoyable of all exercise—over the fields on the back of a high-bred hunter."

Mr. Whitney concluded by proposing the health of the association, which was enthusiastically cheered.

It is not alone at the Garden that horse show week has been heralded. At the Waldorf-Astoria, Delmonico's and Sherry's great preparations have been made for dinners and suppers. Never, it is said, have so many demands been made for places. At the Waldorf-Astoria it is said that 1,800 applications for dinner in the palm room had been refused for the week. Every table has been engaged for the entire week.

Never in the history of the show, it is also declared, has there been such promise of a great attendance from every point in the union.

USED AX IN CLUB ROOM.

Neighbor Objects to Noise and Stopped a Glove Contest.

IRWIN, PA., Nov. 16.—(Special.)—The Hahntown Social club was holding its annual Saturday evening session last night and a glove contest was on. There was more or less confusion and noise, which did not suit Fred Hawatte, living upstairs. He finally appeared in the clubroom with an axe in his hand and began using it.

He did not stop until he destroyed every piece of furniture and everything else breakable in the room. He next threw two of the remaining members out of doors and returned to his rooms. Hawatte was arrested on the charge of malicious mischief.

J. E. EGAN, conductor motor car; right leg broken.

A mistake of the flagman at the crossing was responsible for the accident. The freight, which consisted of 42 cars with an engine at either end, broke in two as it neared Western avenue. The front part of the train passed the crossing, and the flagman, not noticing the remaining portion of the train coming at full speed, half a block away, pulled up the gates and gave the signal that the crossing was clear.

The street cars, which had been waiting for the train to pass, started to cross the tracks and were struck by the last part of the freight train. Several of the passengers noticed the danger in time to jump before the accident, but the greater portion were unable to get off.

The flagman and men in charge of the street car have been placed under arrest.

DR. BARCHFELD READY TO FIGHT

Says He Is Willing to Take Chairmanship of City Committee.

BROWN MAY NOT RETIRE

Friends Say That He Will Not Resign in Favor of an Adherent of Flinn—Old Organization Not Harmonious.

Dr. A. J. Barchfeld says he is ready to accept the chairmanship of the Republican city committee. He believes that J. O. Brown will retire. The doctor is of the opinion that the machine must make a fight in the spring. In this view he is not joined by a very considerable number of men who have fought and bled in the Flinn army.

There are numerous evidences these days that the parting of the ways, between the ultra-machine men led by Flinn, and the great majority of less bloodthirsty Republicans in the old organization, has about been reached. The latter class would rather travel the road leading to reconciliation than again traverse the route to defeat. They feel very much like the cowboy who had done his "damnedist and angels could do no more."

As one of Flinn's close friends puts it, "For a man who claims to want to be out of politics, the senator is very much of a convalescent. It seems to be very hard for him to give up his hold on the machine."

Men are doing and saying things these days which leads one to believe that Flinn will find that many of those who have stood with him in the past will not follow him into another useless fight. They point out that for the old organization to attempt to elect a recorder would be as useless as to endeavor to preserve ices in the infernal regions.

Where Brown Stands.

While it is pretty generally agreed that J. O. Brown is willing to step aside as city chairman, if his resignation and retirement from politics will bring harmony, it is not likely that he will surrender unless he is assured that some one other than a close adherent of Flinn is to be his successor. Some of his opponents in the organization are inclined to push him out, but it is not likely that he will be shoved.

The basis upon which Brown is said to be willing to retire is that he is accompanied to the background by the Flinns, Burleighs, Ostermaiers and others who have long been warming throne-room chairs. If there is to be a clean sweeping, those who train with Brown say that they are ready to join hands and turn the Republican organization over to new men. Anyone taking the trouble to inquire can find this about the situation in the old organization.

Dr. Barchfeld admits that the chairmanship of the city committee has been discussed with him. He is ready to take it if he is called upon. The doctor is of the opinion that Brown intends to retire, and adds that in the last fight he was not able to give the campaign the attention required because of the time demanded in conducting the affairs of the city.

Brown Not for Barchfeld.

The doctor denies that there is any disposition to shove Brown out of the leadership. At the same time he thinks that a reorganization is necessary to insure success in February. Without violating any confidences it can be said that the Brown men will not agree to the selection of Barchfeld as city chairman.

On the question of a candidate for recorder, the doctor says that he thinks that either District Attorney John C. Haymaker or James Francis Burke would make good timber. In this view he also collides with the opinions of a number of others who have influence in the old organization.

Recorder Brown has been absent from the city for a week and was expected at his home last evening. At a late hour he had not put in an appearance. Brown left here with the intention of going to Florida to see Senator M. S. Quay. Some of his friends are anxiously awaiting his return to learn what he accomplished.

The recent election will bring some new men into the Allegheny county prison board, but the old board will elect the jail officials for the next year, and there is not likely to be any changes. The election will occur on January 3, and the new county officers are not sworn in until the following Monday.

Capt. George E. Mercer, superintendent of the court house, has resigned. He says that he intends to go to the Klondike. His resignation was a complete surprise. He is brother of J. C. Mercer, who has just been re-elected a member of the board of county commissioners.

Representative Joseph W. Mayne of Lehigh will ask the 45 Democrats of the house to support him for speaker. While Mr. Mayne does not hope to become speaker, it is his desire to be recognized as the floor leader of the Democracy, a position heretofore held by Representative W. T. Creasy of Columbia county.

THE WEATHER.

Soon the pleasant weather of the past week will be but a memory, if the prognostication of the weather bureau is fulfilled, as we are promised rain for today, followed by more rain. Sunday's delightfully clear and warm atmosphere is to be followed by cooler weather, with dampness that one usually expects at this time of year.

ALLEGHENY BOY AS BARON MUNCHAUSEN

John Wildemuth, 13 Years Old Runs Away and Returns With Tales of Adventure.

John Wildemuth, aged 13 years, of No. 110 Melrose avenue, Allegheny, who ran away from home last Thursday for the second time in as many months, was located at Waynesburg, Pa., last night. The boy ran away this time with a companion, Fred Somers, of Montooth Point, and had not been heard of until a 'phone message announced that the boys were willing to come home, if money for carfare was sent them. How they reached Waynesburg, with practically no money, mystifies their families, and they await their stories with interest.

Johnny's story no doubt will be a good one. The one he told the last time he ran away was remarkable, but his family assert that they do not believe it. If it is not true, the lad must be endowed with an imagination that rivals that of Edgar Allan Poe.

About two months ago John's mother sent him to the corner grocery store for some provisions. It was about 6 o'clock. The boy was given 25 cents. He did not return until the next afternoon. Then, without the provisions, but with a wonderful story. He said that a farmer, who was driving a two-horse team, invited him to take a ride. He assented, and after riding a short distance told the man that he must return home. The man would not stop the wagon and held the boy's arm so that he could not escape. They drove on for at least two hours, John said, and the farmer forced him to take a drink of some sweet stuff. This was drugged, as John immediately lost consciousness.

He was awakened some time later by the wagon jolting over the stones. He pretended he was still under the influence of the drug, and watched his chance to escape. At length the farmer pulled up in front of a country tavern and alighted. A few minutes later John did also, and ran down the road. Some distance further he stopped a man and inquired his whereabouts.

The man told him Duff City. The boy proceeded to walk home. It began to rain (this part is verified by his family) and all that night John walked toward home in the pouring rain. He reached home the following afternoon, wet and exhausted, and told his story earnestly. He promised to be good and the next day returned to school.

On Thursday last he disappeared again. His mother was distracted, and notified the Allegheny police. The lad was ingenious enough to outwit that famous constabulary. It was learned yesterday that he and Fred Somers were together at Waynesburg. They wanted money to bring them home. John's older brother will go today to rescue the boys.

Both boys are bright and intelligent, and have the best of homes. John seems to be of an adventurous disposition, however, and insists on taking trips. His mother intends using a preventative in the future.

ELOPERS SENT BACK.

Uncle Sam Declines to Receive Man and Woman Who Deserted Families in England.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 16.—The American line steamer Westernland, which left port on Saturday for Liverpool, had on board an eloping couple from England, who were ordered deported by Commissioner of Immigration Rodgers.

Mrs. Lila Hill and Henry Bostack left Royston, Yorkshire, England, together, leaving their families behind. The former had one of their children with her. She claimed that she had a sister living in Hammonton, N. J., and wanted to make her home with her, but Commissioner Rodgers ordered them sent back.

The husband and wife of the eloping couple were notified of their departure, and will probably be on hand to give them a warm welcome when the Westernland docks at Liverpool.

BABCOCK DENIES.

Wisconsin Congressman Declines to Father Story that President's Tariff Views Have Changed.

CHICAGO, Nov. 16.—(Special.)—The following, signed by Congressman Babcock, was received this evening by the Record-Herald:

"In your paper yesterday you quoted me as saying that the president will call an extra session of the Fifty-eighth congress for the purpose of enacting tariff legislation, and that he had modified his ideas of a tariff commission.

"This is a mistake, as I am not authorized to speak for the president, neither do I know of his changing his views about a tariff commission."

LARKIN'S REPLY IN THE NEGATIVE

As Outlined in The Gazette He Will Decline McCandless' Proposition.

EVIDENCE ABOUT LEAKS

City Controller Well Posted About Defects in New Reservoir and Is Not to Be Caught Napping.

Controller Larkin will today frame and transmit his reply to Director McCandless, rejecting the latter's proposition for the appointment of a commission of three engineer experts to inspect the new Highland reservoir No. 2. That the controller would decline the director's proposition was announced in The Gazette yesterday. The controller will first confer with his attorneys and decide upon the text of the reply which he will make to Director McCandless.

The controller has strong confirmatory evidence concerning the leaks in the reservoir and the alleged unsubstantial condition of the big basin. This evidence is no less than a statement made by the engineers who have superintended the work until its completion. One of these engineers is said to have asserted that there was a big crack in the walls, extending from near the top toward the bottom of the reservoir.

Reservoir Crack Is a Long One.

The discovery of this crack was first reported to the controller by another man who acted as the controller's representative in examining the basin after it was completed and just before the water was turned in. Employes of the water bureau, who had an opportunity of examining the basin before any water was pumped into it, do not hesitate to confirm the reports about the cracks in the wall, which was estimated at being from 25 to 30 feet in length.

Construction engineers in discussing Director McCandless' proposition state that the reservoir could not be fairly inspected unless several sections of what are considered the weakest points are taken out and examined. This would involve a heavy expense in addition to the remuneration that the engineers would demand for their services.

Larkin Has Had Experience.

Controller Larkin had an experience with a reservoir built by the Chartiers Water Company at Crafton about half a dozen years ago that convinces him he has taken the right stand in the present case. The Chartiers Water Company had a dispute over damages with the St. Joseph's Catholic school trustees. The school owned two knolls, one of which was condemned by the water company for a reservoir.

The reservoir was built, and after it had been finished it leaked badly. Water escaped through cracks in the walls onto the property owned by the St. Joseph's school. The two parties could not agree upon the amount of damages. The water company was willing to pay but $10,000.

The controller learned that the water was coming from the reservoir at such a rapid rate that it was filling up the cellars of houses in the valley and endangering life and property. These facts were submitted to the attorneys for the water company on the day that the suit was to have been heard in court, and the water company settled the case by paying the school $30,000 rather than stand a trial.

DR. COLE WILL TELL OF CLIFF DWELLERS

Well Known Investigator Will Give Free Lecture on Pre-Historic Race.

The Academy of Science and Art has been fortunate enough to secure a lecture from the well-known archaeologist, Dr. George L. Cole of Los Angeles, Cal., on his way through Pittsburgh on Thursday, November 20. It will be delivered in the lecture hall, Carnegie Institute, at 8:15 p. m., and is free to the public.

Dr. Cole has made a careful study of the cliff dwellers, and is perhaps the highest authority upon this curious people, who inhabited our country in prehistoric times and whose descendants are still to be found in New Mexico.

This lecture, although eminently scientific, will not be at all dry or heavy, being relieved by laughable incidents of travel by pack train, adventures in making perilous ascents and descents to these wonderful palaces in the cliffs, more than a thousand feet from the bottom of the canon.

The lectures will be illustrated by a fine collection of pictures taken on the ground by his son, Fay C. Cole. The doctor will trace the unfolding of the home life of this prehistoric people in California, New Mexico, Utah, Colorado and Arizona. He will discuss the topography of the country, showing what naturally suggested the location of their dwelling places, and will describe and show the castles of the Verde, the great communal buildings of New Mexico, the high houses of the De Chelly, Del Murto, Rett and Monumental canons, the towers and forts of the Mc Elmo and many other points of interest.

WORK READY FOR GUIDI.

Apostolic Delegate to Philippines to be Memorialized by the Leaders of Church.

MANILA, Nov. 16.—A conference of the bishops, priests and leaders of the Roman Catholic church will be held in Manila next week. They propose to discuss a memorial to Mgr. Guidi, the apostolic delegate in the Philippines, setting forth their position.

A number of native priests who sympathized with this movement, but are still adhering to the Roman Catholic church, will seek an interview with Mgr. Guidi before re-affirming their allegiance to Rome or joining the dissenters.

It is believed that Mgr. Guidi will deal with the church situation before entering upon negotiations with civil Gov. Taft regarding the friar lands.

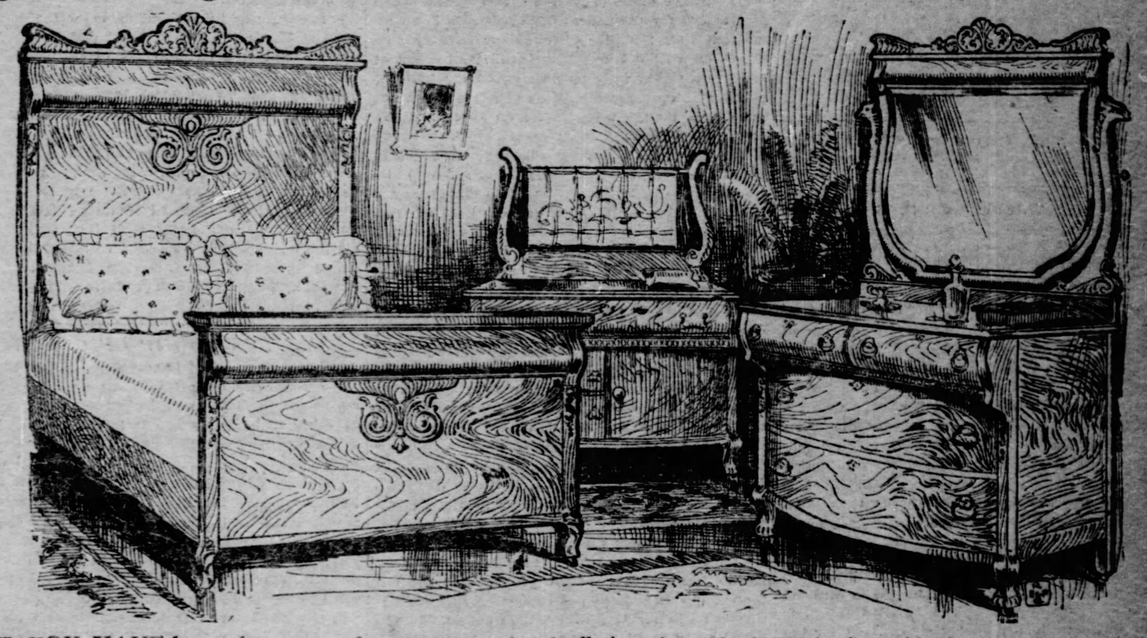
KEECH'S $85 BEDROOM SUIT

If these suits were not exceptionally good values, you can rest assured that we would not make the mistake of asking you to come to see them. It is a great thing to have your confidence; it is a greater thing never to abuse it.



YOU HAVE learned to expect frequent exceptional offerings here, for in gathering this immense stock it is only natural that we should often come across a lot of goods that for one reason or another we can buy at less prices than usual. But seldom do we advertise the bargains we get in the very high-class goods, for the reason that it is impossible to show more than the general design in the illustration. The quality, finish and fine grained wood can only be told of. But the elegant suit shown above is to test the advertising of this class of goods, to see if we can convey to you the big value it actually represents.

The illustration is a pen-and-ink sketch made directly from the suit. It shows you a suit that, if bought at the regular factory price, would retail at $115; but there are 35 of them here today that will go, for either cash or credit at a price saving of $30 on each suit. The wood is selected quartered oak. All panels, drawer fronts and tops are in the finest quarter-sawed veneer, showing the richest grain of the wood, all finished a rich golden, rubbed and polished by hand. Carvings are medium weight. Drawers are lined with bird's eye maple and varnished. Top drawers have roll fronts, full swell fronts on lower drawers. Cast drawer pulls. 40-inch by 30-inch French bevel pattern mirror. Even if you are not ready to buy come in and see them. We are sure that this is the best suit offered anywhere in this city at $85. Cash or Credit—the price is the same.

FOURTEEN PAGES.

By the expulsion of a member of the Painters' union at Schenectady, N. Y., for the offense of belonging to and serving with the National Guard, the labor unions there have brought about a peculiar struggle. This move of the union has incited the street railway company to discharge men for no other reason than because they joined a labor organization. Other corporations have taken cognizance of the matter and declared their intention to take care of members of the National Guard at any hazard, while the unions threaten to expel every man who belongs to the guard from membership in their bodies.

Labor could not suffer a more severe blow than this enmity of the Schenectady unions toward the forces of law and order. The National Guard is called out occasionally during strikes, but for the sole and only purpose of preventing rioting. Disorder is the worst possible thing for labor that can happen during a strike, for labor necessarily depends upon the public for support when idle, and violation of the law speedily alienates public sympathy. The merchant who is willing to extend credit to honest workingmen is not willing to trust men under suspicion of creating disturbance that may lead to destruction of his property, if it does not lead to the incarceration of the debtor. Without credit the penniless striker cannot live and support his family. The declaration of the unions against the National Guard is the equivalent of an indorsement of violence, and so puts labor—as represented by the Schenectady unions—in a bad light before the public.

It is not believed the Schenectady attitude will be widely approved by organized labor. John Mitchell of the mine workers has repeatedly said that disorder is the worst thing that can happen to a strike, and the worst enemy to labor is a man that will advocate violence. We believe John Mitchell is more representative of common sentiment among organized workmen than the Schenectady unions which denounce members of the National Guard as the enemies of labor. In common with sheriffs, constables and police officers, a majority of guardsmen are personally friendly to labor and in their functions all of these law officers are useful to honest labor and its cause. None but ruffians and malefactors need fear the powers of government, for they are not used to oppress, but to protect honest men. None more so than the National Guard.

We had, in this city, a demonstration of hatred toward the citizen soldiers when the local regiments returned from the anthracite region. The men who made that demonstration cast disgrace upon the organizations to which they belonged. They certainly did more harm to the cause of labor in five minutes than the entire division of the state troops did in all the time they were in the field. They advertised themselves as advocates of violence and injustice as well as cowards attacking from ambush. Peaceable miners had welcomed the soldiers in the coal region, but disorderly miscreants assaulted them on their return home. Law-abiding citizens in every walk of life appreciated the sacrifice members of the guard had made, leaving their private occupations to render service to the state. Rioters attempted vengeance upon them because they had responded to the call of duty. The Schenectady unions which have undertaken to expel members who have entered the service of the state cast just as much discredit upon their cause as the stone throwers on Fifth avenue, because their mental attitude is one of hostility to any power that enforces law and order. They are composed of men who would join in riotous demonstrations unless deterred by fear.

There is no natural antagonism between soldiers and union workmen. If a labor union stands for any principle above the merest selfishness it stands for good citizenship. Its object, if it have any that is worthy of its existence, is to improve the condition of the members, physically, mentally, morally and materially. The National Guard never has been, nor never will be, called out to prevent the attainment of that object. On the contrary, its organization is in full sympathy with just such development. Workmen are benefited by membership in both organizations. Capital has no natural affinity for the militia or the regular army. It dreads conflict. It tolerates the soldiery because it can be relied upon to protect property both from the attacks of foreign enemies and bad citizens. Labor has just as much interest in the protection of property as has capital. In Schenectady the labor unions have not the wisdom to understand this, or else they are deliberately opposed to the agencies for maintaining order, while the employers of labor are wise enough to see the necessity for protecting the men who are ready to protect their country. Organized labor elsewhere owes itself the duty to purge itself of the stain cast upon it by the local unions which make enmity to the National Guard a cardinal qualification for membership in their bodies.

Inspector General Breckinridge reports upon the American army in the Philippines in most gratifying terms. He has found them performing their whole duty, and doing it in as kindly a spirit as is consistent with military operations. Gen. Breckinridge has no sympathy for those critics who have made it their business to find fault with the army and its conduct; who have maligned men and officers; who have tried to create an impression that the glorious traditions of the country have been dragged in the mire. By actual observation and careful investigation he has learned that these charges are untrue. He is to be commended for speaking his mind and presenting the facts as he found them to the credit of the American soldier abroad. It is no pleasant duty to fight a treacherous enemy in tropical jungles and swamps without having people at home who should know better caviling and traducing the men engaged in the nasty work. The campaign of vilification against the army in the Philippines may have been started for political purposes, but if so it has utterly failed of intended results.

THE ONE BUSINESS TROUBLE.

The increase of wages by the Pennsylvania railroad system, the increase reported by other railroads and the tabulation disclosing that the Pennsylvania railroad will in two years spend $200,000,000 for permanent improvements is an indication that the prosperity of the country continues on a solid base. Flurries in Wall street at the present time have no bearing on the business situation. They are almost as separate and apart from it as though taking place on another planet or at Monte Carlo. The New York stock exchange is for the moment a mere side show to the substantial development of the country, and its troubles are due to the circumstance that money is too well employed in the legitimate lines of commerce and industry to be diverted to the other issues. The only trouble in the business world is the inability of the railroads to move the products of industry. This is indeed a serious matter, relieved only by the proof it gives of the healthy relation of supply and demand in the exchange of commodities. The freight congestion, judging from the reports received by The Gazette, are as bad as they have been at any time. When 18 miles of cars loaded with freight accumulate at one point and an embargo is placed on perishable goods the matter has the appearance of a shortage of motive power and of men. But whatever the fault may be it is proving a serious check to business enterprise. The wage increases and the expenditures for betterments, proofs of prosperity, as has been noted, are also proof that the railroad managers are working on the problem that has confronted them for two years. They are not beaten, but they have not conquered. The situation is no better in its immediate aspect. In the promise for the far future it may be improved, but it is the present that is vital to the shipper. Unless the doctors find a way to cure the congestion of the freight yards general business must suffer severely. Only a few are worrying about Wall street, but everyone is bothered concerning the lack of movement of freight. That is the one and only bad feature of the entire business situation.

CUPID AND THE KAISER.

As all the world loves a lover, the hostility of the English press and people toward the German emperor may suffer diminution when it is announced, now that he is departing from England, that he has been figuring as a matchmaker. The universal interest that is felt in lovers and their love affairs is necessarily enjoyed in some measure by those who address themselves to promotion of an affair of the heart, and if the emperor has been busying himself with the softer sentiments that concern lovers, rather than with questions of territorial and trade expansion and the division of Asiatic and African empires, the voice of English criticism will be stilled for long enough at least to make inquiry about the matter. Doubtless a match between the emperor's son and his second cousin, the daughter of the late Prince Leopold, youngest son of Victoria, would be pleasing to the English people. It ought also to be popular with the Germans. If acceptable to both it would well serve the emperor, for the friendly interest it would arouse would serve his apparent purpose to bring about the long talked-of better understanding between Germany and England.

The Princess Alice of Albany, though nominally an English princess, is really more German than English. Her mother is a German princess and owing to the early death of her father her training has been more German than English. Her sympathies, also, are said to be German and the occupancy of the throne of the petty state of Coburg by the brother since the death of his uncle, the duke of Edinburgh and Coburg, has doubtless fostered them. The German people much prefer a German marriage for the heir of the kaiser to any other, and the princess who is said to have been selected ought to be German enough to suit.

As to the feelings of the young people nothing is said. It is left to be inferred that they are in love with each other, but this does not necessarily follow. However, their names have been coupled on various occasions, the last instance being after publication of the crown prince's alleged affair of the heart with a young American beauty, when it was said that his admiration for the fair Yankee had already been forgotten in a new born affection for his pretty cousin. There is a strong vein of sentiment in the English people, and they will assume that Alice and Frederick Wilhelm love each other, and in contemplation of a new royal love affair and in interest in the prospective nuptials they may forget that the father of the groom and the nation they represent have been considered proper targets for truly British vituperation. The kaiser, in his effort to win England to his side, couldn't have made a better beginning than in enlisting Cupid's aid.

SOME LITERARY TENDENCIES.

In no department of our peculiar American life do we find a more discouraging prophecy of the future than in the tone and character of what is termed "popular literature." With every variation possible to the phrase we are told that this is not "a thinking age" and that the strenuous life of the 20th century American does not permit the acquisition of solid learning or encourage indulgence of artistic impulses beyond the passing desire to be amused and diverted from the sterner duties of business, finance and trade. A casual examination of nine-tenths of the popular literature that our printing presses are turning out justifies the suspicion that modern authorship in many lines has taken its cue from this pet phrase of the day. If Americans do not want to think, say these makers of books, we will cut out the incentive to thought. If the reading public, and the public that is to be educated to the point of reading, want amusement, we will turn clown, and with cap and bells do harlequin tricks and call it fiction or poetry or history, as the occasion may demand or the impulse suggest. In certain literary circles there is a disposition to jibe bitterly at what is called the decadence of the drama as a result of a commercialized effort to pander to the narrow tastes of the playgoing public.

The charge may not be without justification, but just in proportion as literature, the mother of all art, is greater than one of her children, so the cheap and veneered flippancy of the book and pamphlet making world is a greater and more hurtful crime than the tinsel of the playhouse. It may be said in parenthesis that in certain fields of scientific investigation, in modern history-making efforts and in the philosophic and economic research of modern authorship, there is a distinctly serious and worthy sign of superiority and thoroughness. But it may be considered neither rash nor pessimistic to declare that the audience for this style of literature is not perceptibly increasing if it be not actually growing smaller. Of the hundreds of books, to say thousands would doubtless be nearer the truth, which every day in the year come from the printing presses there is an alarming increase in the number of those which were written from no higher impulse than a desire to amuse by audacity, amuse by eccentricity of humor, or inflame by evil passion, suggested or broadly stated.

Inspirations to authorship too often are not born in the fertile soil of heart and brain. They are manufactured for purposes of commerce or to serve a sensational notoriety. Book writers boast of junketing tours by which they declare they secure "local color," and these performances are heralded with all the cheap advertising clap trap that attends a Punch and Judy show in a provincial village. A passing event, some unimportant phase of a successful man's career, are made the subjects of pages of so-called literature that possess no greater literary merit than the display head story in yesterday's newspaper. And yet this is called authorship, and American literature is too frequently judged by these products of the caterer's trade.

THE SPEAKERSHIP OF CONGRESS.

The retirement of Congressman Babcock from the speakership contest was not unexpected, but comes sooner than was looked for. There will be other withdrawals and it is probable that before the present congress goes out of existence not more than three candidates will remain in the lists for speaker of the Fifty-eighth congress. If there be any truth in the report that the president intends to call an extra session of the Fifty-eighth congress to deal with large questions that the Fifty-seventh congress may not be able to dispose of at its concluding session, the contest will be a short one and from its present aspects it will narrow down to three candidates, all west of the Alleghany mountains—Dalzell, Cannon and Burton. They are the really strong men in the race. If Littlefield, Payne and Sherman gather much strength outside their delegations it will be a surprise, and the natural second choice of their immediate supporters is Congressman Dalzell, whose geographical location brings him into closer touch with them than they are with the candidates further west. Mr. Dalzell's geographical location also brings him into sympathetic relations with western political interests, so that where claims of locality have force he is perhaps in stronger position than any man under consideration. The new Indiana delegation is said to have been approached in behalf of Mr. Cannon, but to remain unpledged. If this be true the Illinois aspirant for speakership honors is fighting up hill. Indiana is neighbor to both Illinois and Ohio, and it may be that consideration of Burton decides the Hoosier delegation to merely look on for a time. The Ohio man is certain to be strong where Cannon is strong and to be given support that Cannon's friends have counted on. Burton's friends who give him their first support cannot be counted on to be for Cannon in the second instance. Dalzell is the more likely to be their second choice. He has been in great demand as a campaign speaker in western states and has always responded freely to the calls made upon his time. His standing with the western delegations at this stage is therefore good, with prospect of constant improvement.

Congressman Dalzell will have the Pennsylvania delegation solidly behind him. There is no division of sentiment here. All feel as Congressman Huff expresses it, that "his long and distinguished services on the floor of the house entitle him to the honor of being chosen presiding officer," and also that "Pennsylvania is entitled to the speakership" because of the Republican record of the state that is shown in its numerical strength in congress, where it is represented by a larger number of Republicans than any state in the union. When the Pennsylvania delegation meets and gives its formal indorsement to Mr. Dalzell's candidacy the claims of the state will appear more plainly to the other delegations than now. The earlier this meeting is held the better.

Select council's public works committee displays no great acumen or civic enterprise in holding up the ordinance for the widening of Virgin alley because it does not include the entire length from Liberty avenue to Grant street. Good reasons have been given why it is not feasible to include the portion between Liberty and Wood at the present time and why it will be better to wait a little for that portion between Smithfield and Grant. The thing to be done is to widen that part between Smithfield and Wood streets now, while it is feasible to attend to the other portions as soon as possible.

Despite heroic efforts on the part of the railroads it is painfully evident they have not the equipment necessary to handle the Pittsburgh tonnage. One of the most serious aspects of the case concerns the northwest. The railroad disability in the matter of getting coal from this region to the lakes amounts to 1,500,000 tons for the season. Taken in connection with the failure of the anthracite region to send the usual supply this year the prospect in the northwest states is for a very cold winter, irrespective of the possibility that the weather may be more than ordinarily mild.

What's the matter with the muddy water leader joining the don't worry club? The people are willing to look after both the initiative and the referendum in the selection of a city recorder.

After due deliberation the railroad transportation superintendents may come to the conclusion that the way to end the freight blockade is to start something.

Wages on the Pennsylvania railroad system are now so high that any man can lift a Thanksgiving turkey off its perch with ease.

The circumstance that it was a 400-pound bear that got away from the president indicates that the authors of fish romances have a rival.

The Tammany tiger doesn't feel so turned down and lonesome since the Princeton tiger got into the has-been class.

Kings with shady domestic records should hire themselves a coat of mail or stay strictly at home.

Col. Moses C. Wetmore of St. Louis at last found an octopus that even he could not "bust."

All for Dalzell.

From the Titusville Herald.

The Republican press of the state is practically unanimous in favor of Congressman Dalzell for speaker. He will have the united support of the Pennsylvania delegation in the house and a large following from other states. Congress could bestow this high honor upon no more worthy shoulders than those of the able and honorable gentleman from the "State of Allegheny."

HORSE SHOW NEXT ON GOTHAM'S LIST

Stable Talk Popular Thing and Madison Square Garden Point of Interest.

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU,
Herald Building, Herald Square,
NEW YORK, Nov. 16.

On the eve of the horse show, with Madison Square garden full of fine horses and a line of grooms and hostlers extending for blocks either way from the back entrance in Fourth avenue, it is not remarkable that stable talk is heard everywhere tonight. The horse show is the big thing of the winter. There are other events, such as the opening of the grand opera season and the election, which set everyone on edge in a pleasurable sense; but the happening that interests everybody is the throwing open of the doors of the big garden for the annual parade of blue-ribbon horses and smart riders and drivers. Though the list of boxholders does not show many, if any, Pittsburgh names, there is a great assemblage of Pittsburghers in all the hotels, along Broadway and Fifth avenue tonight. They are here to see the opening of the show. It is true that there are other nights, later in the week, which are considered more exclusively fashionable; but, if one wants to see the exhibition in its most characteristic light he must be there on Monday, when the inaugural parade shakes itself out in a surging flow of horseflesh and absolutely smart equipments over the wide expanse of tanbark and clay in the arena. Pittsburgh is always well represented on those occasions. Men that own valuable horses and have taken many blue ribbons at various shows in their own city and elsewhere, are numerous in Pittsburgh, and one may be sure that they are promenading the garden on the first night of the show, noting carefully the quality of the entries. Favored individuals were allowed to go into the garden tonight to witness the dress rehearsal that is always held on the Sunday evening before the opening. It is then that the footing in the area is thoroughly tested, and a sharp eye is kept on all details to see that none have been overlooked. The privileged few that see this rehearsal know that it is as interesting as anything to be seen later—perhaps because it is something from which the public at large is excluded. However this may be, it is a fact that all is ready for the bugle blast to announce the beginning of a strenuous week at Madison Square garden tomorrow morning.

Just Like "Dear Old Lunnon."

Fogs have been prevalent in New York harbor for more than a week. It was not until yesterday, however, when the float carrying the train in which "Teddy, Jr.," the president's son, was a passenger, was held up by the fog, that the matter became one of public interest. Unfortunately, the forces of nature care no more for a president's son than for a Polish immigrant, and the young man had to lose several hours on his journey to Washington. It did not worry him, of course. He is, as a boy, very much like his distinguished father, with a disposition to take things as they come. But the fog certainly was bad yesterday; it was this morning, too, for that matter.

Blue of Yale is Everywhere.

The streets of New York have been flashing with the Yale blue and the yellow and black of Princeton ever since last evening. Of course there was the usual celebration of Yale's victory here last evening. The theaters were jammed with college men, all wearing the Yale blue conspicuously, while on the stage there were blue ribbons, blue rosettes and Yale pins worn by most of the show girls in the musical comedies and comic operas. The heroes of the gridiron are honored in the metropolis as perhaps they are nowhere else, and all New York is glorified when Yale wins a battle. Incidentally, it may be remarked that a Princeton victory is equally as good a reason for a joyous hurly-burly in Broadway. There are as many representatives of one university as of the other in this city at all times, so that it makes little difference in the volume of rejoicing which one wins. One characteristic reminder today of the great game was that a great many decorous persons in churches wore little ribbons of blue or yellow and black, according to their affiliations. The Princeton colors carry a double significance just now, for they are those of the Horse Show association as well.

Bishop Potter Moves Uptown.

Uptown goes business of all kinds, and now Bishop Potter will take the affairs of his diocese from the famous old white building in Lafayette place, up to East Forty-fourth street. With the bishop's official home removed, and the Astor library to go when the new building in Forty-second street, Lafayette place, will have to depend on the old-time Turkish baths to keep up its prestige as one of the historic quarters of old New York.

Sympathy for Hero's Widow.

More than usual interest seems to have been taken in Gen. Grant's mausoleum at Riverside today. On every fine Sunday there are crowds of visitors to the tomb, and as they gaze reverently at the great copper casket within which lie the remains of the distinguished general, they look at the empty receptacle by its side, reserved for the body of Mrs. Grant, and wonder when it will be occupied. Her serious illness yesterday quickened speculation on this gruesome question this afternoon, and there were thousands of pilgrims to the tomb, who might not have gone there had they not been thus reminded of it.

Profit in Others' Brains.

Norman L. Munro made a tremendous fortune as a publisher, devoting much of his energy to putting forth cheap reprints of standard works, with a line of new books of a "popular" order. He died a few years ago, and his principal heirs are his widow and his daughter, Miss Norma Munro, who is understood to have a goodly financial interest in Mrs. Robert Osborn's play house, recently opened. An indication of the wealth accumulated by the deceased publisher is that the real estate he left will be sold by auction soon, in accordance with a friendly partition suit, so that his heirs may realize, and that it is valued at not less than $3,000,000. In addition to this, there is his great publishing and printing business in Vandewater street, and much other property which will not be included in the $3,000,000 worth of real estate. The struggling author has here a chance to raise his old plaint that there is more money in selling books than in writing them.

Many Would Hunt Bears.

Many a sober man and woman with a weakness for "playing the market" breathed a slight prayer today that the bears may have got their quietus last night and that the rally on 'change just before the gong sounded yesterday afternoon was a precursor of a rising market tomorrow. Wise ones say that the bears have shot their bolt, but that remains to be seen. Wall street has been too erratic for the last two weeks to allow of any safe predictions.

Eat But Do Not Pay.

Here is a new game by which unscrupulous young men have been able to beat a quick lunch man in upper Broadway. They are clerks in a big establishment and they go to lunch between 12 and 1. The first orders a modest repast, for which he receives a 15-cent check. As he is about to leave, he tells the waiter she has forgotten to give him a check, and she hands him another. He pays 15 cents on one check, and gives the other to his partner in the scheme, who is ready for luncheon. That man eats a 50-cent meal, but pays for it with the 15-cent check he got from his partner, tearing up the big check. The next day the proceeding is reversed so that

YOU HAD TO READ IT ALL OR YOU MISSED SOMETHING GOOD

The only possible complaint that could have been registered against Pittsburgh's leading Sunday newspaper yesterday was that there were so many good things in it that one had to read every column or he missed something. Every department of The Gazette was bright and breezy and readable.

The local news field was covered completely, which means that all the exclusive matter of importance was The Gazette's. The points where it surpassed, not any one, but all its competitors, are too numerous to be listed.

The splendid wire and cable service fulfilled its reputation of giving Gazette readers something about every event of importance the world over, and that something the best published in Pittsburgh.

The sporting events, including the great Yale-Princeton game, were all there. The latest news and gossip of the financial circles, not only in Fourth avenue, but in Wall street, in the Chicago and other exchanges, were covered in a manner that can be done only by experts such as are handling them for The Gazette.

The pages for women were full of the bright little chats that make this department the confidential friend of the female contingent in every home.

The magazine section put the standard for this popular feature of Pittsburgh journalism another peg higher, and the work of The Gazette's own staff of humorists and cartoonists in presenting old favorites in new roles made the comic section a source of joy and delight to every home it reached.

The crowning feature was the cartoon in colors, "Vanity," one of the best of the series that is making Oscar Holliday Banghart a favored artist in thousands of homes.

Viola Allen Tonight's Bright Star.

The theatrical sensation of tomorrow night will be the presentation for the first time in this city of Hall Caine's dramatization of his own novel, "The Eternal City," with Viola Allen as Roma. William Faversham will also come to town in his new play, "Imprudence," but "The Eternal City" rather overshadows it.

Bachelor Girls Pour Tea.

One of the pleasant little social functions of today was a tea party at the rooms of the "Bachelor Girls' club," in West Fiftieth street. Tea pots were borrowed from married friends, and there was a general jollification, with plenty of gossip, but "no scandal." Of course, reports of the gathering come to me second-hand, from a "bachelor girl" who used to live in Pittsburgh, but there is no reason to doubt the accuracy of her story. According to her explanation, the club was organized last spring by a number of young women who are studying music or art, writing for magazines and newspapers, or earning a living in other ways, and who wanted a club where they could meet in friendly spirit, with no object except the having of a good time.

Takes Up Grandmother's Work.

Although that grand old lady, Elizabeth Cady Stanton, has passed away, the work to which she devoted her life will be steadfastly maintained. Word has reached New York that Mrs. Stanton's grand-daughter, Miss Nora Stanton Blatch of Ithaca, N. Y., has accepted the presidency of the Sage Political Equality club, will work for the rights of her sex on the same lines as were pursued unremittingly by her grandmother for so many years. Miss Blatch is the only woman that ever entered the civil engineering department of Cornell university.

Old Sol Keeps 'em Warm.

Very little was heard about the scarcity of coal today. The weather was too warm to give anyone reason to complain because furnaces are not going in flat houses. Sunday is the day in the week when, if ever, one hears grumbling about the cold apartments, because, naturally, that is the day that paterfamilias spends at home, and he likes to enjoy his slippered ease in a comfortable temperature. Every mild Sunday means one more week's reprieve for landlords who are putting off the evil day of buying anthracite coal at advanced prices as long as they can. Meanwhile, there is no evidence that coal is to be plentiful before spring.

Lucania's Unhappy Day.

Even so good a ship as the Cunard liner Lucania cannot be sure of getting safely into port, no matter how near she may be to the goal. That was seen yesterday, when the splendid steamship, after getting lost in the fog, ran into a sandbar at Gedney's channel near Sandy Hook, and stuck there all day. Her regular conductor, Capt. Alexander McKay, who is known to thousands of Pittsburghers that have crossed the Atlantic by the Cunard line in the last quarter of a century, is laid up with sciatica in Liverpool, and Capt. Pritchard is in command. The vessel was in charge of a Sandy Hook pilot, however, so it was not the fault of Capt. Pritchard that it stuck its nose into the sand. Some of the passengers managed to get ashore with the aid of tugs, but most of them stayed with the ship until she could be floated off and brought up the bay.

More Help for Gotham Poor

Another "settlement house," in a part of the city where none has been will be opened tomorrow or the next day. It is under the direction of the Co-Operative Social Settlement society, and is situated in Jones street, two blocks southwest of Washington square. It will be called "Greenwich house." The population of the neighborhood is mainly Italian, Yiddish and French, and it is thought that the educational advantages of the society can be exerted with much good to the community. There will be a kindergarten, a manual training school and similar departments when the house is in working order. New York is a great place for the poor people, in many ways.

GEORGE C. JENKS.

PERSONALS.

The 29th annual session of the national Baptist congress will convene in the old First Baptist church, Clarendon street and Commonwealth avenue, Boston, Mass., tomorrow and will continue three days. On the list of speakers will be some of the leading men in the denomination in the United States. Appointed speakers will not be allowed to use manuscript, the object of their appointment being to encourage the volunteer discussion which follows the address. The first day's session will open with an address of welcome by the Rev. George A. Gordon of Boston and the response by the president, the Rev. Aivah Hovey. The first address is "Is Baptism Essential to Church Membership?" One of the appointed speakers will be the Rev. A. J. Bonsall of the Baptist church of Rochester, Pa. In the evening "The Future of the Educated Negro" will be discussed. On Wednesday the subject will be "Are Current Theologies Based on the Scriptures or on Philosophy?" In the evening "The Pulpit and Problems of Statesmanship;" Thursday, "Does Revelations End With the Scriptures?" and in the afternoon the writers will take as their subject "Christ as Example." The meeting will be peculiar in itself, as neither motion nor resolution will be entertained by the chair at any of the public conferences. The Rev. A. J. Bonsall will leave for the conference today.

THE DEATH ROLL.

Mrs. Elizabeth Henry.

Mrs. Elizabeth Henry, aged 68 years, died at her residence, No. 4701 Fifth avenue at 2:40 o'clock yesterday afternoon. She had been ill for six months, since the death of her son, Patrick. Mrs. Henry was born in Manchester, Eng., and came to this country 44 years ago. She has been a resident of Pittsburgh for the past 20 years. She attended St. Peter's Protestant Episcopal church. Mrs. Henry is survived by six children: Charles John, James W., Mrs. Elizabeth Duffy, the Misses Alice, Caroline and Mary J. Henry. She will be buried from her late residence tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock, and the interment will be made in Homewood cemetery. The Rev. E. H. Ward, rector of St. Peter's, will have charge of the services.

Judge Edward Stake.

Judge Stake never married. He was considered one of the most learned jurists in Maryland, and only one month ago delivered a touching eulogy here over the death of his associate. His death was sudden.

Assyriology in Philadelphia.

From the New York Mail and Express.

Whatever labor and other troubles the state of Pennsylvania may have on her own account and may inflict on the country at large, she is to be congratulated on one extremely fortunate circumstance. She is not to be without proper instruction in the love of Babylon and Nippur. The coal supply may fail, but the light that comes from Assyria is not to be permitted to go out, if Philadelphia money can prevent it. Two worthy gentlemen of that city, Clark by name, who have spent many thousands of dollars during the last fourteen years in exploring the dust heaps along the Tigris, have now endowed the chair of Assyriology in the University of Pennsylvania with the sum of $100,000. The interest of that sum will afford fair pay, as professors, for the eminent Assyriologist who has already made such good use of the money of the Messrs. Clark—Professor Herman Volrath Hilprecht.

Absurdity in the Law.

From the Baltimore American.

Justice may well stand puzzled and mystified before the vagaries of law. A woman in Maine was lately fined $100 for shooting a moose because she had no license, the fact that she shot to save her own life from the animal's attack not being taken into the question at all. Such absurdities in the enforcement of laws are enough to bring discredit on all communities which tolerate such ignorant and ridiculous officers, and in the interest of common sense, if nothing else, such cases should be stoutly contested.

JUST A LITTLE SALT AND PEPPER

Young Man's First Lesson in Buying Family Groceries.

THIS little story was told at a small dinner the other evening, given by one of the parties concerned:

"Well," remarked Mr. Pyles, glancing at his young wife as they both seated themselves at the table, 'we have our own home at last. It makes a fellow feel more like a man to put his feet under his own table. Beats boarding houses all hollow. Eh, pet, how do you feel about it?'

"'I am just tickled to death,' said the lady as she straightened up a stalk of celery that seemed to be leaning out too far from the bunch, and smoothed an imaginary wrinkle out of the neat tablecloth. 'Just think, Charlie, we've been married three years and have spent all that time in boarding houses. I've almost forgotten how to cook.'

"'That's all right,' replied Charlie, things look pretty good anyway. Let's try a bit of this steak. Seems a little tough—maybe the butcher thought you was inexperienced. Pass the potatoes, please; you know they are my staff of life.'

"There was silence for a moment as Charlie began to eat. He put down his fork suddenly and looked sharply at the lady across the table. She, in turn, looked at him.

"'Potatoes don't taste right; did you put any salt in them?' said Charlie.

"'Now, I just knew I had forgotten something,' said Mrs. Pyle. 'Charlie, there is not a bit of salt or pepper in the house. I'm so sorry.'

"'No salt, no pepper! Heavens, woman, we can't get along without salt and pepper! Oh, well, never mind, dear, don't cry. I'll just run around to the grocery and get some.'

"Off he went. The grocer recognized him as the man who had just moved into the neighborhood and came around personally to wait on him. Charlie said he wanted some salt and pepper, and when the grocer asked how much he replied that he knew nothing about it. He did not know how much he wanted, but rather than appear green he promptly said: 'Oh, about 25 cents worth of each.' The grocer looked a little surprised, but not wishing to offend a new customer by suggestions hurried to fill the order. When the packages were handed out it was Charlie who looked surprised; but he took the flour sack in one hand and the smaller parcel in the other and made for home. As he backed softly against the hall door to close it after him his wife came from the dining room to meet him.

"'Why, what all did you get, Charlie?' she inquired. 'I didn't need anything but a little salt and pepper.'

"'That's all I got,' replied Charlie sheepishly, and he wondered at Mrs. Pyle's ready laughter. Mr. Pyle says that as far as he knows they have bought no salt or pepper since. He is sure he hasn't."

MANY a man has kicked aside a stray handkerchief as he walked along the street, but few have ever thought of a possible silver mine concealed therein. Last night two young men walked up Market street. Passing the market house one saw a soiled handkerchief. It was plain it had been kicked and walked over by a dozen passers-by. Following his natural inclination he gave the thing a kick—when lo, it rattled. Now, when a handkerchief rattles there is something in it. To be sure the rattle came from the handkerchief he gave it another kick. Same old rattle.

"Some old woman has lost the two nickels she had tied up for car fare," he said to his friend, at the same time picking up the bit of linen to investigate. The usual knot was in the corner, and when it was untied out rolled two quarters and a half dollar.

"It's a shame to take the money," said the finder. "The mere fact that I matched and lost the last nickel I had in the world and that payday is 20 hours away is only a mitigating circumstance. I wonder whose money it is."

"If it were only in a tobacco bag, one could blow it for cigars with a clear conscience," said the friend, "because then it would have been lost by a man, and a man so careless as to lose money never ought to get it back. But only a woman would tie up silver in a corner of a handkerchief, or one who would look as though she had lost her last dollar in the world and was four miles from home. But she was not discovered and they gave it up.

"There is only one way to find the owner," said one. "That is to tell the story to the Gazette's sprightly writer, and then everybody in town will know it in the morning," and they did.

A YOUNG woman of Shadyside, who has a very indulgent father and brother who keep her well supplied with spending money, decided to start a bank account. Her father made the first deposit and presented her with the bank book, suggesting that she should take charge of the account in the future.

AMENDMENTS TO BE MADE AGAIN

Railroad Measures Will Meet Some Opposition in Common Council.

WHY IS SELECT CALLED?

Members of Upper Branch Puzzled Over Summons for This Afternoon—Nature of Amendments to Be Offered.

A number of amendments will be tacked on the two railroad ordinances, one for the Wabash and the other for the Pennsylvania, both of which have been considered by the corporations committee, when these measures come up before common council tonight. One of the proposed amendments provides that the railroads shall pay all damages to private property resulting from the construction of the lines, the vacation of streets or from any changes required in the grade of streets to conform with the grade of the railroads.

An amendment will also be offered increasing the penalty for using bituminous coal by engines running through the city.

The object of the extra session of common council is to receive and pass, if possible these two railroad bills. Dr. George W. McNeil of the Twenty-first ward, is chairman of the corporations committee which has charge of the measures.

No Reason Known for Meeting of Select.

By reason of the fact that the corporations committee reports in common council, the select branch which is called to meet this afternoon will not have the opportunity of considering the railroad ordinances today, even should they be put through the lower body at one sitting.

Why a special meeting of select council has been called for today no one seems to know, unless it is to cover the purpose for which common council has been called together. There is no business of an urgent nature demanding a special session of select body. Several members were surprised when President Lambie issued the call. They state they cannot account for it.

Of the two bills the one most objected to is the Pennsylvania ordinance, which grants the railroad the right to construct a branch up Negleys run through Highland park, parallel to the Beechwood boulevard, from the station at Fifth avenue to the Allegheny Valley division, near the Brilliant pumping station, and to a bridge that will cross the Allegheny river and connect with the West Penn tracks on the other side.

Some Objections Enumerated.

This ordinance provides for the vacation of 11 streets, and attention has been called to the fact that there is no provision in the ordinance for the payment of any damages that may result from the closing of these streets.

While the railroad claims to own most of the property on the thoroughfares it is proposed to close, the streets connect with other streets which will be more or less affected by the vacation. It is also claimed that the city should not be compelled to bear the expense of extending streets over the railroad tracks. The ordinance provides that this expense shall be divided between the city and the railroad. The amendment offered at the meeting of the corporations committee making the railroad company liable for the entire expense will again be presented when the bill comes before councils.

Fault is found also with the smoke clause. It is claimed by the objectors that the general ordinance of the city, covering all railroads, provides that each train using soft coal shall pay a fine of $50 for the conductor, $50 for the fireman and the same amount for the engineer. The section in the Wabash and Pennsylvania ordinances provides merely that a fine of $50 shall be assessed on every train, reducing the fine just two-thirds.

WRECK DELAYS TRAFFIC.

Pittsburgh Express Crashed Into Freight and Passengers Are Shaken Up.

Pittsburgh express known as No. 15 on the Pennsylvania railroad, due from the east in this city at 6:55 p. m., ran into a light engine, running as a pusher on a heavy freight train, on the hill at Carney's station, 37 miles east of Pittsburgh last night. The passenger train was being hauled by engine 2017, and was under control of the engineer at the time, as he expected to meet a freight some place on the hill. The passenger train was runing at about 12 miles an hour when the collision occurred. The pilot on the passenger train was stove in and the heavy iron guards and brace binders torn and twisted.

No person was injured, but the passengers were well shaken up. The dishes in the dining car were thrown from the tables and the negro waiters badly frightened. The pusher on the freight train was badly damaged.

The collision caused a delay of other westbound trains. No. 15 pulled into Union station two hours and 15 minutes late. The fast mail, known as No. 25, was two hours and 30 minutes late, and the New York and Chicago limited 40 minutes late.

BIG HOUSE GREETS ENVOYS.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 16.—John Dillon and Michael Davitt, the Irish envoys, delivered addresses tonight at a meeting held in Ford's opera house and presided over by Police Commissioner Morris. Speeches were also made by ex-Gov. Whyte and Attorney General Rayner. The opera house was packed. Cardinal Gibbons was among a large number of church dignitaries who attended. About $2,000 cash contributions were raised at the meeting.

NEWS OF NEARBY TOWNS AND COUNTRY

BROTHER OF LEACH KILLED BY EXPLOSION

Relative of Baseball Player Meets Violent Death While Inspecting an Oven.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

LORAIN, O., Nov. 16.—An explosion occurred at the plant of the National stove works today, in which John Leach, brother of Thomas Leach of last year's Pittsburgh ball team, was killed instantly. The stripping and japanning rooms were badly wrecked and the brick wall of the stripping room was blown out.

Work in the stripping department had been slack the past week and Leach, who was foreman of the japanning department, with Charles Stakes, went to the works this morning to bake a loaded coke oven so that the japanned parts might be stripped on Monday. The oven had not been used for two months, but was thoroughly tested a week ago and was pronounced to be in good condition. When all was in readiness, Leach attempted to close the door but failed and went for a bar.

While Leach was away Stakes succeeded in closing the door and walked off. Leach, upon returning, stepped to the door and took the cover off the indicator to ascertain the temperature of the oven. At this instant the gas, which had accumulated inside, exploded with a loud report. The oven door was thrown open and the force of the concussion sent Leach headlong, his head striking the sharp corner of the heavy door casing. When picked up life was extinct.

MANY WANT THE JOB.

Ten Candidates for Office of Recorder of Washington County.

WASHINGTON, PA., Nov. 16.—(Special.)—All the offices of importance in the court house, with the exception of recorder, were filled at the recent election. Next fall a recorder will be elected and a director of the poor. With the aspirations of the Republicans centered on the office of county recorder, there promises to be one of the liveliest fights in the history of the county for the nomination.

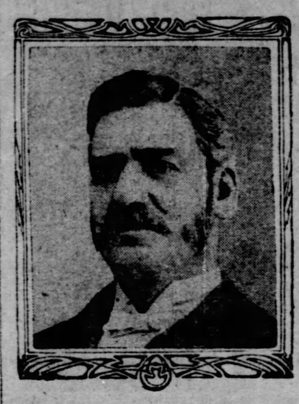
Already the campaign has begun and nine avowed candidates are in the field.

Recorder W. F. Penn is out for a third term. Another prominent Republican who wants the place is Coroner John J. Fitzpatrick. D. W. Myers of West Bethlehem township, formerly director of the poor, is also an active candidate. Among other candidates are A. W. Pollock, Deputy Sheriff John G. Hall, H. F. Ward, County Commissioner John M. Dunn, John H. Moffat of Charleroi, Edward Masters of Coal Center and Alexander Young, the present deputy recorder.

MINISTER GIVES UP RELIGIOUS WORK TO TAKE POSITION ABROAD

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

TITUSVILLE, PA., Nov. 16.—(Special.)—No man ever left Titusville with so warm a place in the hearts of the whole people as the Rev. Robert Murray, who departed Friday with his family for England, where he becomes the London agent of the Pure Oil Company, Philadelphia, refiners who are reaching out for export trade.



Rev. Robert Murray.

Mr. Murray has been traveling salesman for the Cyclops steel works of this city for nearly 18 years. While in that capacity he has been more or less identified with religious work. In 1895 he started a men's Bible class in the Presbyterian chapel. These talks soon became very popular and the attendance grew to such a large proportion that the place of meeting was transferred to the opera house.

Here Hebrews, Catholics and Protestants turned out until the attendance each Sunday afternoon reached 450 to 500. The class motto was "In all things essential unity; in all things doubtful, liberty; in all things charity."

Mr. Murray's failing health two years ago caused the suspension of the meetings, but were about to be resumed when he accepted the position mentioned in the metropolis where he was born and received his first business training.

BUTTERFLIES ARE PLENTIFUL.

Midsummer Weather Prevails In Western Maryland.

CUMBERLAND, MD., Nov. 16.—(Special.)—Patrick O'Rourke, assistant county school examiner, returned yesterday afternoon from visiting the public schools in the lower section of the county, and states that butterflies are to be seen flying around as plentiful as at any time during midsummer, while honey bees are busy about the hives.

Such a condition of things never was noticed before at this season of the year in this section. Apple and peach trees are coming out in bloom for the second time. Mr. O'Rourke says that the people are going about their work on the farm in their shirt sleeves.

Senator Fox Injured.

HARRISBURG, PA., Nov. 16.—(Special.)—Senator John E. Fox met with an injury today while going to Hummelstown from this city, which may incapacitate him for some. He was riding a spirited horse which stumbled and threw him heavily to the ground. A ligament in the senator's left leg was broken and his head was badly cut. He is at the home of his cousin, H. E. Hershey, tonight.

Reported Road Is Sold.

CLARKSBURG, W. VA., Nov. 16.—(Special.)—It is stated on good authority that the Charleston, Clendennin & Sutton railroad has been sold to the Pennsylvania system. The Wabash system had been trying to buy the road for some time. It is known that they offered $2,000,000 for it.

OBJECTED TO HER FRIENDS.

Negro Shoots His Wife Fatally and Kills Himself.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Nov. 16.—(Special.)—James Rose, a negro waiter at the Tod house, tonight fatally shot his wife, Flossie, and then fired a ball through his head, dropping dead. He came here about four weeks ago from Greensburg, Pa. He had objected to his wife going with certain women and quarreled with her last night over the matter.

Tonight he went to church, then went to the house of Mrs. Anna Johnson, where his wife was. He asked his wife to go home with him. The quarrel was renewed and he shot her twice. Then he walked to his own house, told his mother what he had done and blew out his brains. He was 22 years of age and she 17. They were married July 1.

Girls on a Strike.

ALTOONA, PA., Nov. 16.—(Special.)—A strike occurred yesterday among the girls employed in the factory of the United States Cigar Company, which opened up about a week ago in this city with 150 employes. The girls claim that it had been represented to them that they would be able to make at least $1 a day, working piece work, but when they received their wages yesterday they received from $2 to $3 for the week's work.

Dr. Parker's Condition Critical.

LONDON, Nov. 16.—A bulletin issued by his physicians today says the condition of Dr. Joseph Parker, pastor of the City Temple, who has been lying seriously ill for some months, has now become very critical.

MADMAN ATTEMPTS MURDER AND SUICIDE

He Sets Fire to His House and Compels Neighbors to Pray.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., Nov. 16.—A madman, armed with a hatchet, spread terror in the shantyboat region today, attempting murder, suicide and arson. Samuel Maan, aged 25, after a long spree, went suddenly and violently insane. His first exploit was to drive his wife and boy from his home and to set fire to the place. Next he rushed to another boat where he found Moses Call and Ralph Wooley.

Brandishing a hatchet above their heads he commanded the men to pray. They obeyed, and prayed earnestly and long. Whenever they gave signs of weariness he would draw nearer and repeat his command and threats, making their petitions louder and more fervent. After he had amused himself and kept his victims almost frantic for perhaps a quarter of an hour he ran to the railroad bridge and was about to leap to certain death when workmen on the bridge caught him.

Next he attacked the boathouse of John Brighouse, tried to break in the doors and windows and threatened to kill the inmates with a hatchet. Before he got down to work two officers appeared and landed him in jail. He will be sent to an asylum.

POSITIONS FOR WOMEN.

Silk Factory at New Castle Will Employ 400.

NEW CASTLE, PA., Nov. 16.—(Special.)—A large silk factory will in all probability be erected here by a company of New York manufacturers and importers. The company will first erect a plant costing about $120,000. This will employ about 400 women and girls. The silk manufacturers desire to locate at some distance from New Jersey, the center of the silk trade, because it is now becoming difficult there to obtain skilled employes at reasonable wages, the competition being keen between various factories.

STATE AND NEIGHBORHOOD.

NEW CASTLE, PA.—A number of local men have struck a fine vein of soft coal within the precincts of the new South New Castle borough, and a mine will be opened there.

NEIGHBOR STOLE A FARMER'S TURKEYS

LATROBE, PA., Nov. 16.—(Special.)—Hiram Knupp, a well-known farmer of Ligonier valley, has originated a novel but successful method of dealing with robbers. One night recently 15 turkeys were stolen from his coop and he decided to watch for the return of the thieves. The third night of his vigil he heard the sound of approaching footsteps and stretched himself on the ground near the door. When the man came to the door Knupp grabbed him by the legs and threw him down. The robber turned out to be a neighbor who promised to return the turkeys and was allowed to go.

HOME FROM PRISON.

Ohio Man Spends Four Years In British Penitentiary for Crime He Did Not Commit.

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 16.—(Special.)—John P. Davis, aged 50 years, arrived at his home in Chardon, Geauga county, yesterday, after serving three years and nine months in the British prison on the isle of Wight for something he did not do.

Davis sailed for Europe over four years ago and on the way across fell in with some confidence men who played upon his untutored mind in a way that caused his arrest upon landing on a charge of forgery.

He could prove nothing in defense and was convicted. Cleveland business men heard of his plight last year, and after much correspondence with British authorities, secured his release.

Warfare Against Hunters.

CANONSBURG, PA., Nov. 16.—(Special.)—Farmers are waging warfare against all hunters and trespassers and a number of arrests have been made. Before Justice T. M. Potts on Saturday Leo Halter of Beltzhoover was convicted on charges of trespassing and hunting with a ferret, and was fined $61 20. Failing to pay he went to jail for 60 days.

YALE PLAYERS AT KINGSTON

Will Rest Three Days at Dewitt Cochrane's Country Seat.

GLOOM AT HARVARD

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

NEW HAVEN, CONN., Nov. 16.—Yale's football players have gone up the Hudson for a three-days' trip. Trainer Mike Murphy urged the coachers to lay off the gridiron braves for a complete rest in changed surroundings, and Dewitt Cochrane, Yale '97, invited the team to his country seat up the Hudson.

The coaches received permission from the Yale faculty to take the team away, and the players took an afternoon train from New York today for Kingston. They will return to New Haven either Tuesday or Wednesday.

The players went back to New York last night from Princeton by special train. They were the guests of the Yale club of New York later in the evening. The men were all tired, but by their game at Princeton but a careful examination by the coaches last night failed to reveal any serious injuries.

Their work the coming week will be light, Scrimmaging is expected on Wednesday or Thursday, but not of an extensive nature.

Hall Is Coaching.

The Yale substitutes came home tonight and will practice on the varsity field all the week. Word has been received that Charley Gould, captain last season, will be here this week to coach. He has been in charge of the coaching at Amherst this fall.

John Hall, the former end, arrived tonight to stay until the season closes with the Yale team.

An official of the Yale football team returning tonight stated that in yesterday's game the players averaged a loss in weight of about 10 pounds. Holt lost 14, Goss 12, and Rockwell 7 pounds, the others varying similarly. Rafferty and Goss are here, not having gone to Tarrytown with the others as guests of Dewitt Cochrane. Rafferty needs some medical attention.

Gloom at Harvard.

CAMBRIDGE, MASS., Nov. 16.—Harvard and Yale meet in their annual struggle at New Haven next Saturday. According to the scores Yale ought to win and the general trend of the betting the past week have been with slight odds on the Elis.

Harvard defense is weaker and the offense so far has shown none of the spirit of fight and determination which characterized the play last fall. In short team play up to the present time has been decidedly lacking and the game with the Quakers showed even a deficient knowledge of the rudiments of football.

The past week of secret practice is thought to have eliminated many of these faults and in spite of the hard luck it says it said the eleven has shaken together to an encouraging degree.

Corneli Hopes to Win.

ITHACA, N. Y., Nov. 16.—Cornell's great victory over Lafayette yesterday has filled the Ithaca supporters with confidence and everything is hoping for a rousing victory over Pennsylvania on Thanksgiving day. Now for Pennsylvania is the cry generally adopted, and the coaches are exceedingly hopeful that Cornell will be able to win.

The red and white will not be satisfied with mere winning, however, and it is hoped to roll up as many points as were made last year at least.

All of Cornell's players are pretty stiff and sore as a result of the game with Lafayette for aside individual player did his best, and the long hair and hot day wore the Ithacans out.

However, no serious injuries are reported. On account of the tired condition of the players practice for the next few days will be light.

Penn's Team Is Weaker.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 16.—Everything is gloomy in Penn's camp. After the splendid showing made against Harvard there were hopes that Penn would win all the remainder of her games this season.

The coaches are greatly disappointed and will have a hard time preparing the men for the final struggle with Cornell on Thanksgiving day.

The team, they claim, has slumped wonderfully in the past week, and it is feared many of the players have lost heart.

GOOD PRELIMINARY BOUT.

Manager Corcoran Trying to Arrange for the Coming Kennedy-Matthews Mill.

Fred Broad and several other good local boxers will join Eddie Kennedy at his training quarters today and help him prepare for his bout with Matty Matthews of New York, which is scheduled to take place November 25.

Matty Matthews is due in Pittsburgh tomorrow morning and will at once go to his new training quarters at McKees Rocks, which Manager Corcoran has selected for him. Matthews will be accompanied by Tommy West, who has just arrived from England, where he met Joe Walcott.

West is open to box anyone of his weight and may be induced to match with some local boxer while here. Manager Corcoran is looking for a good preliminary bout for the big boxing match and will likely arrange one today.

SHADYSIDE MEETS KISKI HERE TODAY

Saltsburg Eleven Is Stronger Than at First Meeting and Hopes to Score.

The final interscholastic football game of the local season will be played at Colosseum park, Allegheny, this afternoon when Kiskiminetas from Saltsburg lines up against Shadyside. With the lightest team in its history, Shadyside has achieved a remarkable record this season.

During the season Shadyside took eight and tied one game out of nine played. A total of 351 points has been scored by the local eleven, while her goal line has not been crossed this season. The actual stripped weight of the Shadyside team and subs is 1,580 pounds, the average being about 142 pounds.

Early in the season Shadyside took Kiski into camp by the score of 51 to 0. Since that game, however, Kiski has strengthened, and the Saltsburg team may succeed in getting the goal line behind Shadyside's goal posts, in this afternoon's contest. The game is scheduled for 3 o'clock, and Ed Young and Bob Hamilton will act as officials.

Hawley, Curry and Miller will look after the ends for Shadyside; McCutcheon and Scritchfield will fill the tackle positions; Capt. Donnelly and Kauffman will be at guards. Will Brady is the center. Quarterback will be at quarter, while the quartet of backs will be Price, Hall, Ahl and Williams.

MAY PLAY GENEVA.

Wash-Jeff Is Anxious to Meet the Beaver County College Eleven Next Saturday.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

WASHINGTON, PA., Nov. 16.—As a result of the game here yesterday between Washington and Jefferson and Pittsburgh college, the followers of the local collegians are jubilant and the greatest enthusiasm in football has been aroused.

Washington and Jefferson played the best game of the season yesterday and showed greatly improved form in every department of the game. The team and interference work was especially good and was in great contrast to the displays earlier in the season.

All the plays put into execution yesterday moved like clock work and the men all got into the playing with a snap and vim which has hitherto not characterized their work in a contest.

The greatest improvement was seen in the playing of the back field. Peeles and Longshore are undoubtedly the best pair of halves that have played here this year, and they will be kept in the remaining games of the season.

The next game on the local schedule will be with West Virginia university on Wednesday afternoon. This will be a hard contest, but there seems to be no doubt here that Washington and Jefferson will win.

It is probable that Washington and Jefferson will play Geneva next Saturday at the Beaver Falls team is willing. The local players are anious to play and every effort will be made to secure the game.

BASEBALL WAR STILL UNSETTLED

American Association and Western League Both Submit Propositions.

ADJUSTMENT LIKELY

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

CHICAGO, Nov. 16.—Representatives of the American association and the Western league baseball clubs met here today to try to effect a settlement of the warfare that has existed for the past year between the two organizations.

The trouble was caused by both leagues placing teams in Milwaukee and Kansas City, and today's meeting was called to reach it possible an amicable adjustment of the controversy.

Very little progress was made today, and unless both sides shall agree to further concessions, no agreement will be reached.

Separate meetings were held by each league, and two propositions were prepared and submitted to a board of arbitration composed of members of the National association of baseball leagues. This committee will meet here tomorrow to consider the propositions.

The American association in its first proposition submitted suggested that both leagues retain its present clubs in Kansas City and Milwaukee without a conflicting schedule. In their second proposition they ask the Western league to withdraw from Milwaukee and Kansas City, and, in return for this concession, Van Brunt of the Western league will be given a half-interest in the Kansas City American association club.

In their communication to the arbitration committee the Western league stated that it refused to sell out in Kansas City, and proposed that the American association sell its Kansas City club for $20,000. The Western league's second proposition is that the American association give up Kansas City and the Western league will relinquish Milwaukee.

DECISION WILL BE REACHED THIS WEEK

Pittsburgh Baseball Lovers Will Know If an American League Will Be Here.

Pittsburgh lovers of baseball will know definitely during the present week if an American league team will be put in this city next season. From present indications it looks as if the rival organization would get in, but the papers have yet to be signed in the deal before the local promoters get the league franchise.

It is believed that a deal has been made whereby Pittsburgh gets the American Detroit franchise. The amount of money said to have been paid is a secret. Several of the most prominent magnates in the American are scheduled to arrive here the first of his week, but it is not positively known if Ban Johnson will come to make the final arrangements.

The whereabouts of Harry C. Pulliam, secretary of the local club, are much of a mystery. Pulliam was in New York last week and held a consultation with Ban Johnson, but since that time he cannot be located. President Dreyfuss worked both telegraph lines in the Hotel Schenley over time yesterday trying to locate Pulliam, but was unsuccessful.

Capt. W. H. Kerr one of the former owners of the Pittsburgh National team, will probably be a stockholder in the new Pittsburgh American club. He said last night he had been considering the proposition for the past four weeks and was aware of the plans of the local backers of the new team.

Tommy Leach, who has been in Pittsburgh for the past few days was summoned to Loraine, O., last night by a telegram announcing the death of his brother. Leach came here to see President Dreyfuss and intended remaining in the city several days yet.

Swissvale Wants Another Game.

Being dissatisfied with the outcome of Saturday's football game the Swissvale A. C. eleven wants another game with the Brushton team. They offer to play the Brushton team for $50 on neutral and enclosed grounds. The lineups are to be the same as in Saturday's contest. It is Swissvale's proposition, in order to avoid rioting, that no spectators be allowed to witness the game outside the officials.

TIGERS SCORE PAUL DASHIEL

They Claim Chadwick's Long Runs Were Both Illegally Made.

HOLDING CHARGED

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—Despite Yale's great football victory over Princeton, in which Eli was manifestly superior to Nassau, Princeton students today found cause for complaint in the decision of Paul Dashiel of Lehigh, the umpire, in regard to several plays in yesterday's contest.

According to the Princeton students both of Chadwick's runs, which resulted in Yale's winning scores, should not have been allowed.

In the case of the first Eli tally, Princeton men say that there was holding in the line by Yale's players and that Mr. Dashiel should have brought back the ball to the spot whence the run began.

As regards the second score, according to the Nassau men, Shevlin, Yale's right end, openly tripped Davis, Princeton's left end and captain.

"Yale seemed to be pulling a tug of war instead of playing a game of football," said Ralph F. Hutchinson, the Tigers' head coach. "The Yale forwards had been taught to use their hands all they could, but they overdid the matter and should have been made to pay for it. Yale's two touchdowns were, in fact, in the opinion of many, due largely to this very disregard of the playing rules."

Football men who saw the game agree that Princeton's complaints are ill founded. They assert that the game was rough and that there was plenty of holding, tripping and punching, but that both sides were equally guilty.

No one apparently whose opinion is valuable coincides with Princeton students in their complaints. Anyhow, Mr. Dashiel during the game penalized Yale on the basis of about four times to once for Princeton.

MODERN DIANAS IN MAINE WOODS

Two Women Go Hunting, and Succeed in Killing a Big Moose.

NO FEAR OF DARKNESS

Remained With Their Trophy Until Night, and Then Were Found by a Guide—Thousands of Hunters After Game.

EUSTIS, ME., Nov. 16.—A party has arrived here from Dead river dam with all the law allows for game. The party was made up of Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Sherman, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin D. Locke of Union, Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Clement of Brownsville, Mr. Henry E. Steele of Belmont, Mr. Forrest R. Thompson of Rondout, N. Y., and Mr. Sumner L. Patten of Lakewood, N. J.

The party had been for two weeks at the dam and vicinity. The first week was passed as one of recreation, but when the season opened on moose the party set in for business. Several chases occurred in the direction of Alder stream after moose, but the men secured only three deer.

Mrs. Sherman and Mrs. Locke, who had been doing considerable practicing with the rifles during the week of rest, started out alone one morning, going up the dry bed of the small stream which showed at the dam, the men taking another direction, leaving the remaining ladies at the camp. The start was made at a little before 6 in the morning, and the intention was to return to camp in time for lunch at midday.

Night came and the two women had not returned. A search was instituted and Mrs. Sherman and Mrs. Locke were soon discovered by the guide seated by a windfall with a big moose at their feet. The two had fired seven shots into the animal before he fell, and they were unwilling to leave their trophy after it had been secured.

Fully 2,000 riflemen were in the Maine woods, with guides and equipments, ready to shoot at the first deer that showed its head on the dawn of the first "open" day, and until December 15 life will be full of peril for the noble buck and the gentle doe. It is not often that so many sportsmen are on hand at the opening of the season, but it is becoming a custom of men of leisure to go into Maine for fishing, or simply for a rest, early in the summer and remain over for the big game season, and thus the advance guard of gunners was numerous this year.

In addition to the visitors, hundreds of natives were out looking for deer, and the number of men in the woods will constantly increase, reaching probably from 8,000 to 10,000 at the height of the season, 5,000 being from out of the state. The visitors are going and coming all through the season, and it is estimated that about 10,000 go to Maine for the shooting every fall.

A few years ago it looked as if the moose species would be exterminated in Maine, but under the protection of wise laws the animals have increased in numbers. Chairman Carleton of the state fish and game commission thinks there has been no great increase of either deer or moose since last year, but there are plenty of deer, and the moose, for some reason unknown, have spread out over a wider territory than for many years.

It is estimated by good judges that about 10,000 deer are killed in Maine every year. As to the number of deer in the state, estimates vary, but old hunters who have spent their lives in the woods say that the deer population is not far from 100,000, so that a kill of 10,000 annually would take 10 per cent from the supply—a drain which should be fully made up by the natural increase of the animals.

Many estimates are made of the amount of money spent in Maine in a season by the sportsmen who visit the state in search of big game. It is said that for every deer killed by a non-resident, $100 is spent for railroad fares, hotel bills, hire of guides, etc., and that for every moose killed the sportsman spends from $500 to $1,000. Some statistics have estimated that the 10,000 sportsmen who visit Maine in a season leave behind in the hands of the various persons who serve them $2,500,000. This is probably an exaggeration, but at the rate of $100 from each visitor, Maine would get $1,000,000 a year from her big game.

Prince at San Diego.

SAN DIEGO, CAL., Nov. 16.—The crown prince of Siam arrived at San Diego this afternoon and the party immediately took carriages for a drive for Coronado. Mayor Frary and officers of the chamber of commerce called on the prince tonight and urged him to accept the city's hospitality tomorrow.

AUTOMOBILE CAUSES DEATH OF DRIVER

Frightened Team Dashes Into Curb and Occupants of Carriage Thrown Out.

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU, Ledger Building, PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 16.

An automobile scared a spirited team of horses owned by John Hohenodel, the brewer, this afternoon on Midvale avenue, and William Foster, the driver, in trying to stop them, was thrown out of the buggy and instantly killed. Mrs. Hohenodel, who was in the buggy, was seriously injured, and her companions, Miss Mayne O'Donnell, Miss Elwodd and Andrew J. Harboch, were badly shaken up.

The party spent the day at the home of Henry H. Harboch, Mrs. Hohenodel's father, in Ogontz. On the way home they went west on Midvale avenue. Foster, who was driving, had just crossed Wissahickon avenue when an automobile came along at a brisk speed. The horses broke into a gallop, and Foster, who was 50 years old, could do nothing but hold on. Westward along the avenue the frightened horses dashed. The occupants of the buggy were helpless. Foster's arms were tiring. Nearing Thirty-fifth street, Foster evidently made up his mind to turn them in.

Raising himself up, he pulled, but had not strength enough to head them. With a plunge they swerved, then straightened out again. It only took a second, yet in that brief space of time the carriage was overturned, the harness snarled, and the horses continued their wild light along the road.

Foster, the reins entangled in his hands, was hauled over the dashboard and plunged headforemost against a jagged rock on the roadside. For a fraction of a second he stood on his head. Then his body fell to the ground. He was dead. CHESTER D. POTTER.

Great Scramble for Coal.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., (Special.)—About 200 persons gathered at the office of the Raritan Coal Company a day or two ago, all eager to order coal. The crowd became so unmanageable that several persons were hurt and the windows of the office were smashed in. The office had to be abandoned temporarily.

FIRE DESTROYS ARMOUR PLANT

Flames Raze to Ground Buildings Covering Over Three Acres.

LOSS NEARLY A MILLION

Six Hundred Men Thrown Out of Employment for Winter by Destruction of Big Beef Establishment at Sioux City.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

SIOUX CITY, IA., Nov. 16.—The big plant of Armour & Co., which occupied three and a half acres of ground at the extreme south end of the stock yards district, was totally destroyed by a fire which started at 12:30 o'clock this morning on the second floor of the fertilizer building. The loss, estimated by Charles W. Lennon, manager of the company, is total, or $900,000. The insurance is $721,500.

The cause of the fire was said by Mr. Lennon to have been either spontaneous combustion or an imperfect dryer. Six hundred men will be thrown out of employment all winter by the fire.

The floors and contents of the fertilizer building burned like chaff. From the beef killing house to the oleo building was only a step, and when the lard was ignited the fire presented a most spectacular appearance. The big beef house, where 500 carcasses were hanging, caught at 2 o'clock. By this time the entire plant, except the hog house, was a lake of fire.

The roar was terrible. The country for miles around was lighted up. Suddenly came a terrific explosion, followed quickly by another, and then another. Twenty-four drums, of 100 pounds of ammonia each, exploded before the reserve supply in the ammonia cistern was reached. That ignition almost razed the entire plant from its foundation.

The fire continued to burn all day, and this afternoon there was another terrific explosion, which threw bricks and pieces of iron for hundreds of yards, endangering thousands of spectators, but no one was seriously hurt.

Plant Will be Rebuilt.

KANSAS CITY, MO., Nov. 16.—C. W. Armour of the Armour Packing Company stated today that the Sioux City plant will be rebuilt at once, larger and finer than the one burned.

GEORGE A. HENTY DEAD

Favorite Writer of Boy's Historical Novels and Noted as War Correspondent in Crimea.

LONDON, Nov. 16.—George Alfred Henty, novelist and war correspondent, died today.

Henty, one of the most productive and popular of English authors, was born at Trumpington, near Cambridge, in 1832. While a student at Cambridge he left the university for war service in the Crimea. He afterward became a special war correspondent of the London Standard and went through the Austro-Italian, Franco-Prussian and Turco-Servian wars.

The experience he thus gained he turned to account in a long series of semi-historical tales for boys, of which he wrote over 70, these appearing for many years with unfailing regularity.

FINE MUSEUM IN A LOG CABIN

Remarkable Collection That Has Been Brought Together by a Backwoodsman.

VALUABLE SPECIMENS

Ten Thousand Pieces, of Which the Old Collector Is So Proud That He Refuses to Part With Them at Any Price.

SEATTLE, WASH., Nov. 16.—In a little old cabin amid the sage brush and sand on the desert shore of the great Columbia is a collection of curios and relics that would grace any museum in the United States. With its barren desert surroundings the collection seems as much out of place as a common, every-day piece of wood would in the Smithsonian Institution museum.

D. W. Owen, who lives in a four-room cabin three-quarters of a mile east of Kennewick, has amassed the museum in the desert after 40 years of constant gathering. He has distributed among his little rooms in drawers, on tables, on the walls and floors, and hung in every conceivable shape, over 10,000 separate pieces. So rare are some and so numerous the lot that their value is probably between $8,000 and $10,000.

Yet not a single specimen can be bought. "I have a little money—enough to keep me going, and this is my joy out here; so they are not on sale at any price," was the characteristic answer of the old pioneer when asked why he did not sell the museum and retire. Travelers are not too numerous in Kennewick, and those who chance to hear of the curiosity back down at the expanse of sage and sand which must be crossed on foot to reach the cabin. So the fame of the collection has never gone abroad.

The latest acquisition to the curios is a pair of whale ribs from Neah bay. They are 102 inches long and make a curious support for the veranda of his cabin.

Fine Bone Collection.

Accompanying them is one of the finest bone collections in the state, comprising the skeleton bones of a giant mastodon dug up in the Horse Heaven country, a tooth from the same monstrosity weighing over a pound, and two and one-half inches wide, skulls of Indians from the Colville reservation, skulls of Flathead Indians secured from graves in Oregon after great difficulty and danger, the skull of a great auk, now the rarest bird in existence; the backbone of a man-eating shark, and many other rare and curious parts of the anatomies of various animals.

It is the diversity of Owen's collection that constitutes one of its most remarkable features. He has invaded pretty nearly every field save that of the postage stamp collector and the snake fiend. A history of the Indian wars of the early times of North America, dated 1667, and perhaps the last of its kind west of the Mississippi, is prominent among the relics of the collection. A currency bill, dated 1690, for which Mr. Owens has refused $100, another, its face value is 24 shillings. Besides this, there are rare bills of revolutionary times neatly arranged in a small frame, whose precious inclosures are worth probably $500 to coin collectors; a testament of 1795, and many others.

That Mr. Owens is not afraid of thieves is demonstrated by the fact that some of the most valuable of his collection is left out all of the time on the veranda, where it never seems to suffer any harm.

The South Seas, China and Japan and other portions of Asia have furnished their quota for the collection. A skein of silk from Sumatra, just as it is reeled off the cocoon, is a curiosity. So is a genuine girdle secured from a Samoan woman, and made of banana fiber. In the South Sea collection are also a Samoan hat of banana fiber, bolos, machetes, shells galore, and an occasional piece of currency.

Indian Relics.

Indian mementoes are numerous in the museum of the desert. There is an aggregation of Indian pipes gathered from Mexico to the land of the Eskimos that would make a professional collector turn green with envy. There are bows, arrows and quivers from all over, besides a unique lot of articles dug up from Indian graves, mortar and pestle stones, feathers, skinning stones and all kinds of beads.

Mr. Owen has amassed 2,000 arrow points, including the most curious sizes and shapes ever used in hunt and war by the redskins. There is a tomahawk and other articles used by the Indians of the Hudson bay country in Northern Canada, a tobacco pouch and pipes from the Eskimos, a curious lot of pipes from Alaska, a whalebone fish line three feet long with hooks, from Greenland; Eskimo fish snakes, walrus teeth, etc.

The coin-collecting team, too, has been entered by this versatile old resident, who has secured coins from every continent. A number of rare American coins are among these, dating back to the 17th century. He has a scarce one dated 1788, only three molds of which were cast in the New Haven mint. A dried bouquet from the garden of Bethlehem and curiosities from the Dead sea are in the Holy Land department.

The taxidermist division is filled with stuffed owls, pheasants, sage hens and various animals. In the front room there is a table half full of mineral curiosities from all over the world. Of stones and rocks there are Japanese idols, curious formations from Arizona, North Carolina, and a fossil collection from almost every state in the union. Shells by the myriad from all over embellish the backgrounds to the larger pieces.

EACH HAS HIS TALENT.

Man Must Employ His Properly, Says Young John D. Rockefeller.

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—(Special.)—J. D. Rockefeller, Jr., led the young men's bible class of the Fifth Avenue Baptist church this morning. Referring to the parable of the talents, Mr. Rockefeller said:

"No matter what the talent confided to us, it is our duty to employ it. To every man Christ has given some talent; by talent I mean ability. Every man is expected to invest the talent he has. We cannot invest five talents until we have learned

PATTON'S PLEA FOR THE Y.M.C.A.

Eminent Presbyterian Divine Addressed Big Audience In East Liberty Church.

HE ASKED FOR $250,000

At the Twenty-Eighth Anniversary of East Liberty Branch of Y. M. C. A. Contributions Were Taken for a New Building.

In the celebration of the 28th anniversary of the East Liberty branch of the Young Men's Christian Association last night, in the East Liberty Presbyterian church, an appeal was made for a subscription of $250,000 for the extension of the association's work.

The Rev. Dr. Francis L. Patton, president of the theological seminary at Princeton, addressed the meeting and asked Christians to exemplify their present day aggressiveness by giving the Y. M. C. A. generous support.

Dr. Patton's address was the first of a series of discourses which will be given by him in Pittsburgh this week on "The Ethics of Theism." More than 1,100 persons attended the meeting last night and the auditorium was crowded to the top balcony. The reports of the Y. M. C. A. branch showed a wonderfully successful year and large contributions were made toward the support of the institution.

REV. DR. F. L. PATTON.
The Well-Known Theologian From Princeton.

"I wish that my words will be instrumental in working great benefits for this noble institution," said Dr. Patton, referring to the undertakings which have been planned by the Y. M. C. A., "because I consider the Young Men's Christian Association one of the greatest accessory organizations of the church. Its scope offers boundless opportunities for good work and I trust that the appeal for aid will meet with a liberal response."

Three Classes of Christians.

Dr. Patton then called the attention of the congregation to three classes of Christians, the intellectual, the emotional and those who abide their belief in the exercise of the will. He said that Christianity should be founded on an intellectual basis and lauded the intellectual Christian, who, he said, persisted in finding out things and established his religion on his knowledge of the scriptures, being free from idle enthusiasm of the fanatic. Some emotional Christians, he declared, had a sentimental love for Jesus, which in reality, often meant no religion at all. They were easily recognized. They knew more about their hymn books than anything else.

"I believe in starting at the beginning," said Dr. Patton. 'Believe first in God and then believe also in me.' Our emotional brother has his faults. If the sermon does not impress his emotional nature he thinks something is wrong. He is apt to mistake emotion for piety. On the other hand we should not belittle a man because he gives loose rein to his emotions. When we get to heaven we shall be asked if we believe, rather than how he believe.

Religious Aggressiveness.

"Religion today is not symbolized by the head or by the heart, but by the hand. This is an epoch of religious activity and aggressiveness. In this age Christians are not worrying about dogmas and obscure theories, but in extending the gospel and in carrying the words of Christ to the hearts of men, and a part of this great philanthropy is shown in the glorious work of the Young Men's Christian association."

Marcellus C. Adams, chairman of the East Liberty branch, presided at the meeting. On the platform were also the Rev. Dr. Frank W. Sneed, pastor of the East End church; the Rev. Robert J. Young and the Rev. Dr. J. H. McIlvaine.

In his report Mr. Adams stated that the buildings were inadequate for the association and that many contemplated good projects were abandoned because of the lack of room. The year closed with a membership of 703, an increase of 98 over that of the previous year. The attendance at the rooms was 47,707, not including those who attended the Sunday meetings. The aggregate attendance for the year was almost 50,000. In the gymnasium there were 10,004 in the exercising classes.

Work of East Liberty Branch.

The educational work kept pace with the other departments and shows gain in both numbers and quality of work. There were held during the year four classes, meeting once a week for 24 sessions, one in penmanship, bookkeeping and arithmetic, with an attendance of 208; one in shorthand, with an attendance of 147; one in mechanical drawing, with an attendance of 107. The library has been greatly improved by a new and much better located bookcase and the addition of about 150 new books. Over 80 periodicals are kept on file in the reading room and are in almost constant use.

The association's religious work has been equally encouraging, and three Bible classes, held throughout the year, showed a steady increase in attendance. The social development of the members was not neglected, and the entertainments, receptions and banquet met with uniform success. Plans are being made for a new building, and it is thought that funds will be subscribed which will enable the association to take up more extensive work.

SIGHT BY FAITH.

The Rev. W. J. Russell Says It Is Better Than Glimpse of Christ's Earthly Presence.

At the East End Christian church, the Rev. W. J. Russell preached Sunday morning on the "Holy Spirit in Conversion and in the Heart of the Believer." In answer to the question, "Why was the coming of the Holy Spirit conditioned on the glorification of Christ?" he said:

We cannot believe that this limitance to the reception of the Paraclete was an arbitrary one, imposed by divine sovereignty. It was made inevitable by infinite wisdom as seen manifested under the operation of divine law.

The whole trend of scripture pointed to Christ's universal reign, but this could not be realized in his earthly conditions and limitations; hence it was expedient for his followers that he should go away and send them another comforter. An omnipresent agent is needed for a universal kingdom. A spirit presence must take the place of a sense-presence.

Then, too, faith is the basis and condition of spiritual life. There is deep significance in the Master's words to Thomas: "Because thou hast seen, thou hast believed; blessed are they that have not seen, and yet have believed." But to enjoy such an highly developed walk by faith it was necessary that the bodily presence of the Lord should give place to the spiritual.

There must be an invisible Saviour who has ascended above, that men's souls may be developed upward, and not downward, heavenward and not earthward. Christ must therefore go, in order that the Holy Spirit may come. And this constant seeing Him by faith is worth infinitely more than a thousand fitful glimpses of His mere bodily presence, however dear.

PARENTS SHOULD BE LIKE THE PURITANS

Laxity in Raising Children Threatens Future of America as a Nation.

The Rev. Thomas J. Leak preached a sermon in the Oakland Methodist Episcopal church last night on "A Carnival of Crime." He said in part:

Murders in high places and low, suicides among the rich and poor, burglaries, larcenies, arsons, embezzlements, forgeries, divorces, crimes of almost every kind in increasing numbers in a land boasting of its prosperity, intelligence and Christianity. What does it mean? Surely it becomes the lover of his kind to inquire into the causes of the lawlessness so prevalent among us.

One of these causes, I apprehend, may be found in the laxity of parental training in our homes. It has been the fashion of late to sneer at the strictness of the Puritan parents of some years ago, but they produced a generation of men and women who have made our country what it is today in financial prosperity and political power. We, their successors, have been going to the other extreme, and ofttimes the children rule our homes.

They attend week day and Sunday school, as they please, choose their own companions and pleasures, and too frequently ignore their parents in all their movements. This is not because the parents of today love their children more than those of years ago, but because they do not recognize the responsibilities that rest upon them. It is a solemn thing to start a soul upon its immortal career, and having done so, the parent should make it the business of his life to guide that soul in right paths. Children who do not learn obedience at home will scarcely be prepared for obedience to the state.

Another cause of present lawlessness is the failure of authorities to enforce civil laws. Many laws upon our statute books are violated without attracting the attention of those who have sworn to enforce them. Our officers too frequently take it upon themselves to choose what laws they will enforce and pass by others. It is their business to enforce all laws, leaving it to legislation to make them.

Perhaps another difficulty is that the pulpit, which should "cry loud and spare not," has not always been faithful in its teachings. Some men, who do not lead exemplary lives, pay high pew rent, and their special vices are left untouched, and the voice that should thunder against all forms of wrong is hushed and consciences of wrongdoers are allowed to slumber, while they go on in their sins in increasing ratio.

We should return to faithfulness in rearing children to a respect for law and order, to an earnest enforcement of civil law and to the sincere preaching of a full gospel. The church and society must awaken to their needs, or in spite of our great achievements as a people the time will come when over the portals of our nation shall be written: "Ichabod, its glory hath departed." A return to God and obedience to His laws alone can save us.

RABBI LEVY TALKS UPON "PREJUDICE"

Says Education and Civilization Will Eventually Dispel Enmity Towards His People.

Before a large congregation yesterday Rabbi J. Leonard Levy delivered his fourth Sunday lecture of the second series on the subject of "Prejudice." Dr. Levy dealt with social and religious prejudices and pleaded earnestly for a recognition of the honesty of the motives that impelled men and women to adhere to their religious convictions. He spoke in part as follows:

Prejudice is an attitude of the mind that prevents correct judgment. It is a "judging-beforehand," and as such is always an evidence of a lack of proper mental poise. The evolutionist accounts for its existence by regarding it as a survival of a purely animal trait in man. The ant which enters a foreign ant-hill is an object of suspicion and frequently of combat. A dog which leaves its own for other quarters in Constantinople is chased out by the canines already in possession. This tendency has survived in man and heredity and environment have often accentuated it.

And yet like every object in creation, prejudice has served a purpose. There is a soul of good in all things evil and a soul of truth in all things false; and prejudice has served to compel every one who would disturb existing conditions by reason of discovery or invention or reform, prove his right to be heard.

Through the ages came the authoritative (?) statements, "The Jew is the accursed of God and man; he is an inferior people; he is anti-governmental in his tendencies; he is the God killer; he is and deserves to be an outcast." Such were the statements hurled at the people of Israel for ages, during which they were denied equal rights with their fellow men and forced into filthy ghettoes and compelled by law to be "the sponges" of society to take up its money, so that sordid kings and impecunious emperors might squeeze it out of them. Nowhere free, nowhere equal with others, nowhere accepted, everywhere despised, dreaded and denied, it is no wonder that to this day certain untenable prejudices exist against the Jew.

I am hopeful that liberty, education, the progressive era in which we live, will all tend to modify the prejudices current among men.

A man's religion is his private concern. All we ask of our fellow men is that they will be as loyal to the best in their faith as we shall seek to be the best in Judaism.

RAILROAD MEN HAD CELEBRATION

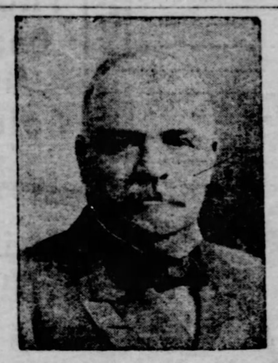
Nineteenth Anniversary of P. R. R. Young Men's Christian Association.

RAMSEY IS NOT THERE

President of Wabash Was to Have Addressed Big Gathering at Pitcairn, But Misses Connections.

The nineteenth anniversary of the Pennsylvania Railroad department of the Young Men's Christian association of Pittsburgh was celebrated in the car shop, Pitcairn, yesterday afternoon. It was expected that the annual address would be delivered by Joseph Ramsey, Jr., president of the Wabash railroad, and nearly 2,500 people were in attendance. President Ramsey, who is in New York, called up Chairman William M. McIntyre yesterday morning on the long distance telephone and informed him that he would be unable to attend the anniversary and deliver the address, as he had missed his train the evening before and found it impossible to make the train leaving New York at 9 o'clock. The annual address was delivered by W. K. Jennings, a director of the association.

At the rear of the temporary stage a large American flag was spread, and from the center of the platform two banners entwined bore the keystone, the emblem of the Pennsylvania, and the flag of the Wabash.



Robert Pitcairn.

Benefit of Good Examples.

The meeting was presided over by William M. McIntyre, chairman of the committee of management. It was opened by a selection from church hymns and sacred songs, followed by reading from Scripture by the Rev. George Downing, pastor of the First Baptist church, and prayer by the Rev. T. P. Orner, pastor of the United Brethren church of Pitcairn. Selections were given by a quartet of male singers. A collection was then taken up for the work of the international committee, after which the annual address was delivered.

Mr. Jennings spoke in part as follows:

Mr. McIntyre promised me 10 per cent increase in my salary, to place me on a par with other Pennsylvania railroad employes, if I'd come and talk, but as my monthly salary is nothing now, it won't increase it much.

We have learned that if a man wishes to be successful or useful in the Christian cause, he must be either something or nothing. We have among us since this work has been in progress, in daily contact, men who have worked and lived daily Christian lives. If we had no living examples of such men and women before us, we might have an abstract idea of Christ, but the effect on our consciousness would not be the same as if we saw them daily.

We have men on the railroads qualified to teach the Bible class or to speak to their fellow men on any Christian work. That is the kind of work that is successful.

Cares for the Young Man.

This is an age of vast commercial enterprise in railroads, mills, etc. They have one common object to minister to the comfort and well being and convenience of mankind. The association differs from other organization in that it emphasizes the value of young men, the hope of the church and country.

At the beginning of the last century only 36,000, or 3 per cent of the young Americans were in cities. At the end of the century there were 5,000,000 or 41 per cent in the cities. They did not require the attention in 1800 they do now. The exclusive work of the Young Men's Christian association is not rescue work, although that is one of its noble objects, but there is a vast army of self-respecting young men, who need to be guided right before they become entangled in the paths of sin. Ninety-five per cent of the young men of the country are not church members, and this is the broad field in which the association has to work.

The Rev. Dr. D. F. Kohler, pastor of the Presbyterian church of Pitcairn, was the next speaker. He said in part: "The association, while primarily a religious organization, ministers to other wants of the young man. It gives social acquaintances and standing in the community in which he lives. It also gives him a chance to get or increase his education and helps him to lead a moral life."

Ramsey's Absence Regretted.

Oliver McClintock, who was the first president of the Young Men's Christian association in this city, spoke of the early history of the association. He urged that all young men in the large audience join the association.

Robert Pitcairn said: "This life is made up of pleasures, regrets, blessings and disappointments. We have one regret this afternoon, that the one who was to make the annual address is not with us. It is a regret that we meet here in this room, and disappointment that we are not meeting in another room. It is not the fault of a company that has just given its employes an increase of 10 per cent in wages, making a total of $6,000,000, that the association has not its own home. We have with us here the men who have supported and sustained our association, and we extend to them our sincere thanks. Robert A. Orr and his coadjutors of the Young Men's Christian association have all the thanks they need when they simply glance over this vast audience."

Other addresses were mae by Robert A. Orr and E. B. Buckalew. The meeting closed with benediction by the Rev. O. A. Emerson.

The annual report, read by Mr. McIntyre, was very flattering to the association. It shows a gain of 14 per cent in membership, and that the finances were in good condition.

CHURCH'S CAMPAIGN TO SAVE YOUNG MEN

The Rev. John A. Jayne Takes Up Problem That Is of Local Importance.

At the Observatory Hill Christian church yesterday morning the Rev. John A. Jayne continued his series of sermons on "Problems That Confront Pittsburgh Churches," his special theme being "The Church and Young Men." He said in part:

Upon the authority of a careful statistician of Pittsburgh, I am prepared this morning to make the statement that more men are attending church, and are members of some branch of the church, than in the years of the past. But the fact remains there are countless thousands of young men in these two cities who never attend religious services of any kind, unless it be an occasional funeral or memorial service of their order.

The causes are not far to seek for this laxity. The open saloon, the brothel house unchallenged, the chop suey houses attract a certain class of young men. Did the frequenters of these resorts know that a carefully prepared list of their names is held by the proprietors, and these lists are used in after days for blackmailing purposes, some of them, I think, would hesitate before continuing the practice of visitation.

Then, too, the general scepticism of the age influences many a young man. Too many young men think it manly to cherish and express doubts relative to divine things. Doubts are bound to come into the mind of the thinking young man, but honest investigation and study as the result of Christian philanthropy will convince the young man that while the followers of the Nazarene are bound and narrowed in their thought by the limitations of their flesh, yet the "Founder of the Christian system stands incomparable, and with Pilate they must declare, 'I find no fault in him.'"

Another reason for our young men not attending church worship is found too frequently in the example set by the father and the mother in the home. When father or mother has no religious conviction that is expressed in a godly life, rarely is it that the son will turn aside from the example of parents. It is so easy to drift, so easy to idle the Lord's day away, so easy to point to the faults and failures of others, and make this the excuse for their own laxity, that young men too often without conscious effort form habits of life that shall follow them all through their earthly career. Against this growing tide of carelessness on the part of our young men the church must array itself. The only way in which our young men will be redeemed for God and made to become pillars in the church of Christ will be by the pathway of individual consecration on the part of the church members, personal words of counsel and advice, good example in the home, honesty and intelligence in dealing with the young man's doubts and godly, Christian living on the part of each and all.

WAITED TO GET IN.

Attendance at Sunday Afternoon Services in Bijou Large—150 Were Converted

The increasing interest in the Sunday afternoon services at the Bijou theater was greatly in evidence yesterday, as a large crowd had gathered before the doors opened. Yesterday afternoon the Rev. S. Edward Young, who is in charge of the services, preached on Hebrew ii:9 "But We See Jesus."

Music by a big choir and two solos by Benjamin F. Butts, together with colored stereopticon pictures made from photographs taken by the Rev. Mr. Young on a recent European tour, added to the attractiveness of the meeting.

When the services were concluded, the Rev. Mr. Young asked all those who were ready to accept Christ to rise, and fully 150 responded, the great majority of whom were men. Rev. Young left last night for Philadelphia, where he will address today a mass meeting of the ministers and elders of Philadelphia presbytery on evangelistic work. In the evening he will speak before a grand rally of the Presbyterian churches of the city and on Tuesday will visit Princeton university and seminary.

The distress, apprehension, inconvenience and danger of Asthma, can all be overcome by Dr. D. Jayne's Expectorant if administered according to directions.

Beauty and Health

From the point of view of beauty what we drink is quite as important as what we eat. Water is the natural solvent of all food, and as it constitutes about 75 per cent of the mass of the body, its importance is obvious.

The Importance of What We Drink.

For those with pale cheeks, it may be necessary occasionally to look upon the wine when it is red. The anaemic are benefited by clarets and burgundies. Malt liquors like ale, stout, porter, and so forth, should never be taken by those who would be the happy possessors of a fair skin. The tendency of such coarse liquors is to produce unhealthy fermentation in the stomach, and to interfere with the healthy action of the liver, and this, as everyone knows, is the most potent cause of a muddy, pasty, or even bile-stained complexion. Cider is an admirable drink, when it is really genuine.

Aerated waters of all kinds, such as lemonade and ginger beer, should be taken in strict moderation, the sweeter kinds being apt to cause derangemnt of digestion. Iced liquids, if taken at all, must be sipped slowly; any sudden flooding of the stomach with fluid at the freezing point should be sedulously avoided. Ice taken internally tends to upset, and sometimes arrest, digestion, with very untoward results so far as the skin is concerned; so drinks containing it should be avoided by those who are in the least dyspeptic.

Liquors tend to injure the complexion through their injurious action on the liver, while port, sherry, brandy and whisky certainly do not make for beauty.

A little weak tea is unobjectionable, but cocoa or chocolate with cream is far better. Coffee tends to intensify gastric catarrh, and, while harmless to the healthy, is bad for the dyspeptic. Milk is hardly to be regarded as a drink, but when well diluted with soda water, is often taken as a beverage. It is certainly beneficial to the complexion.

Very little care will keep the hands looking nice, especially if they are naturally white. The first condition of beauty is absolute and uninterrupted cleanliness. Extremes of heat and cold are detrimental; therefore, the hands should be washed in lukewarm water and good soap, dried on a soft towel and dried finally at a fire or register. This last point should be observed more particularly in cold weather, as the least moisture promotes chapping, and the perspiration of summer generally is sufficient to keep the hands soft. At night some vaseline or cold cream may be rubbed in. Aside from manicuring this is generally all the attention necessary for white hands.

Caring for the Hands.

If one's hands are red they may be whitened by rubbing them at night with sweet almond oil and wearing very loose dogskin or undressed kid gloves through the night. A paste made of almond oil and powdered chalk is also an excellent whitener and a more elaborate one is made from

Yolks of fresh eggs	2
Oil of sweet almonds	3 tablespoonfuls
Rosewater	86 grams
Tincture of benzoin	8 grams

Beat the yolks of the eggs with the oil; then put in the rosewater and last the tincture of benzoin and thoroughly mix all. Apply at night after thoroughly cleansing and drying the hands. Wear the loose gloves whenever any paste or oil is applied both to retain the emollient and protect the bed linen. Sometimes redness of the hands is caused by tight clothing and by easing the tightness the unhandsome effect is removed.

If you live in the country you can easily catch fresh rainwater for the toilet, and, of course, will use no other. If you live in town and the water supplied is hard, soften it with just a wee drop of ammonia. Be careful not to use much, as it renders the skin dry and harsh.

Keeping the Skin Healthy.

If you come home from work on a hot day take a good warm bath, not hot, but a trifle warmer than your body. It will refresh you wonderfully. Then eat your supper. In cold weather the best and generally most convenient time to bathe is before going to bed. For most persons the warm bath at this time is best. Hot water is stimulating and tends to keep one awake. Few people can prudently take more than two tubbings a week, and many find one all their constitutions can stand. A sponge bath may be taken between tubbings.

Cold baths are only to be recommended to persons of hardy constitutions. In the morning a cold splash on the face and neck will be found beneficial, and a little salt dissolved in the water will heighten the tonic effect. Common salt will do, but sea salt is cheap and may be obtained almost anywhere. Use only a good reputable soap, and always rinse it off thoroughly.

If you have a dark rough ring about your neck, caused by high collars, wash the neck every night with warm soft water, dry thoroughly, and rub in some olive oil, cocoa butter or cucumber cream —any of the pure vegetable oils. The mark will soon disappear and your neck will be soft and white, but discard the high stiff collars. Soft silk stocks, ribbons, or in hot weather a Puritan kerchief with some lace around it are all prettier and more comfortable, and at present more stylish than the stiff effect.

Be spotlessly clean always; take your warm bath once a week, twice if it agrees with you, and if you haven't time for sponge baths between, a brisk rub with a rough towel will set the skin to work.

Keeping the heart young keeps the face young. There is nothing so fatal to the youthful appearance as a woman settling down to the conviction that she is growing old, "too old" to dance; "too old" for this; and "too old" for that. Let other women make these remarks, as they are certain to when they see how thoroughly you enjoy life. It is only a question of time when they will follow in your footsteps and begin life again themselves.

Keeping Young.

The removal of superfluous hair by electricity is certain of success. It is, however, somewhat painful and taxes the endurance of both the patient and the physician. A fine needle, or jeweler's brooch, connected with the negative pole of a galvanic battery, is introduced deeply into the hair follicle, following the direction of the hair. The patient now closes the current by touching a sponge connected with the positive pole. Twenty to 30 seconds suffice to allow the caustic alkali, which forms around the needle while the current is closed, to destroy that part of the skin from which the hair develops. Fifty or more hairs may be removed at a sitting, and if the operation be performed skillfully, very few return. Warts, moles and birthmarks can be removed in the same manner.

Removing Superfluous Hair.

Four or five centuries ago there was a superstition common in Europe that the devil was always lurking about watching his chance to enter and take possession of men. The fiend generally entered by way of the mouth, but when he had waited a reasonable length of time, and a man did not open his mouth, the devil made him yawn, and then took the opportunity to jump down his throat. So many cases of this "devilish possession" occurred that the people learned to make the sign of the cross over their mouths when they yawned, to scare the devil away. The peasants in Italy and Spain are still often seen to do this, though most people now simply place the hand over the mouth to keep the devil out.

Keep Your Mouth Closed.

As we watch people at their work, in church, at social gatherings, or in any situation where the mind is very much preoccupied, they are quite apt to have their mouths open, and this is the greatest opportunity for the devil of infection to enter and take possession. Especially is this true as the cold weather advances and the difference in temperature increases between the body and the atmosphere.

The sinuous nasal passage with its fringe of hair at the beginning, is intended to warm and strain the air before it enters the sensitive lungs. Mouth-breathers are liable to colds, sore throats and pneumonia, particularly when they keep up the dangerous practice night and day.

One should always be most particular to keep the mouth closed when coming out of a warm room into the cold air, and also during sleep, as these are the times when the system is especially liable to attack. Do not be tempted to talk much when facing a cold wind, and try always to draw deep breaths through the nose.

For chapped lips wring a soft linen cloth, in which a little borax has been dissolved, out of hot water, and press to your mouth, repeating this operation several times daily. At night smear with mutton tallow; this is not an agreeable remedy, but it is most effectual. When the sores have somewhat healed over touch them carefully with iodine. Continue this every night, using the hot water daily and you will soon cure the trouble. The mouth may be washed daily with a lotion made of: Tincture of nux vomica, 2 drams; quinine, 15 grains; tincture of rhubarb, ½ ounce.

There are various ways of straightening irregular teeth. One method is by the pressure of gold springs upon rubber plates attached to the teeth. In another the wooden wedges are adjusted to plates and inserted between the teeth, which are in consequence moved by the swelling of the wood. Rubber wedges are used in a similar manner and are less severe. This work is effective only when applied in early age.

Basketry remains a most popular form of fancy-work for young women. It is an art easy to acquire, and fascinating in its development, for so soon as a few lessons have been taken, the worker sees stimulating possibilities in giving rein to her own fancy in designing. Many Christmas presents will take this form, as the range of service for the reed bowls and boxes is wide and useful.

A pretty gift which a bridesmaid made for the bride at a recent wedding was a complete set of sachets for silver, handkerchiefs, gloves and veils. They were made of white satin, padded with honeysuckle and bees, and lined with amber satin to tone with the honeysuckle. Any other decoration preferred could be used in either embroidery or painting.

HANDSOME WOMEN WERE ON PARADE

Beauty and Fashion Thronged the Parks Yesterday Afternoon.

ART ATTRACTED 10,000

Flower Show Still Magnificent. Lemare's Growing Popularity. New Attraction Fails to Reach the Zoo.

The beauty and fashion of Pittsburgh yesterday took advantage of a rare day in November's capricious weather to pay another pilgrimage to the fleeting attractions at Schenley and Highland parks. A greater assemblage of beautiful women was perhaps never seen in a public outdoor gathering in this city. The sunshine offered the same opportunities for a display of fall gowns that the Easter morning dress promenade does for the inspection of spring millinery, and no woman seemed to overlook the fact.

There were 50,000 people in Schenley park. Some went in stylish turnouts and a great number whisked along the driveways in automobiles, but the great majority crowded the trolley cars and wandered through the Carnegie institute, the Phipps conservatory and the romantic hollows of the pleasure ground on foot, and seemed to be not the least bit envious of those who rode behind prancing horses or over a whirring motor.

People's Day in the Parks.

It was People's day and the best people were there, representing the intelligent, well-dressed, pleasure-loving class that give bountiful appreciation to the works of philanthropists.

It was advertised as the last day of the chrysanthemum show, but Supt. William Falconer denied this. There are still hundreds of fresh blooms on view at the Phipps conservatory, and they are equal to the finest varieties that were seen at the opening of the show. In addition to the display of chrysanthemums, one entire wing of the big greenhouse is devoted entirely to an exhibit of Chinese primroses, calla lillies, fragran sileria and lady slipper orchids. Twenty thousand visitors filed through its winding paths yesterday.

The music hall and the art galleries at the institute shared honors for a large attendance. Edwin H. Lemare is gaining in popularity and 3,500 listened to his organ recital. The doors were closed before the performance began and until its close the corridors were filled with people anxious to secure a seat.

Ten Thousand in the Galleries.

From 10 o'clock in the morning until the doors were closed late in the afternoon, the museum and the art galleries were crowded. There was little opportunity for art lovers to sit and admire their favorite pictures, as the crowded condition of the hall kept the visitors almost constantly moving about. It was an appreciative crowd, however, the people seeming to have a thorough knowledge of the canvases and of the work of the painters. More catalogues were sold yesterday than on any day since the opening of the exhibition. The official reports place the attendance at 10,000.

The 15,000 visitors to the Highland park zoo found Manager Tretow cast down by disappointment. He had expected to surprise his guests by a new animal, but it did not arrive, disappointing the ambitious keeper at the last moment. A tapir, the long-nosed water deer of South America, had been promised to the zoo on Saturday night, and the white pelicans were removed from their pen in the west corridor to make room for the new tenant. A tapir has never been seen at the local zoo, and the keeper had imagined great things when the Sunday crowd would see the newcomer.

Tretow Talks About His Pets.

"No, the tapir didn't come," said Tretow, "and every time I pass those white pelicans they hiss at me. I expect to receive the tapir tomorrow. About a year ago we got one, but it was sick when it arrived and died the day following its arrival. The tapir, you know, is a beast that has its habitat in the marshes of South America and is seldom seen in captivity. It is the Cyrano de Bergerac of the quadrupeds. Why is it called the Cyrano? Because it has a nose at least 10 inches long."

The keeper laughed at his own joke and began counting on his fingers after the manner of an aged man when he sums up his grandchildren.

"I was just counting the lions," he said. "We're overstocked with them and will endeavor to trade some of them for other specimens. We have 12 still with us, having recently sold 'Columbus,' 'Dewey' and 'Denver.' The crazy lioness, which we called 'Carrie Nation,' was sold to a circus some time ago. The dean of the lion cage is old 'Prince' over there. With his better half, 'Annie,' he came here from Schenley park. 'George' and 'Judy' and 'Charlie' and 'Martha' are a quartet of our old lions, and we are loath to part with them."

SEATS FOR GUESTS ONLY.

New Russian Orthodox Church to be Consecrated Next Sunday—Ambassador to be Present.

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—(Special.)—Located in Ninety-seventh street near Fifth avenue, the Russian Orthodox Church of St. Nicholas has been so far completed that the services of consecration is to be held next Sunday. The Russian bishop of this country, Bishop Tikhon, is coming from the Pacific coast to officiate at the ceremony, and nearly all the Russian priests of the country will be present.

The consecration service is expected to last fully three hours. Seats will be provided for the invited guests, among whom will be the Russian ambassador and consul, but ordinarily there are no seats in Russian churches, the congregation standing or kneeling throughout the long services.

An interesting feature of the Russian church government is the fact that the priests of the church must all be married men, no young man being placed in charge of church or mission until he has found a wife. The bishops, on the other hand, must be celibates, and are chosen therefore from the Russian monasteries.

SUNDAY SCHOOL WORK.

How to Maintain It at a High Standard Discussed by Braddock Workers Yesterday.

The pastors of all the Braddock Protestant churches, the superintendents of the Sunday schools, together with the teachers of the latter and all those interested in Sabbath school work in that vicinity, made an audience of about 400 persons that met yesterday afternoon in the Parker Avenue United Presbyterian church, Braddock, to discuss methods of stirring greater interest in Sunday school work, and maintaining it.

A number of addresses were made. Mrs. J. W. Barnes of Allegheny, an officer of the State Sabbath School association, and Miss Hanlon, connected officially with the state primary department of Sunday school work, were among those who spoke.

BISHOP CONFIRMS 450 NEW MEMBERS

One of the Largest Classes in Local History Joins St. Joseph's Church.

St. Joseph's Roman Catholic church, Liberty avenue and Main street, Bloomfield, was crowded yesterday afternoon, when the Rt. Rev. Bishop Richard Phelan confirmed a class of 450 candidates for admission to the faith, one of the largest in the history of local churches. Special music of a noteworthy character was rendered, and the bishop delivered a special sermon to the candidates, both male and female.

The services opened at 3 o'clock, with an organ prelude, followed by a selection from the large choir. The list of candidates were read, and as each answered to his or her name, they marched to the front of the church and formed a large semicircle before the chancel. All were gowned in cassocks. Each in turn was asked the customary questions by the bishop, who blessed them at the conclusion of their interrogation.

Still standing in front of the church Bishop Phelan preached a sermon to them. He spoke of the seriousness of their position, as candidates for admission to the church, and told them what would be expected of them in the future. As the class included a number of conversions to the faith, the bishop directed a portion of his sermon to them. He said that as they had fully considered their determination to abandon their old faith and join the new, the future was entirely in their hands. He urged all to be strictly conscientious, and to be faithful to Catholicism.

The church was profusely decorated, and selections by the choir and the organ were interspersed with the ceremony, which occupied over two hours. At the conclusion of the services the choir sang Gounod's "Gloria Del."

MISSIONARIES ARE COMMANDED BY GOD

So Says Rev. E. M. Jones in Sermon on "Value of Youthful Witnesses."

At the Chatham Street Baptist church last night the Rev. E. M. Jones preached a sermon on "The Value of Youthful Witnesses." His text was taken from Acts ii:17 and 32. "The young men shall see visions." Dr. Jones said in part:

The ear and the eye of the soul are quickened, made sensitive and susceptible to voices and visions of God. Paul heard the word of God through Ananias and he saw the vision of God in the man of Macedonia. Carey and Judson, two young men cast in the same mould as Paul, heard the voice of God in the great commission and saw the man of Macedonia in the wretched degradeness of the heathen. Human voices, like the sound of many waters, fell on the ears of Carey, Judson, Moffat and others craving attention, but they heard the voice of God, which said go, and they went.

Recent years have furnished some most remarkable examples of what young men and young women can do and dare and suffer, while under the leadership of the Holy Spirit. A few years ago the Baptist Handbook of Great Britain contained the obituary notices of seven missionary young men, who had entered their rest from the banks of the Congo.

In our own land there are wonderful instances of what can be done by young women who have been made sensitive by the Spirit to the voice of God and responsive to the cry of the needy masses.

Paul thought of preaching the gospel in Asia, but God ordered him to cross the sea to Macedonia and he obeyed. Carey thought of the islands of the Pacific as the most suitable field for his labors, but the spirit led him to India. Judson had set his heart on India, but God had planned him to go to Burmah.

As it was then, so also now. Consecrated witnesses are led to places where they are most needed, and the Spirit never makes a mistake. The true witness is held fast in the eternal grasp of conscious obligation to God. Deep conviction of truth leads to burning earnestness and skillful application of the same leads to all requirements.

PENNSYLVANIA BANNER STATE FOR SOCIALISTS

Total Vote in Country Grows from 80,000 in 1900 to 400,000 This Year.

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU, Herald Building, Herald Square. NEW YORK, Nov. 16.

Socialism has increased its national vote from 86,000, cast for Eugene V. Debs in 1900, to more than 400,000, cast this year. Official returns when tabulated may swell this to 500,000. Only once since 1860 has a third party made so strong a showing.

The significance of this stupendous increase to 400,000 in an "off year" election will not be lost by practical politicians when they calmly analyze the figures and survey the alignment of this ballot wielding army. Almost without warning a new force appears on the political field. With only the shred of an organization, without organs, patronage or allies, it seems to have established a footing as a national party and forced its claim for recognition as a factor in future elections.

The returns from Pennsylvania are not yet tabulated, but the indications are that it has become the banner state for socialist votes. President George Baer's precinct in Reading cast 96 Socialist votes against 16 last year. The Socialists carried Cokeville by a heavy plurality. Debs received 10 votes in Northumberland county, while this year John W. Slayton, the Socialist candidate for governor, was given 2,068 votes. In 12 districts his vote exceeded the combined Republican and Democratic strength.

For five hours this morning his temperature remained stationary at 99 3-5 degrees, only one above normal. This is the lowest mark since the beginning of the governor's illness.

CAR BLOCKADES TO BE AVOIDED

Important and Costly Cross-overs Installed Downtown for Traction Cars.

PUBLIC SADLY ANNOYED

Failure to Post Notices Causes Much Profanity—What the New Work Done Yesterday Will Accomplish.

Many workmen were busy from midnight Saturday until last night at Smithfield street and Sixth avenue, putting in a new curve and switch, which will enable cars to get around fire blockades downtown.

At the same time there was for much of this time a continuously changing crowd on a corner only two blocks away, waiting vainly on cars. After midnight Saturday hundreds of people were compelled to stand at Fourth avenue and Smithfield street, anywhere from a half hour on, because no cars appeared at this accustomed place to take them to the East End, nor did the traction officials make any effort to notify them that the route had been changed. The situation was the same to a lesser degree yesterday, because the crowd found out for itself, in some unknown way, that the cars were running on Fifth avenue.

This practice of changing the route of certain car lines without making any effort to notify patrons has become a matter of frequent complaint.

The new curve at Sixth avenue, which caused the cars to run down and up Fifth avenue, and kept the atmosphere around Fourth avenue blue with profanity for 24 hours, is, however, praiseworthy in itself. It is supposed to be the most perfect specimen of "crossing work" ever before attempted in Pittsburgh.

The curve laid yesterday is for the purpose of facilitating traction traffic in case downtown streets should be blocked by fire, processions or other hindrances. The new curve extends from the westbound track in Sixth avenue to the southbound track in Smithfield street. By means of the curve cars from the East End, coming down Sixth avenue, will be able to turn in on the Smithfield street southbound track, then cross over to the northbound track and run to East Liberty by the Union station.

A curve will be placed at the corner of Fifth avenue and Smithfield street soon, so that the cars that come down Sixth avenue and on account of a blockade have to turn in on Smithfield street will be enabled to turn up Fifth avenue and continue out to the East End by that route, instead of being tied up because a blockade may prevent them from going around by Wood street or Penn avenue.

Later on a curve will probably be put in at Third avenue and Smithfield street, so that the Second avenue cars may have facilities for evading blockades and carrying passengers more promptly to their destination. In New York the traction companies have adopted the policy of putting in a curve at every point where street car crossings intersect.

The new curve and switch is an expensive job. Where the tracks of two streets cross at right angles, rails weighing 107 pounds to the yard are used, on a splendid concrete bed, that will prevent the joits and jars, which are now felt in buildings on both sides of the street. The frogs, crossings, switch joints and mates are of the heaviest Harveyized steel, used for the purpose, and should make their replacement a matter of the distant future.

The bonding of the tracks to facilitate the return of the current to the power house is an especially thorough piece of work at this point. The mains return wire is of extra thickness at all approaches to the crossing and can carry a return current of 2,000 volts.

SHE BLAMES INTRIGUE.

Emma Goldman Says Attack Upon King Leopold Is Not Due to Anarchy.

CHICAGO, Nov. 16.—(Special.)—With a guard of police in and outside of Brands hall, Emma Goldman talked for an hour before 100 of her anarchist followers this afternoon. Owing to the determination of Inspector Campbell to stop the meeting if any rabid or incendiary talk was indulged in, the address was one of the tamest she has delivered in this city.

Discussing the attempted assassination of King Leopold, Miss Goldman said:

"I believe the shooting was the result of palace affairs, and of course they are trying to saddle it upon anarchists. King Leopold is very unpopular with his people. He is recognized as a tyrant and as such is heartily hated. I am quite positive that anarchists had nothing to do with the shooting."

WILL ASK LITTLE.

Secretary Root Expects Thus to Put Congress in Good Humor and Gain More.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 16.—(Special.)—Secretary Root has sent the word along the line to subordinate officials of the war department that their estimates for appropriations for the next fiscal year by congress should be held to the lowest possible point.

It is expected that proposals for a small budget will put the legislators in a better mood for enacting army legislation such as the general staff bill.

The projects being outlined for the defense of the insular possessions will call for a large expenditure and consequently will meet with opposition from the congressional economists.

Avalon Girl Is Missing.

William B. Price, colored, of Ben Avon, last night asked the Allegheny police to locate his sister-in-law, Miss Cora Richter, a white girl, who has been missing since last Tuesday. He said a colored woman in Avalon was responsible for the girl's disappearance. The case would have called for work outside of the jurisdiction of the police, and Price will ask the Humane society to assist him.

YOUNG MAN SHOULD BE A GOOD CITIZEN

High Ideal of Christian Life Includes Faithfulness to Civic Duties.

The Rev. Henry T. McClelland, pastor of the Bellefield Presbyterian church, preached a sermon last night on "The Young Man as a Citizen." His text was taken from Second Kings, vi:17, "And the Lord opened the eyes of the young man; and he saw." Mr. McClelland said in part:

This young man was a citizen and he was in the service of the right party in Israel. But he found himself, as good and true men often will, in a very tight place. He saw no way out. Naturally he was panic-stricken and came to his superior to know what was to be done. Then he was granted a vision. He saw the invisible. Horses and chariots of fire—the mountain full of them—the guards of God Almighty were around about him. He saw then as young men should see now that the right is always safe.

Any young man who is not a citizen in feeling and in action, lacks alike the proper qualities of a man and of a Christian. First, he lacks the proper qualities of a man. Much sound political thinking was done before Christ came. You recall how the great Aristotle defined man. "Man is a political animal." As setting forth a most important characteristic of the genus homo, this description is accurate. It suggests some of the very best points in this "paragon of animals." For when is man more man than when for the conservative and constructive interests of the community, he is willing to deny his strongest personal desires, to keep unselfishly a most sacred trust even to die for his country.

Second, he lacks the proper qualities of a Christian. The young man who is not in feeling and in action a good citizen lacks the proper qualities of a Christian. The record shows that there was never a purer patriot, a better citizen than Jesus Christ. No man can be saved, who will not be like Him, and no man can be like Him who is not a good citizen.

So if you would be that noblest work of God, a true Christian man, be a good citizen. Promote government of the people, by the people and for the whole people. Abhor government by any class in the interest of that class. Remember that the Golden Rule will work in clean politics. Do not forget that to be a good citizen you must be brave, obedient, and of high purpose. You must also be wise. To imagine that right ends can be gained and held without the use of fit means is the climax of folly. Keep this in mind, that co-operating with other men does not cancel your personal responsibility. God sees all, and forgets nothing. The end is His.

MURDER OF A MARSHAL AVENGED BY A MOB

Prisoner, Sentenced to Life Imprisonment, Taken from Jail and Hanged.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

ELIZABETHTOWN, KY., Nov. 16.—Harlan Buckles, who was yesterday sentenced to life imprisonment for the murder of Robert L. Reid, was hanged by a mob shortly after 2 o'clock this morning. The mob included from 50 to 75 men, some of whom are supposed to have come from Larue county.

On account of their number, they had little difficulty in getting Buckles from the jail. He was taken to the court house yard and hanged to a tree, after which the mob dispersed. Reid was deputy marshal here at the time he was killed.

Church Is Dedicated.

The new United Presbyterian church at Woodville was dedicated yesterday afternoon with much ceremony. The sermon was preached by the Rev. Dr. J. M. Wallace, pastor of the Eighth United Presbyterian church of Pittsburgh. Services will be held each evening during the week.

Yesterday's Smallpox Record.

Twelve new cases of smallpox were reported to the Pittsburgh bureau of health yesterday. All, with but one exception, were sent to the Municipal hospital.

Burlington, Iowa.

Gentlemen—At a meeting of the executive board of the Women's Musical club it was voted unanimously to secure the two A. B. Chase grand pianos used by the club for the past two years, for next year's work. The pianos are satisfactory to the entire club. We have never heard a word of criticism of them. They are wearing admirably, and retain all the sweet, singing, mellow quality of tone, and at the same time, brilliancy, for which they are characteristic.

Yours cordially,

LAURA BIGGAR IN PITTSBURGH

Expresses Confidence That Trial in Bennett Case Will Set Her Right.

ONE WOMAN VS. CROWD

Declares That She Had Been Living in the New York Bennett Home All the Time of Her Alleged Hiding.

"Laura Biggar Bennett" registered at the Monongahela house yesterday, to be here for her engagement with Manager Harry Davis this week at the Avenue theater in a sketch, "A Thief in the Night." She will be supported by Sidney Wilmer, the author of the piece and also the author of "Strangers in a Strange Land," presented by the Grand Opera house stock company a few weeks ago. Miss Biggar, as she is known in stage life, which has been out of her province for two years since starring in "The Queen of Chinatown," last night consented to talk to a reporter of The Gazette on things generally.

She is in fairly good health. Last night she wore half mourning. Her manners are such as to impress a stranger with little wonder that Henry M. Bennett should have remembered her in his will to the extent of 60 per cent of his wealth. In her matronly way she said:

Laura Biggar Confident.

"I am confident that the trial of my case will put me right before the world—but there, I must not talk about the case. My attorney has forbidden it. He had the most serious objection to my coming here and made every effort to get Mr. Davis to cancel the engagement. The idea of coming here was favorably considered at the solicitation of Mr. Davis, because of the warm friendship that Mr. Bennett had for him, and I would not allow my attorney's interference to influence me to cancel the engagement.

"After this I have no theater engagements, and will have none, although I will have till December 3 before appearing for trial. The case was set for hearing November 27 but was postponed.

"When we arrived here today we drove around to view Mr. Bennett's property, now my property. There is a decided improvement at the Bijou.

Detectives Amused Her.

"The stories of my hiding were the most diverting things of my experience. I have been living at the Bennett New York home, No. 119 Eighty-third street, all the time. Two detectives were watching me from a house across the street. One day I went out and they were driven to desperation. I went in a carriage and they had no means of following me. It was amusing to see their relief when I returned.

"I have been at the New York home ever since leaving our spring and autumn home at Farmingdale, N. J., Mr. Shaddock took possession there. I could have remained if I had so chosen, both Mr. and Mrs. Shaddock inviting me to make my home there, but it was Mr. Hawkins' arrangement, and I left.

"In the securing of my bail bond there was more than one amusing incident. An army of attorneys was watching my every move and soliciting my case on a contingent fee. All this finally resulted in my selecting A. Hershfield of Hayes & Hershfield, New York. The attorneys and detectives had annoyed me more than the case. Then came the question of a bond.

Madman's Liberal Offer.

"One old man wrote that he was much interested and had millions to help me contest the case. 'This poor ma[n] was,—' and she used the little stage gesture indicating insanity. 'Once he had owned an estate of $25,000,000, and his reverses of fortune drove him insane. My days in jail were the most comfortable of my experience.'

There was a tone of sympathy in her manner when she said that Dr. Hendricks and Mr. Stanton, those charged with her as conspirators, at Freehold, N. J., will be out on bail in a few days.

"It has been one poor woman against a crowd, but I feel confident of an atonement."

Manager Davis was fearful that the contract of Miss Biggar might be broken at the last moment, through the intercession of her New York counsel. Hayes and Hershfield pleaded with him to cancel the engagement, and offered to pay all reasonable costs, but recognized the right of the actress to make and fulfill the engagement. To make matters doubly sure Mr. Davis sent John Harris of the theater organization to New York, and he accompanied Miss Biggar here.

NEW RICE CASE

Murdered Millionaire's League of Land Stretches Over That Now Claimed by Others.

AUSTIN, TEXAS, Nov. 16.—Information from Marble Falls, Burnett county, is to the effect that aside from the Patrick trial, probably nothing connected with the immense estate of the late millionaire, William M. Rice, has created more public interest than the recent report of the official survey of the Rice league of land lying to the south of Marble Falls and bordering on the Colorado river.

This survey widens the supposed bounds of the league to an enormous extent and takes in supposed holdings of others.

It is the conflict of claims now imminent that portends the most interesting and important phases of the matter.

THREE THEATERS GIVE IN.

Striking Stage Hands Make Gains, But Other Houses Still Hold Out.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 16.—Three of the local theaters have agreed to yield to the demands of the striking stage hands, according to claims made by the members of the National Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes, but the managers of the other four theaters, which include the theaters playing the principal attractions, say they will not give in.

They say the real issue is whether they shall control their own business, and that the real trouble is the discharge of a stage hand. They say they are paying the full union scale of wages, and have plenty of help with which to run their theaters.

TEACHER DRANK ACID.

Dreaded Prosecution for Rough Treatment of a Pupil.

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—Dread of being summoned to answer a charge of roughly treating one of the children of her class is supposed to have been the cause of the suicide of Miss Celia Ettleson, a public school teacher, who died today after drinking carbolic acid. Miss Ettleson, who was 22 years of age, was the daughter of a Chicago merchant.

OLD WORLD'S NEWS AS TOLD BY CABLE

ANARCHIST RUBINO ESCAPED CONVICT

Convicted of Theft in Italy in 1893 and Fled to Great Britain.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS CABLE TO THE GAZETTE.]

BRUSSELS, Nov. 16.—According to some reports, the anarchist Rubino, in the course of his examination before the magistrate, declared that he selected King Leopold for his attack on account of his majesty's inhuman conduct toward his daughter, Princess Stephanie, at the time of her mother's death, and he also wished to show to the anarchists in London, who doubted his loyalty, that while they only talked, he acted. He would have killed King Edward, he added, but for the strong feeling of the English people in favor of the monarchy.

ROME, Nov. 16.—The ministry of the interior has established the identity of the assailant of King Leopold. He was condemned to a long term of imprisonment for stealing at Milan in 1893, but he effected his escape to England, where he is supposed to have imbibed his anarchist principles.

Rubino, while serving in the army, was condemned to five years' detention for writing a subsersive newspaper article.

Since leaving Italy he has resided continuously in Scotland and England, first in Glasgow and afterwards in London. Some years ago he was accused of treachery by his anarchist friends and expelled from their ranks.

Count Frank Burns to Death.

PARIS, Nov. 16.—Count Frank, who was well known in society here, was burned to death in his bed last night through an outbreak of fire at his residence, the chateau Deslandes, at Suresnes. It is supposed that he fell asleep while reading and the lamp set fire to the bedding.

PIG CASE THREATENS TO RIVAL CALF CASE

One Lost Is White and One Found Black, and That Causes Mix-Up.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

TRENTON, N. J., Nov. 16.—Capt. E. Yard Breese, commander of the City Troop and a leader in Trenton's "400" is confronted with the charge of stealing a pig, and has been duly informed by an officer of the law that unless the porker is returned to Arthur Smith by next Wednesday a warrant for his arrest will be issued. Smith is a farmer who makes a business of raising pigs and Breese is a gentleman of leisure.

Smith brought a load of young hogs to the city in a wagon on October 20 and when he reached the slaughter house he discovered that one of the drove was missing. A break in the back of the wagon told the story of its liberation. Smith telephoned the police, but they could get no trace of the pig, and he had about given up the search when a boy living in the ultra-fashionable part of the town conveyed the information that Capt. Breese had the missing animal in his barn.

Mr. Breese declined to surrender the pig until it had been properly identified, and as Smith had failed to take minute note of the exact colors of all his drove he hazarded the guess that it was white. He missed on the color, as the pig is black, and Breese has since persistently declined to give it up.

Smith says that the boy who informed him of the whereabouts of the pig also told him that two of Breese's stablemen had lassoed the pig, while the stablemen say the animal trotted into Breese's yard of its own free will.

As both Mr. Breese and Mr. Smith are obstinate in the matter it seems settled that the contest for the pig will end in the courts. Meanwhile, the pig is being petted and is gorging himself on rich fodder and sleeping on selected straw, while his former companions have long since gone the way of Jersey sausage and pork chops.

CORPSE VACATES GRAVE AT SEXTON'S APPROACH

Strange Man from Delaware Creates Sensation in Cemetery at Baltimore.

BALTIMORE, MD., Nov. 16.—There was excitement at Waverly this morning when it was found that a man, while alive, was buried in a grave in the yard surrounding St. John's church.

The discovery of the "corpse" was made by John Hinkel, sexton of the church. Mr. Hinkel visited a newly-made grave that had been prepared for the reception of Mrs. Ella Price. When he approached the grave to see if everything was in readiness for the burial he was astonished to find that the wooden boxing which had been placed in the grave had been covered with earth. The sexton raised the top of the box, and a form clad in a shroud of white arose.

Mr. Hinkle was badly frightened, but grabbed the "corpse." At the police station the man said his name was John Bardollet, and he was from Wilmington, Del., his home being at 313 King street. He said that he had buried himself, knowing that the exton would find him and make him vacate his grave to give place to the dead woman.

MASTER MECHANIC SHOT

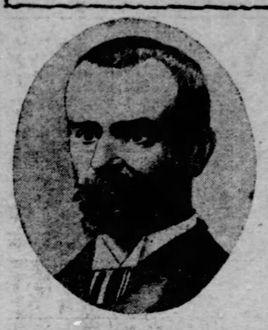
Conductor Is Arrested for Firing Through Window of Roadmaster's Private Car.

CONROE, TEX., Nov. 16.—At Waukegan, a sawmill town east of here, Master Mechanic C. W. Tate of the Gulf, Colorado & Santa Fe, was shot to death this morning.

He was in the private car of Roadmaster Maxeo, and the shot was fired through the rear of the car, the bullet striking Mr. Tate in the forehead. His home was at Cleburn, where he leaves a widow and children.

On circumstantial evidence Sheriff Anderson has arrested Tom Futrell, a freight conductor.

New French Ambassador Leaves His Former Post



Jean A. A. Jusserand and His Wife.

Copenhagen, Nov. 1.—Ambassador Jusserand and his wife, who was Miss Eliza Richards of New York, left today for Paris, where they intend to spend the new year. They will proceed thence to Washington, where they expect to arrive in January.

A great tribute was paid to them on their departure, Foreign Minister Leuntzer, United States Ambassador Swenson and Mrs. Swenson, other members of the diplomatic corps, court dignitaries and a crowd of personal friends being present at the station.

A number of floral gifts were offered to Madame Jusserand.

FRENCHMEN IN FAVOR OF LOUBET VISITING US

Deputy Deloncle Discusses Report That Trip May Be Made to America.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS CABLE TO THE GAZETTE.]

PARIS, Nov. 16.—Deputy Deloncle has been interviewed with regard to his statement at the banquet of the industrial, commercial and economical society Friday that he had received information that the St. Louis exposition commission had decided to invite President Loubet to visit America. He says the matter was not intended to be made public yet.

Two years ago he mentioned to the exposition officials the possibility of a visit from President Loubet. It was a mere after dinner remark to which he did not attach much importance. He was surprised, he says, when he received information from St. Louis that the idea might materialize and that a proposal to extend a formal invitation to President Loubet to visit the exposition was being seriously considered.

"I attribute this action," M. Deloncle continues, "to a warm and profound liking on the part of the Americans for France, especially since the Rochambeau fetes.

"There are few events in the history of France more glorious than the cession of Louisiana by Napoleon Bonaparte when he was first consul. The St. Louis exposition commission doubtless believes that the best way of showing America's gratitude to France would be to invite the president of the third French republic to the centenary celebration of this act of the first republic."

SCNATTERLY BLAMED FOR HIS OWN DEATH

Boy Who Killed Him Is Released on Grounds of Self-Defense.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

KNOXVILLE, TENN., Nov. 16.—The unknown 18-year-old boy who killed J. C. Scnatterly of New Geneva, Pa., yesterday morning, was acquitted of the charge of murder and this afternoon released, it having been proved that Scnatterly, who was 30 years of age, had forced the boy to defend himself.

As soon as the verdict of the preliminary trial was announced, the unknown admitted his identity. His name was Marshall Krause of Chicago, an orphan who has been living in Savannah, Ga., for the past four years, although he has a wealthy married sister living in Chicago.

Krause quarreled with Scnatterly over a trivial affair and shortly afterward was forced to kill him to save his own life.

The dead man's body passed through here last night bound for Pennsylvania.

REPRISAL THREATS ALARM CANADIANS

United States Proposes to Place Duty on Lumber from the Dominion.

TORONTO, ONT., Nov. 16.—Canadian lumbermen, who are in touch with what is going on at Washington and in Canadian government circles, are alarmed over the rumor that a duty of $4 per 1,000 feet will be levied on Canadian sawn lumber entering the United States.

It is said that the measure is intended as a reprisal for the action of the provincial governments of Ontario and Quebec in placing an embargo on the export of pulp wood. A number of pulp mills on the northern borders of the United States were dependent largely on Canada for pulp wood, and these have suffered by the embargo. No effective reprisal can be taken in connection with the pulp industry, so that an effort, it is alleged, is on foot to strike at Canada through the sawn lumber industry.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier is anxious that the governments of both Ontario and Quebec should take some step that will mitigate the alleged grievance of the American pulp men. It is possible that on his coming trip to Virginia Sir Wilfrid will discuss the matter with the American governor.

APPLE DAY'S RATIONS FOR SIXTEEN PERSONS

Terrible Story of Privation and Suffering Told by Survivors from Elagamite.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS CABLE TO THE GAZETTE.]

LONDON, Nov. 17.—The Daily Mail's correspondent at Wellington, New Zealand, telegraphs that the eight survivors from the wreck of the British steamer Elagamite, who were rescued on a raft by the British survey steamer Penguin, went through a dreadful experience.

The raft from which they were taken measured only 12 feet long by seven feet wide, and had 16 persons on it when it left the wreck. The only food on board was two apples. The first apple was consumed on Tuesday and the second on Wednesday, each being divided into 16 portions.

From Sunday, the day they were wrecked, until Thursday, when they were rescued, the survivors drifted 60 miles on the half-submerged raft. Several attempts were made to land on the Three Kings islands, but without success. Three men died on Monday night from drinking salt water. All of the survivors suffered the tortures of thirst, and four other men and the stewardess died of exhaustion before they were picked up by the Penguin.

They had a cruel disappointment on Tuesday night. A steamer was sighted in the distance and frantic shouts were raised by those on the raft to attract attention. The steamer lowered a boat which passed within 50 yards of them, but the boat's crew apparently did not see the raft and returned to their vessel.

When the Penguin was sighted only one of the survivors was able to stand and all were terribly emaciated.

DAN CUPID IS GIVEN ROUND THE WORLD TRIP

Bride from Brooklyn Meets Groom from Japan in Honolulu to Marry.

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU,
Herald Building, Herald Square,
NEW YORK, Nov. 16.

Traveling thousands of miles from opposite sides of the globe, Miss Carrie Louise Vogt, well known in social and musical circles of Brooklyn, and her fiance, Thomas Hurley of London met at Honolulu on October 23 and were married that day. The bride's parents, who live at No. 158 McDonough street, received a dispatch last night that their daughter and son-in-law had just landed from a Pacific steamer at San Francisco on their way to her home on their wedding journey.

Mr. Hurley represents a London typewriter company and travels all over the world. He met Miss Vogt here four years ago, and their engagement was announced a year ago, when he was last in New York. Soon after this he was sent to the east on a year's trip, and then it was decided that Miss Vogt would meet him in Japan and they would be married there.

Fear of the cholera then prevalent in the orient induced them to alter their plans, and Honolulu was decided on as the place for the wedding.

Miss Vogt on October last received a cablegram from her fiance, saying he had arranged his business affairs and would meet her in Honolulu. She then started for the Pacific coast. The ceremony was performed in the Central Union parsonage, by the Rev. W. M. Kincaid.

CHOLERA SPREADING IN THE PHILIPPINES

Reserve Hospital and Bilbid Prison Among Places Affected.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS CABLE TO THE GAZETTE.]

MANILA, Nov. 16.—The number of cholera cases is increasing in this city and the spread of the disease is causing some alarm. There are on an average 30 cases daily. The Reserve hospital, the casual camp at Santa Mesa, and Bilbid prison are now included among the places infected.

The disease is spreading in the Marquina valley, where the danger of an infection of the water supply is regarded as grave. Should the water supply become infected a general epidemic is considered inevitable.

The cholera reports from the provinces show a decrease in the number of cases.

GREAT AWAKENING.

All Episcopal Churches of Diocese of New York to Hold Series of Missionary Meetings.

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—(Special.)—Arrangements have been perfected for the creation of a great religious awakening throughout the Episcopal churches hereabouts, by the holding of a series of missionary meetings in the various churches in the first week of advent, beginning November 30.

For the diocese of New York Bishop Potter has sent out a brief pastoral letter, in which he makes a personal request that the churchmen of this diocese shall, so far as possible, arrange their engagements for that week so that they may be able to attend the meetings.

"Christ and the Country," will be discussed at a meeting in Carnegie hall on Monday, December 1, with Bishop Tuttle of Missouri, as one of the speakers.

PIE CAUSES BELLI IN DIVORCE CASE

Mr. Loop's Children and Mrs. Loop's Children Fight for Possession of It.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

KOKOMO, IND., Nov. 16.—A fight over who should have the biggest piece of pie at dinner at the home of Noah and Catherine Loop, four miles east of Kokomo, was speedily followed by an application for divorce.

The Loops are past middle age and wealthy. They were married in 1896, it being the second matrimonial venture for each and each have children by former marriages. The household consisted of the elder Loops and both sets of children.

One day this week the family sat at the long table, and, after a blessing on the food had been asked, trouble was seen lurking in the eyes of the children as they glanced at the big plate of pumpkin pie.

To forestall the threatened action of one of the maternal brood, one of Loop's sons, who sat near the coveted pie, pre-empted the biggest piece, so it is alleged, and prepared to defend his claim by dumping it on his own plate. A protest went up from the other side of the table, and Mrs. Loop insisted that the big piece was intended for her own favorite child and that no Loop brat should have it.

The quarrel of the children was taken up by the parents, and there was a battle royal, in which the arm of the boy who had captured the big piece of pie was broken, but not until he had devoured the prize.

As a result of the scrimmage Mr. Loop says he was driven from the house and ordered to remain away. He came to town and filed divorce proceedings against Mrs. Loop and also secured a restraining order to prevent the defendant from selling the crops. In his complaint he alleges that Mrs. Loop broke the arm of his son and struck his children when they were sick in bed.

The plaintiff is the owner of a large farm and one of the wealthiest landowners in this section. He is a brother of ex-Representative J. N. Loop, a Kokomo manufacturer. So far Mr. Loop's faction is ahead on the pie, but Mrs. Loop and her children hold the farm.

LEHIGH COMPANY STATES ITS CASE

Declares Condition of Its Employes Equal to Any in the Country.

MANY OWNERS OF HOMES

Beneficial Fund Established to Which Corporation Largely Contributed—Conditions Not Similar to Other Parts.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 16.—The statement of the Lehigh Coal & Navigation Company, submitted to the anthracite coal strike commission, in answer to the demands of the miners, declares the demand of the employes for an increase of 20 per cent is unjustifiable.

Accompanying the statement are two exhibits. One shows the earnings of the employes of the company for the time worked during 1901. The other is a catalogue of overt acts charged to the striking employes of the company during the recent contest, disturbances of various kinds being numbered at upwards of 60. Denial is made of the claim of the miners that their earnings are insufficient to maintain the American standard of living, and these figures are given:

Out of 3,043 families, 870 own their own houses. Pianos will be found in 146, and house organs in 337. The company owns and rents to its employes 671 houses, at an average rental of $6 75 a month.

Sells Land for Homes.

The character of these houses is fully up to the average in any part of the country occupied by any other class of workmen. It has been the policy of the company to sell surface rights to those of its employes who desire to put up their own houses, and for many years there has been a steady demand on this account. The town of Summit Hill has a population of 3,500, and almost the entire surface, with the dwellings, is now owned and occupied by employes of the company.

The families of the employes have ample school accommodations with capable teachers, and over 3,000 children are in attendance, while over 75 percentum of the whole sum expended in the region is derived from taxes paid by the company on its coal estate.

Since 1887 more than 250 young men have gone from Lansford and other villages in the neighborhood to normal schools and colleges and become mining engineers, attorneys, chemists, dentists, architects, ministers and priests.

Some of the foreigners prefer to live in a very niggardly and squalid manner, so that they may accumulate the larger part of their earnings, and return to Europe to live in idleness; but those who have their permanent home in the region have at least $1,000,000 on deposit in the banks and savings funds in the vicinity, saved from the wages earned in the employment of this company.

Beneficial Fund Established.

In 1884 the company established a beneficial fund, to which it has contributed the sum of $198,883, and the employes $154,768. During the strike of 1900 in which the employes of the company declined to participate, the company in acknowledgment of their loyalty contributed $25,000 to the beneficial fund.

Since then most of them have joined the union and felt bound to join in the strike when ordered last fall. No complaint was addressed to the company, no grievance alleged; and no request for higher wages made; but without notice, the men left work in a body, against their own will and judgment, because required to do so by the vote of the miners employed in other coal fields.

The company claims that payment by weight is impracticable at its mines, as each mine constitutes a distinct problem, and the conditions vary from month to month. The only method which has ever given satisfaction at the company's workings, it is claimed, is payment for cutting coal by the lineal yard, the rate of payment can only be determined in each particular case between the superintendent and the miner.

GOES ON STAND AGAIN.

Mitchell to Testify Further Before Arbitration Commission—Miners' Side to Take Another Week.

SCRANTON, Nov. 16.—The members of the arbitration commission observed the Sabbath today and refrained from doing any work whatever. Most of them, as is their rule, attended services at churches of their denomination in the forenoon, and this afternoon they took either long walks or drives through the valley. Tonight they listened to Bishop Spalding deliver a lecture on the subject of "Success" at the Lyceum theater for the benefit of the house of Good Shepherd of Scranton.

President Mitchell of the miners' union, the first witness for the miners, who was on the stand Friday and Saturday, will again be in the witness box tomorrow. It is probable the witnesses for the mine workers will take up all of next week in giving their testimony.

The annual booklet of the Cincinnati, Memphis & New Orleans Packet Company is now off the press.

The steamer Susan, now owned by Capt. Sively, is being rebuilt on the ways at Carondelet, and when she comes out will be almost as good as new. She is expected to go south for the winter.

The tug S. C. Clubb, belonging to the Wiggins Ferry Company, is on the ways at Carondelet undergoing extensive repairs and being sheathed with ½-inch iron to enable her to break up the ice gorges during the winter season.

Capt. George Clark, a well-known steamboatman of Cairo, has arrived home after a long absence, during which time he was employed as master of the Will H. Isom, built by Jarvis Rees & Son Company at Pittsburg, and which is one of the largest steamboats on the Yukon river.

Rumors are rife at Cincinnati to the effect that the independent packets are forming into one pool. The boats included at the present are the Helen M. Gould, Golden Gate and City of Wheeling, with another boat which will be secured when the organization is effected.

WHAT LODER FEARED REALLY CAME TRUE

He Is Stabbed in the Back by His Brother-in-Law, Just as He Had Predicted.

James Loder's premonition came true yesterday, and he was stabbed in the back on his own doorstep. Loder had predicted that his brother-in-law, Peter Barrett, would "do" him, and he even mentioned the manner in which Barrett stabbed him in the back, as Loder had said he would, and the victim of the assault is now in the West Penn hospital, very dangerously wounded.

Loder is a fireman at No. 13 engine house, Hazelwood, and lives at Preble and Thirtieth streets. Barrett's house is a few doors away. Both married sisters. An old feud has existed between the brothers-in-law. Some time ago Ben Barrett met Loder in a saloon, made a vile remark about Loder's wife and was promptly whipped. At that time he threatened to get even.

Since then Loder has feared Barrett and has avoided him. Barrett, Loder's friends say, threatened to stab Loder when they were working side by side in the American Steel and Wire Company's works, where Barrett is still employed.

At noon yesterday Loder was sitting on his front door steps and his wife was looking out of the second story window. She saw Barrett approaching and called out to her husband: "Here comes trouble again," Loder did not hear her, and Barrett ran up and stabbed him in the back with a big clasp knife. Loder fell and Barrett fled.

Shortly before he attacked Loder, Barrett had been fighting with his wife and struck at her with his razor, but missed her. She is larger than he and started after him, but he ran out of the house and seeing Loder, cut him. Late last night Barrett was captured.

BATTLE COMMEMORATED.

Services Held on the Site of Revolutionary Fort Washington.

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—In "The Little Church of the Old Fort," officially known as "The Holy Protestant Episcopal church," which is situated on the site of the battle of Fort Washington, services were held today commemorative of the battle.

Among the societies represented at the services were the Empire State society, Sons of the American Revolution, the Mary Washington chapter of Daughters of the American Revolution, and the American Scenic and Historic Preservation society. Various revolutionary relics, dug up in the vicinity, were displayed in the chapter room of the church.

SAYS OFFICER DID IT.

John Dorsey Asserts that Blow from Mace Broke His Arm.

John Dorsey, colored, was arrested at Pasture and Fulton streets on Saturday night by Policeman William Reynolds and locked up in No. 2 police station for disorderly conduct. When Dorsey was taken to the Central police station yesterday morning for a hearing it was found that his arm was broken. Dr. A. E. McCandless examined it and Dorsey was sent to the Homeopathic hospital. Dorsey says that Reynolds hit him with a mace and broke his arm. Reynolds said he did not strike him.

IN THE OIL FIELDS.

Recent advances in the credit balance market have inspired new interest and confidence in the oil industry. That the advance has come to stay and that a future appreciation in values is confidently expected, is evidenced by the interest taken in field developments and the determination expressed by many to start new work at once. Operators will be handicapped somewhat by the approaching winter, but it is not their purpose to remain idle till spring.

There is a scarcity of producing territory, but when the price will warrant they will go out and hunt it, and there never has been a time yet that they could not find it in either the old fields or in untested localities. In many parts of the lower southwest Allegheny is considerable light producing territory that can be operated at a profit on a higher market, and this will be the first to receive attention.

Interest during the year just closed was not confined to the advance in the market alone. Field developments attracted some attention, but in every instance but solitary exception the results were disappointing. The Keener and pois in Ritchie county have reached the limits of their producing areas and the old producers are dropping lower in production. The latest production of the two wells on the Big Knot run and Wolf Penn run, does not exceed 2,000 barrels a day. This is a remarkable slump as compared with the production a few months ago, when 10,000 barrels a day would have been a conservative estimate.

The salt sand development on the South Fork of Hughes river is a failure. Operators thought well enough of this territory three months ago to pay large bonus money for leases. The first and last well completed in this pool are located on the Hallem farm. The first was a good producer and the third and last well, completed last week, came in a duster. In all but 11 wells have been completed, and but three are producers.

At the present time, however, Ritchie county has more experimental work under way than any other oil county in the state. Another discoverer in Murphy district have given rise to the opinion that the salt sand territory can be carried southwest into Calhoun county. Operators are now working along that line. Still to the west, in Wirt county, has been revived and there is a good showing of new work starting with the Big Injun sand as the objective point.

The most promising outlook for increasing the production, or, rather maintaining it, lies in the Gordon sand districts, in Wetzel county. The Folsom pool district continues to present fine producers and there is still room for many more wells. Interest is now centered on the territory lying on the east side of the development. In this direction there is a fight on for an extension. Several important test wells on this side will be due to get the sand this week.

An extension to the Pine Grove district in the direction of the old Rocky run district to the northeast is assured. The two wells on the Sidel and Strosnider farms contain this opinion. The well on the last-named farm increased its production during the week to 400 barrels a day. The Sidel is the older of the two and is holding at better than 100 barrels a day.

The territory in the vicinity of the Big Injun sand producer on the Francis farm on Fallen Timber run has the talent guessing. To the whole side of the Francis producer two dry holes have been completed and during the past week one of the same kind was drilled through all sands on the Robinson-Hogue farm. This location is about one mile southwest of the Francis farm producer and condemns an extension for that distance in the direction named. As a last resort the News will drive a large test for the Big Injun sand, but the chances are against its making a paying venture.

One and one-half miles northeast of Littleton and a short distance north of Burton, Wetzel county, the Philadelphia Company has made a strictly new discovery on the Santee farm. Nothing was expected at this test till the Big Injun or Gordon sands reached. When the Maxon sand was drilled into the well began to show oil, and is estimated to be good for 50 barrels a day from that level. This is the first well to get oil in the Maxon in this locality and by some it is regarded as a freak.

Three miles north of Waynesburg, Greene county, Pa., the Fort Pitt Gas Company drilled in a well on the Clausser farm that developed an enormous gas pressure in the Big Injun sand. Greene county is being drawn on very heavily now by the various gas companies for their winter supply of fuel.

There are two new promising developments in Southeastern Ohio. Northeast of the new development, near Independence, Belmont county, LeComte & Bruner drilled in a producer. Nichols farm and secured a producer estimated to be good for 75 barrels a day. This is the first well that has been found in this territory and opens an extension to the northeast. In the vicinity of this well large bonus has been paid for leases and an active campaign is expected in the near future.

South of Knoxville, Jefferson county, the chances for a pool of some importance are increasing. Two 100-barrel producers and one small well were placed to its credit during the week. Operators are now of the opinion that this and the old Island creek pool will be connected by a continuous line of producing wells.

Southwest of the Plum run development, in Harrison county, a test well was drilled in, located several miles in advance of development, and proved a failure.

Beaver county, Pa., made six contributions to the duster list during the week. The two new pools that have been attracting some attention, and incidentally, called for the investment of a good deal of money, are not coming up to what was expected of them.

SIMPLE REMEDY FOR CATARRH.

Just Breathe Hyomei Four Times a Day and Be Cured.

If a few years ago some one had said you can cure catarrh by breathing air charged with a healing balsam, the idea would have been ridiculed; and it remained for R. T. Booth, that eminent investigator, to discover in Hyomei this method of cure.

Hyomei has performed the most miraculous cures of catarrh and is today recognized by leading members of the medical profession as the only advertised remedy that can be relied upon to do just what it claims.

The complete outfit of Hyomei costs but $1.00 and consists of an inhaler, a medicine dropper and a bottle of Hyomei.

Breathe Hyomei through the inhaler for a few minutes four times a day and it will cure the worst case of catarrh. It soothes and heals the mucous membrane of the air passages, prevents irritation, and effects a complete and lasting cure.

The treasurer of the American Life Insurance Co., J. S. Nugent of New York city writes: "Hyomei has completely cured my daughter of catarrh from which she has been a sufferer for years."

In this city there are scores of well-known people who say they have been cured of catarrh by Hyomei. If it does not cure you, your druggist will return the money you paid for Hyomei. This is the strongest evidence that can be offered us to his faith in the remedy.

OFFICERS EVER KIND OF HEART

Gen. Breckenridge Pays High Tribute to Army's Work in Philippines.

SHAMES ITS CRITICS

Work of Men and Their Leaders Cannot Be Appreciated Unless Viewed from a Sympathetic Standpoint—His Report.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—The annual report of J. C. Breckinridge, inspector-general of the army, is a voluminous document and covers every phase of the military establishment and each department bureau and command in the army. Gen. Breckinridge has the following to say regarding his inspection in the Philippines:

During my tour in the Philippines it was evident on all sides that the army, as a whole, was laboring patiently and faithfully to solve the many vexing problems continually presented to it. The difficulties encountered and the hardships endured never can be fully appreciated by anyone who has not been on the ground and observed the daily life of officers and men 7,000 miles from home influences and associations, living in communities either openly or secretly hostile, depending almost entirely for their subsistence upon the commissary—where one is always afraid to take even an ordinary drink of water without ascertaining first whether it has been cooked.

Not One Is Heartless.

Critics at home may sometimes search for epithets to apply to our general officers, but these officers are no less kind hearted than their critics, and were anxiously mindful of the sufferings which necessarily fall upon the innocent in warfare, as well as the guilty, and were devising means by which the poor might be cared for and fed.

When among us on the day of the battle of Manila bay were familiar with the names of men who had faithfully devoted long lives to our service, not without some dangers by land and sea—and now how the character of the nation has been weighed in the balance according to their words and deeds. Dewey, providential, Merritt, the Shenandoah and the great plains, appears in his maturity on this last scene; Otis, of honest judgment, far-reaching insight and a cornerstone for work, bearing life scarred with wounds with all modesty; Bates, the gentleman and soldier, the right hand of his chief in diplomacy or emergency; Wheaton, the thunderbolt and embodiment of military ardor; MacArthur, judicious, courageous, masterful and broad-minded; Hughes, acute and resolute amidst an attempted Moscow and in the rugged places of Samar and the middle islands; Funston, who won his fame amidst the hardships of the farthest north; Young, forever in the lead and seeking the vitals of the enemy; Smith, tireless and aggressive; Bell, courteous and recklessly audacious, the prince of the advance guard.

One of the Fallen.

Then there was Lawton, "droit et loyale," who baptized that land with his blood and wrought famously and kindly on both hemispheres, doing easily and without apology sacrifice whatever was most needed or most difficult; Chaffee, whose sterling worth has been displayed in the old and new worlds. Wherever his glorious arms have brought her principles and won success either in the whirl of repelling deadly tyranny from the Antilles or in bringing safety to the beleaguered legations from the bloody Manchus of the forbidden city; Davis, whose many laborious industry and knowledge have wrought memorable monuments in the form of city government and great memorial structure, as well as in his profession; Grant carried from Porto Rico to the far east a name Americans regard as the epitome of unpretentious, unblemishable service, and has shown unwearied work and faithless life every scene; and Baldwin, the last to win a star for worsting the enemy in fierce fight, in a career filled with such bearing as brought two medals of honor for soldierly courage to him alone.

When the rewards of service go to men like these the heart of our army is elate. These are not half the names, nor are all of them as well known to their fellow countrymen as they deserve. But these are among those whom I met, or the results of whose work I witnessed during this past year.

WALL STREET SLOWLY RETURNS TO SANE BASIS

Business Men Are Not Disturbed by Continuous Fall of Prices for Speculative Stocks---Not Caught by Inflation.

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU,
Herald Building, Herald Square.
NEW YORK, Nov. 16.

Superficially, at least, the situation in the security market has been improved by the further re-adjustment of prices which has been in progress during the last week. The liquidation was urgent, and few can doubt that it was necessitous; whether, however, it ran its full course in the violent break of Friday is a question which time alone can determine. The securities sold unquestionably passed into stronger hands, relieving the situation in direct proportion to the quantity of the sales. It is clear to every observer, however, that there was no urgent bidding for stocks. On the declines they were taken by speculative investors, men who can afford to buy and pay for them in whole if necessary.

This character of buying ceased on the recoveries, indicating that it was the short interest in the market, rather than the speculative investment buying, which was chiefly responsible for the late rally. Of strict investment buying there was very little, and this is not such a matter for surprise, for when he can obtain 5 per cent for his money on time loans secured by collateral, he is not likely to buy stocks on a 4 per cent basis. The public, according to brokers, is a negligable factor in the market—conspicuous by its absence. Confidence has been too rudely shattered by the spectacle of "big men" selling out on one another in their eagerness to lighten their burdens, to tempt the small man into Wall street's hazardous game at the present time.

Time to Take Bearings.

It has been said in more careful and observant quarters than one that the present is the proper and fitting time for the shrewd man to take his bearings, in order to steer his future course. The sole idea of Wall street is liquidation as the only remedy to correct the evils of our burdened credit. It is without doubt the most available and readiest means at hand, and if continued far enough would bring about the speediest and most lasting cure for the fit of indigestion from which the security market is suffering so acutely. If prices, no matter how they may be regarded here, could be brought down to a level where foreigners would buy heavily, the operation would go far toward liquidating the immense floating indebtedness abroad, while at the same time, through bringing the cash buyers into the market, the operation would relieve the congested loan account in the financial institutions.

Wall street is described as "the only blue spot in the country," and it probably is so. Because of the fact, however, that with only slight exceptions, business men and manufacturers are successful and happy and the prosperity continues with but trifling diminution, it does not necessarily follow that Wall street is to immediately become cheerful also.

One Really Hopeful Sign.

There is good and sufficient reason why Wall street after its excesses should be blue, and there are countless reasons why the successful, clear-headed merchant and manufacturer should continue cheerful. The chief of this, it is scarcely necessary to say, is that the merchant and manufacturer is not in or of Wall street at the present time.

It is really one of the most hopeful signs for the future that the business man retained his senses during the speculative debauch which overthrew the reason of the bankers, promoters and speculators. He did not lose his idea of values when Wall street was proclaiming that "200 for Burlington" in bonds at that, established a new basis for all prices. He maintained his reason when Rock Island was increased from $50,000,000, selling around 35, to $75,000,000 selling at 200, and he was sane, also, when the $75,000,000, roughly speaking, became $202,500,000. He maintained his mental equipoise and suffered from no "delusion of grandeur" over high prices, immense capital stocks, the conversion of stocks into bonds, the rumored buying for control of one company by another, and in the face of other and similar delusions.

Sanity Slowly Returning.

Now that Wall street is also slowly recovering its sanity, it, too, will probably be lost in wonder that it regarded these things, without exception, as bull arguments. When in cold sobriety it compares the old capitalization with the new, notes the increases of $10,000,000 here and $50,000,000 and even $100,000,000 somewhere else, it will realize that stocks are different now than in the old days, and what were considered remarkable declines before, are but trifling on the basis of the inflated capitalizations of the day.

It would, however, be unfair to leave the impression that all of the capital creations has been wasted. Some portion of it was unquestionably necessary, and when wisely and economically expended it will serve an excellent purpose of maintaining a fair basis of income when times change. But, unfortunately, it has been a spendthrift period, with companies created or capitalized on a wave of prosperity, and with all materials at the highest prices of a generation. The wisdom of the expenditure in some instances and the stability of the new creations in others must be tested by adversity to prove their stability.

WEEKLY REVIEW OF MARKET PRICES

Corn Quotations Easier—Jobbers Not Satisfied With Canned Tomato Situation.

No changes have come to the hay market during the week, all descriptions remaining firm, with receipts plentiful, but irregular, and best grades especially have maintained a strong hold on the position occupied at the opening of business last Monday. Straw is very strong at quotations, some sales reported at figures in advance of those listed. Attempts have been made on the part of buyers to obtain bargains in straw, but these have proven uniformly unsuccessful, the scarcity of offerings affording the best argument possible for firmness on the part of sellers. Rye corn has declined twice, once early in the week, and again on Saturday, one cent being the amount of each decline, while shelled also went off a cent at the close of the week. New corn is becoming more and more a factor in the situation, and to its influence the reductions are due. Oats are holding at last week's prices, and rye is unchanged. Millfeed is quiet, but receipts are light and market quotations are steady.

The only changes of importance in grocery staples were the decline of a half cent in package coffee, and the advance of a half cent in refined oils, both of which have been reported. As explained, the coffee weakness was caused by western roasters making severe cuts in low-grade bulk roasted, which came into sharp competition with standard package and forced the latter down. Loose coffees are not affected by the decline.

Sugar Is Holding Firm.

Sugar was cut twice week before last on account of the competition with western beet sugar, which is coming east in large quantities, but no further reductions were made last week, the market remaining steady, but slow. The larger portion of the demand now comes from confectioners for holiday purposes. Flour maintains the strong tone of the opening of last week, actual sales being at $4 10@4 15, with the lower price perhaps the most favored. Navy beans are steady at the reduction of last Monday, amounting to five cents a bushel. Cereals are in active demand, but are unchanged in price, though easier in harmony with the government crop statistics, which show large yields.

Canned goods are not changed, although as one jobber puts it, "the flirting damsel, canned tomato, is again coquetting with the trade." Some packing concerns, anxious to convert a portion of their stock into ready cash, have made a few cut price sales, which have had some tendency to depress the market, but local quotations for No. 1 standards have not been changed, although the lower notation, $1 05, is more generally in use in transactions than the higher point of the range.

War Is Threatened.

Jobbers express themselves as dissatisfied with the Pittsburgh situation, and believe they are not receiving fair treatment at the hands of packers. War is threatened, and, if the battle is set in array. It may result in lower prices, at least in the future, if not this season. The claim is made that high figures now prevailing, and which have prevailed this season, are not warranted by actual conditions.

Dried fruits are all holding firm at quotations and a gradual increase is noticed in demand for prunes, apricots and peaches.

Irish potatoes are higher than they were a week ago, and those would probably be greater if weather conditions were more favorable. Receipts are not heavy, and request for immediate consumption is great enough to absorb arrivals. Dealers are cautious about storing, owing to the fact that considerable off stock is arriving, the warm weather which has prevailed for the few weeks past not having allowed the potatoes to mature properly, and they spoil quickly. Prices at shipping points have advanced, but locally are not up in accordance with country figures, jobbers fearing to so boom the market here as to encourage shipments of stock which may not arrive in good condition. Sweet potatoes have advanced slightly, but the demand is not as strong as it was earlier in the season.

Cabbage Market Slow.

Cabbage is in large supply and slow of sale. Florida egg plant is a trifle higher than at the opening of last week. String beans and all winter vegetables are unchanged.

The apple market is overstocked and prices are weak. A few dealers admit that they have been caught with too many apples and are anxious to sell all new arrivals quickly, not caring to store any more of the early fall goods which have come in. As it is, storage rooms are pretty well crowded, and more space has been sought than dealers care to occupy, the heavy receipts forcing them to procure enlarged accommodations or pay the increased demurrage charges. Concord grapes are about done. Quinces are plentiful and prices are unchanged, except for some extra fancy stock, which is commanding advanced figures. Pears are unchanged and cranberries are holding at last week's quotations, with demand quiet.

There is little change in tropical fruits. California grapes are very scarce and higher. Lemons are maintaining a strong position, with offerings light. Florida oranges are late arrivals in the market.

Butter went forward a half cent per pound on Monday, and extra table creamery is scarce. Cheese is firm, with another advance scored in manufacturing districts, which indicates higher figures to come here. Dealers are looking for a wholesale market of 15@16 cents before the top is reached.

Fresh Eggs Are Scarce.

Fresh eggs are very scarce. Retail dealers are now asked 26 cents for strictly fresh stock and jobbers are predicting further advances. Here are not productive, the mulling season being far continued, and supplies come in very scantily. If some of the predictions already made are realized the egg market will reach heights to which it seldom goes, and will remain strong until the winter lay begins, which gives evidence of probable lateness, and may mean the first of the year before conditions are easier. Dealers are refusing to name prices for this week, preparing for possible scarcity more pronounced than that which now prevails.

Poultry has been steady all week, the only actual change in quotations being an advance of a cent a pound for turkeys, both live and dressed. The weather continues to be the important factor in this market, and, unless lower temperature comes within a very few days, stock for Thanksgiving will be limited, as farmers cannot dress and ship poultry without great risk while the weather is so warm. Of course such a condition would reverse the state of affairs of last season, when the Thanksgiving and Christmas markets were offerings light, by holding the greater amount of stock for the December holidays.

After a period of steady advances a break has come in the provision market, and hams are lower, the decline being a half cent per pound. Dry salt and smoked sides and bellies are also lower, having gone off three-quarters of a cent. Breakfast bacon remains unchanged.

EXPORTS BEGIN TO GROW AGAIN

Report of Foreign Sales of Breadstuffs for October Show Healthy Increase.

STILL BEHIND RECORD

High Water Mark Set in 1900. Short Crop Last Year Cause of Very Large Falling Off in Trade.

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU, 603 Fifteenth St., N. W., WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 16.

October exports show a decided tendency toward recovery from the depression due largely to the short corn crop of last year and reduced foreign demand for other breadstuffs. The total exports for October were larger than those of any preceding month in the history of our commerce, except October and December, 1900, and October, 1901.

Exports of corn are of course less than in October of last year, by reason of the very great shortage in corn due to last year's drouth, the total value of corn exported in October, 1902, being $734,682, against $2,348,640 in October of last year; while for the 10 months ending with October, the value of corn exports was $5,-395,610, against $47,283,450 in the corresponding months of last year.

In wheat, which had shown a material reduction in exports in the last few months when compared with the extraordinarily high figures of the corresponding months of the preceding year, the figures for October show a marked improvement, the total value of wheat exported in October, 1902, being $12,458,638, against $10,515,414 in October of last year; while flour exports for October of the present year are valued at $7,243,914, as against $6,066,561 in October of last year. Breadstuffs as a whole show a total of $21,900,802 in October, 1902, against $20,-372,325 in October, 1901.

Exports of provisions and live animals are still below those of October of last year, the figures for October of the present year being $15,060,173, against $18,-225,050; while for the 10 months provisions and live animals show a fall in exports of $33,000,000, as compared with the corresponding months of last year, and breadstuffs a fall of $81,000,000.

The following figures show the October exports in each year from 1895 to 1902: 1895, $87,000,972; 1896, $113,516,586; 1897, $111,744,517; 1898, $118,619,563; 1899, $125,-908,527; 1900, $163,380,680; 1901, $145,659,-415; 1902, $143,179,782.

ADDICKS FACTION NOW RECOGNIZED

Recent Election Showed Majority of Delaware Republicans to Be His Friends.

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU, 603 Fifteenth Street, N. W., WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 16.

One of the most interesting features of the recent congressional elections was the way the situation in Delaware was cleared up.

For a number of years past the Republicans of "The Blue Hen" state have been divided into two bitter factions known as the Addicks and anti-Addicks factions. The factions fought each other vigorously and, as a result, the Republicans are minus two United States senatorships from that state, because of a deadlock, and the seats are vacant.

In the legislative contests of recent years the followers of Mr. Addicks would always have about three-fourths of the Republican representation in the legislature, but the other fourth would not enter the party caucus, and, as a consequence, senators could not be elected.

The national Republican leaders found it hard to decide between the factions. While the Addicks Republicans would claim to be the majority and point to their strength in the legislature as proof, the other faction would assert that the legislative strength was simply the result of the Addicks barrel, and not a true representation of the feelings of the rank and file of the party. During President McKinley's administration he was inclined to recognize the anti-Addicks faction, but the Republican national convention of 1900 recognized Mr. Addicks and his followers.

However, the recent election showed conclusively which faction had the majority. Both factions made a close fight for the legislature and in addition each nominated a candidate for congress. The result is that while the Democratic candidate was elected to congress, the vote revealed that the friends of Addicks were in a majority of the party by a ratio of 13 to 8, nearly two-thirds, and in the legislature the same faction has nearly three-fourths of the Republican majority.

Mr. Addicks came here and furnished Postmaster General Payne with these facts. He communicated them at once to President Roosevelt and the latter immediately appointed William M. Byrne to be the United States attorney for Delaware, thus recognizing the majority faction. This emphatic recognition, it is expected, will end the deadlock in the legislature and result in the election of two Republicans to the two vacant seats.

CURTIS GOT IT GOOD.

Chinaman Used Meat Cleaver on Him so Furiously that He Is in a Bad Way.

The wounds inflicted upon John Curtis, colored, by two Chinamen in Sewickley Saturday night, may prove more serious than at first expected. There is one very deep cut, six inches in length, on the top of his head, inflicted by means of a heavy meat clever.

Curtis also had the fingers on his right hand nearly severed by a glancing blow from the clever.

The Chinamen were released yesterday on $1,000 bail, paid by John McMillan, of whom they rent their rooms. The colored people of the village are still much wrought up over the affair.

MAN WITH MONEY TRAVELS ON FOOT

TRENTON, N. J., Nov. 16.—(Special.)—Edward B. Dolton, the once wealthy man of this city, who suddenly disappeared from Trenton several days ago, was located in Burlington, N. J., last night. He had been traveling about in the open country for several days. Dolton is now under the care of a physician and an examination will be made into his mental condition. Despite the fact that Dolton had money in his clothes, he had traveled afoot.

SEVERAL HELD FOR FURTHER HEARINGS

Many Police Cases in Which Severe Injuries Were Inflicted Require Investigation.

Sixty-one prisoners were given hearings at the Central police station yesterday morning. Sixteen of them came from No. 2 station and five from the South Side stations. Thirty-one were discharged and several were held over for further hearing. One of these latter was Michael Flaherty, who is charged with hitting Thomas Gannon on the head with a bottle and fracturing his skull. The two men had a fight at Duquesne way and First street.

Harrison Morgan of Arthur street is held over to await the time when his daughter can appear against him. She is at the Passavant hospital with numerous bruises on her body. Officer Fred Balbach found her lying outside the house, and she said her father had thrown her out.

Jerry Parker, colored, was also held over until such time as Fanny Burke, also colored, who is at the Homeopathic hospital with a broken nose and cut head, can get out. Parker sent a note to her and met her at Wood and Second avenue Saturday night, and there gave her a beating.

Martin Madden, who was cut in the back during a fight with David Naughton and Bartley Flaherty in a stable at Fort street and Penn avenue, was fined $5 and costs, as were the other two, all of them being charged with disorderly conduct.

Robert Ramsey was fined $10 and costs or 10 days to jail for stealing newspapers from a delivery wagon.

John Coyne locked a girl in a room at No. 82 Second avenue and threw away the key. He paid $5 and costs.

ALLEGHENY SALOONIST BUNCOED OUT OF $300

Three Young Men Worked Off a Lot of "Phoney" Diamonds in Slick Way.

Richard McCormick, a saloonkeeper of West Ohio street, Allegheny, has fallen a victim to a bunco scheme that is said by the detectives to be comparatively new in this locality. McCormick is minus $300 and has not much hope of seeing his money again, as two men whom he suspected of swindling him were released yesterday after he failed to identify them.

McCormick was sitting in his saloon Saturday afternoon when three well-dressed young men entered. One of them approached McCormick and said that a friend of the saloonist, mentioning him, was in "hard luck" in Martins Ferry, O., and they wanted some money for him. They had some diamonds, they said, which they neither wanted to sell nor pawn, but they would leave them with McCormick as security if he would advance $300.

They showed McCormick two diamonds for examination. The saloonkeeper took the stones across the street to a jeweler, who pronounced one of the diamonds worth $250 and the other worth $225. McCormick returned to the saloon and closed the bargain, saying, however, that he could raise only $300. This was enough to bridge the temporary impecuniousness of the Martins Ferry man, the strangers said, and all three came to Pittsburgh. McCormick had $200 with him, and getting $100 more from a friend he handed the $300 to the men and received in return a package of nine diamonds, two of them being apparently those which he had had examined and valued.

Within an hour McCormick learned that the diamonds were "phony" and made of glass. He appealed to the Pittsburgh bureau of detectives and Detective Richard Kelly and W. A. Riley were put on the case. McCormick said that he was informed that "Butch" Lockinger and George Snee were two of the men who had buncoed him and they were arrested and locked up as suspicious persons. At the hearing yesterday morning McCormick failed to identify them and they were discharged.

MINUTE GUNS FIRED.

Demonstration of Respect Paid by Foreigners to Memory of Liu Kun Y at Nanking.

SHANGHAI, Nov. 16.—The funeral of Liu Kun Y, the famous viceroy of Nanking, which took place today at Nanking, was the occasion for unprecedented demonstrations of respect on the part of the foreign representatives. The funeral cortege was of great length and the obsequies, by command of the dowager empress, were carried out with imperial pomp.

Nearly 250,000 people lined the route to the jetty where the remains were embarked by a Chinese cruiser which will bear them to Hunan, the native province of the deceased statesman.

The foreign men of war laying off the city fired minute guns during the progress of the funeral procession.

JOSEPH HORNE CO.

Monday, Nov. 17, 1902.

And Now All Minds Are Tinged With Thoughts of Christmas.

TODAY is the 17th of November, and, leaving out Thanksgiving, there are just 32 business days in which to do the great work of buying for this greatest of all holiday festivals—the only one that is celebrated the world over concurrently.

The time is short enough to settle on the things most suitable, make the purchases, get ready the cards and letters, and arrange the delivery early enough to insure against mistakes.

Silver and jewels, leather and fine art ware, and of course china, will still be as popular as of old.

But there is ample evidence that this year there is to be a great deal of giving of Dress Patterns of silk, velvet, cotton and wool.

Furs—Coats, Boas and Muffs.
Floor Rugs, especially the Oriental.
Sets and single pieces of Furniture.
Sets of Fine Table Napery.

Things that promise permanent pleasure are the best, after all—rather than the pretty trifle that expresses a kindly thought.

Our stocks of Christmas Gift-Things are greater in variety than ever, and we were never so well prepared to serve all who come as at the present time.

Spring, 1903, Imported Percales.

25c a yard.

Nearly 6 months ahead of the time when other counters will have them—several weeks ahead of the time when we usually bring them out.

But we had an intimation, a pretty broad one, that they would be acceptable now, and, being desirous of pleasing everyone, we had our people abroad send us a large number of pieces. We put the first invoice of these Percales on sale some three weeks back, and the singular part of it was that many men bought them for making up into stylish shirts, both for themselves and the boys of the family.

Primarily these Percales, or rather the first and this second lot, are for maids' dresses.

They are from the great fabric printing town of Alsace, and are splendid specimens of what will be largely in demand next Spring.

Oriental Rugs Direct From the Orient.

Direct importation, and personal selection in the Rug Centers of Asia, has a double meaning for people who want the finest far-East floor coverings.

First—It means the Rugs are not consigned, but are bought outright for cash. Second—It means that we can sell them to you at lower prices than any similar qualities can be bought in either city.

But a day or two back a gentleman came to our Rug Department and casually asked to see a certain quality of Rug. He was shown it—the price was given him. And then and there he remarked that he had bought the same style of Rug elsewhere and paid $10.50 more for it. He took ours and returned the other.

Some paragraphs detailing our low prices for various Oriental Rugs.

At $17.50—just about half what other and inferior grades of same Rugs are sold for—a collection of Mossoul, Kazak, Guenjeh and Carabagh Rugs, the sizes ranging from 3 to 4 feet wide and 8, 9 and 10 feet long. These same Rugs are now being sold in different places for $28 and $35. In an alliterative way, comparison is convincing.

Following are a series of reduced prices of Persian Muskebad Rugs. And we desire to say that if there is any aristocracy among Oriental Rugs the Persian weaves represent it. They are the best types, the most artistic, of Oriental weaving.
